TRUSTS ENTHRONED, UNTERMYER SAYS

Government's Hand Is Stayed While Money Pirates and Criminal Pools Rob the Public.

LAUGH AT ANTI-TRUST LAWS

Bitter Attack on Authorities for Failure to Act Made by the Lawyer Before Sailing for Europe.

Samuel Untermyer, who was counsel for Adolph Segal in the later developments growing out of the Sugar Trust's loan deal with Segal's Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company, and sought unavailingly to get the trust to loosen its grip on the Segal concern—a grip not relaxed until last week, when, after a long train of consequences, including fraud, bankruptcy, and suicide, the Sugar Trust, confronting a possible punitive verdict of $30,000,000, did let go, and in addition paid over $2,000,000 or more—sailed for Europe yesterday with Mrs. Untermyer on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie. Before he departed he talked about the prospect of a criminal prosecution of the Sugar Trust, and incidentally said a few words about what happened to George R. Scrugham, secretary of the International Policyholders' Committee in the fight to elect policyholders' tickets in the Mutual and New York Life Insurance Companies.

Asked whether his client was going to try to press the prosecution of the Sugar Trust or John E. Parsons on account of the loan deal, Mr. Untermyer said:

"What would be the use? The sugar company has been a consistent lawbreaker ever since its birth. Its activities in Congress have been one of the scandals of the country for many years. It has robbed the public and ruined its would-be competitors. But it is no worse than many of the others in its criminal methods, and not quite so bad as some. This suddenly aroused virtuous abhorrence of its methods is amusing. It accidentally happens at the moment to be the scapegoat, but as the Government has waited until after the principal offenders are dead, it doesn't much matter.

Easy to Get the "Criminal Rich."

"Whenever the Government really wants to bring the criminal rich who are managing these conspiracies that are notoriously violating the criminal law within the penalties of that law, it will not be difficult. There never has been an honest, intelligent effort to enforce the ample provisions of the law against any of the monster monopolies.

"The Government has had no trouble in convicting and driving out of business a few poor, struggling, comparatively harmless combinations, which were put together to prevent bankruptcy and secure a small profit. But the financial buccaneers who have been 'holding up' the country in the necessities of life, keeping out foreign competition through the tariff at one end and crushing home competition at the other until the increase in the cost of living is alarming, have remained immune, until every lawyer who has had to deal with this big question knows that the pretended 'enforcement' of the law is a huge farce.

"Every time the Government has had a chance to enforce the criminal provisions of the law—which constitute the only effective part, the others being mainly academic—it has run. There are always so many reasons for not doing things that it is never difficult to find one. We learned that lesson in the recent ventilation of corporate dishonesty in the insurance world, when every exposed criminal went unpunished—most of them back at the old game on slightly modified lines, including the subsidizing of a part of the press through extravagant advertising at the policy holders' expense and jeering at the discomfited 'muckrakers.'

"We all know that the anti-trust law is being openly flaunted and violated every day by some of the most powerful men in the land. There are operating in this city to-day numberless secret, unlawful pools to control prices and restrict production, many of them under written agreements that are criminal conspiracies on their face. If a fraction of the energy that is wasted in smashing gambling house doors and watching saloons, &c., were expended in getting evidence that is obtainable, we should soon be able to bring this great evil under control.

Stronger Than the Government.

"Somehow or other it looks as if the power of these men is too much for the Government. The evidence of crimes have been for years available to the public authorities if they would go about their task as they do in ferreting out smugglers, counterfeiters, Post Office thieves, and other classes of criminals.

"We are told by a certain section of the press—and some gentlemen around Wall Street are regaining their smug confidence in that belief—that there has been a reaction in the public mind against what they are pleased to call 'attacks on these criminal conspiracies.

"For the sake of the country let us hope these gentlemen are mistaken; for if they are right we shall have an upheaval here as compared to which the mild and harmless experiments of the last Administration will seem like a midsummer zephyr alongside a cyclone. These pools and combinations are growing stronger and more numerous. Individual enterprise is being strangled. Unless they are brought within the clutch of the criminal law and destroyed, the future is fraught with danger. The only way to regulate them is to bury them.

"So long as the President of the United States can defy the law by giving them immunity, and go unrebuked, the sentiment of the country is callous.

"I dread the awakening. We are a hysterical, press-ridden people, and we go to extremes. Until the public mind is aroused to a recognition of the extent of the evils from which we are suffering, and the far greater dangers that are threatening us, it is useless to attempt to bring these men within the law. Their power is so great that they are practically above the law except when confronted with an aroused public opinion. I devoted my time and money to that service in the life insurance fight at great personal sacrifice and with the aid of the most distinguished body of public-spirited citizens ever gotten together with only temporary results and of the most unsatisfactory kind, and we had nothing for our pains but abuse and misrepresentation. In the end one of the companies whose agents had been forging ballots, when the agents were caught in the act, were able to protect the confessed forger from punishment under cover of indicting the secretary of our committee, and it took us years and almost bankrupted the poor fellow to prove his own innocence.

"I refer to poor Mr. Scrugham, who was acquitted by a jury in three minutes. But meantime we had no time or disposition to follow the real criminals. At least one of the companies is back at its old games again with practically the same crowd in command. There is no real sustained public support for such movements in this country. We are too fickle, too busy, and too easily led. I repeat, that the Sugar Trust is no worse than many of the others. We are getting just about the sort of administration of our laws that we deserve."

BANK TELLER MISSING.

Warrant Out for Entemann, Sought by Branch of the Jefferson.

Through the request to the police that they look for an employe of the Jefferson Bank of this city it became known yesterday that this man has disappeared and with him had gone funds which may reach a larger amount than $9,000, the sum said to be missing.

The complaint made to Police Headquarters had it that the amount could not be fixed. It is known that the missing employe had in his charge a number of special small accounts, each amounting to no more than $100 practically, but totaling well into the thousands.

Herman Broesel, President of the Bank, admitted last night in the German Club that a teller named Entemann was missing, and admitted also that he was supposed to have taken funds. He stated, however, that the Houston Street Branch of the bank, where Entemann worked, did not contain more than $25,000 deposits all told, and that of this sum probably only about $9,000 were missing.

Entemann lives in Coney Island with his mother and sister. Last night Capt. Palmer of the Coney Island Station, with several detectives, was trying to find him. The young man had been with the bank for sixteen years and had a good reputation.

SCHOONER FIRES ON TRAWLER

Clash Between American and French Fishermen Off Cape Breton.

NORTH SYDNEY, C. B., June 15.—Word was received here to-day of a clash between the Gloucester, Mass., fishing schooner Senator Gardner and a French steam trawler on Quero Bank.

The Captain of the American vessel, according to reports of other Captains, fired on the Frenchman with a rifle.

The trawler's rail was splintered by the shot, but otherwise there is believed to have been no damage. Nobody was injured, sa far as known.

The incident is supposed to have been the outcome of a long-standing antagonism between the steam trawlers and the hand-line fishermen. The French, American, and Newfoundland fishing Captains claim that the trawlers have done much damage to their gear besides depleting their catches. Capt. Nelson of the Senator Gardner had been waiting for two days for a chance to set his lines. He had no sooner sent out his dories than the trawler was seen to bear down upon them. It is alleged that the Frenchmen were in the act of cutting the American schooner's trawls when Capt. Nelson fired.

MAY NAUDAIN WEDS BANKER.

Comic Opera Singer the Bride of C. H. George of New York.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., June 15.—Charles Henry George, a member of the firm of Flower & Co., New York bankers, was married here to-day to Miss May Naudain, the former comic opera singer. Miss Naudain is an Omaha girl, and the ceremony was performed at the home of her uncle, E. V. Lewis.

Walter Reid Callender of Providence, R. I., was best man, and the ushers were Robert H. Gay, W. F. Forepaugh, and Mr. Eagle of New York; George Nixon of Chicago, and Clark Rosencrantz of Milwaukee.

A wedding breakfast and reception followed the ceremony. Afterward Mr. and Mrs. George left for New York, where they will stay for a month at the Hotel Gotham, then making a tour of Europe.

Mr. George's gift to the bride was a diamond bracelet. His parents presented a diamond necklace. Most of the wedding presents are in New York awaiting the coming of Mr. and Mrs. George. Among those is a splendid silver service from the firm with which Mr. George is connected.

DELANO WON'T GO TO PEKING.

He's a Railroader, Not a Diplomat, Says Wabash President.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 15.—Frederick A. Delano, President of the Wabash Railroad, in discussing to-day his declination to become Minister to China, which post was recently offered him by President Taft, said:

"I know what I can do in my present line, but I do not know what I might be able to do in public life. I entered railroading as a profession; I have had no schooling in diplomacy. To fail to heed my country's call was no easy thing to do, but I believe I am serving my country in some small way where I am, and in what I am trying to do for the department of railroads at home."

GOODALE AIRSHIP SMASHED.

Aeronaut Buried Beneath Wreckage at Palisade Park, but Is Unhurt.

Palisade Park, across the Hudson from 130th Street, was crowded with men, women, and children last night when Frank W. Goodale, the young aeronaut who has been making daily ascensions in an airship, started up into the air in his craft. There were cheers for the young man as he circled around over the heads of the crowd.

Goodale tried at last to alight and threw his ground rope overboard. It was tangled, however, and instead of running out to the ground it hung half way between the airship and the earth. Goodale, thinking the rope must have been caught by some one, let some of the gas out of his balloon. As he descended to within about fifty feet of the ground alongside of a roller coaster track the wind caught his craft and smashed it into the roller coaster, there being no one at the end of the rope to hold it clear. The blow burst the bag in several places and the airship crashed to the ground as the balloon collapsed, turning a somersault in the air and crushing Goodale beneath it on the ground.

There were cries of fright from the watching crowds and almost a panic, but some men pulled young Goodale from the wreckage and found to their surprise that he was only bruised. He said that if another balloon could be got he would make an ascension again to-day.

Safe Balloon Trip in High Wind.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., June 15.—A heavy northwest wind nearly prevented an ascension by the balloon Massachusetts late to-day, but when Charles J. Glidden of Boston announced his intention of giving up the trip William Van Sleet stepped into the breach as pilot. W. H. Gannett of Augusta, Me.; Dr. Sydney S. Stowell of Pittsfield, and Oscar R. Hutchinson of Lenox went with him as passengers. The balloon left the ground at 4:57 P. M. and landed without difficulty at West Springfield at 7:30 P. M.

BRANDENBURG TRIAL FOR LARCENY BEGINS

Mrs. Cleveland, the First Witness, Testifies That Signature Is Not Her Husband's.

DIDN'T AUTHORIZE HASTINGS

To Certify, as He Did, to the Genuineness of the Article Before Publication—Trial Off Till Thursday.

The trial of Broughton Brandenburg for grand larceny in the second degree in selling to THE NEW YORK TIMES a political article purporting to have been written by the late Grover Cleveland began yesterday in the Criminal Part of the Supreme Court. Mrs. Cleveland was a witness, Justice Fitzgerald, to accommodate her, having postponed the continuation of the trial for murder of Philip Mangano. She is about to leave town for the Summer, and the lawyers on both sides agreed to take her testimony out of its proper order in order to set her free.

Mrs. Cleveland was examined particularly with reference to the genuineness of the signature appended to the article. She swore that it was not that of her late husband. She also told how her attention was called to the article before its publication through the advertisements of it which THE TIMES published. She then thought, she said, that some misunderstanding had arisen over the article, an article by Mr. Cleveland having been published through Brandenburg in The Herald. Consequently she sent a telegram to THE TIMES asking it to consult Mr. Hastings, Mr. Cleveland's executor, before publication.

It will appear in evidence later that as a result of this there was a conference between Mr. Hastings and a TIMES representative, as a result of which Mr. Hastings sent to THE TIMES a letter in which he said that Mrs. Cleveland's telegram was sent under a misapprehension, that she authorized him to state that the agreement with Brandenburg was valid and that he personally had no reason to doubt the genuineness of Mr. Cleveland's signature as appended to the article.

In spite of the four weeks which Broughton Brandenburg had spent in the Tombs since he returned a prisoner from California, he came into court yesterday neat and well-groomed. He wore eyeglasses, a blue serge suit, and white tie. He was defended by Samuel Bell Thomas and Oswald N. Jacoby. The case for the people was in the hands of Assistant District Attorney Nott.

The jury was selected with no great difficulty. The chief points raised in examining talesmen were whether the fact that the article in question might be supposed to have assisted one political party or the other in the last Presidential campaign would be likely to influence them in their verdict. They were also asked if they knew the defendant or his lawyers. If a talesman answered satisfactorily he was usually accepted. The box was filled just after noon.

Case for the People.

Mr. Nott then opened the case for the people. He began by stating that to find the defendant guilty of grand larceny in the second degree the jury must be satisfied that he had obtained by misrepresentations, a sum between $25 and $500, in this case of $500; that the representations he made were false; that he knew they were false, and that the persons who paid the money had relied on these representations.

He enlarged on the gravity of the case, pointing out that Brandenburg had used the name of an honored ex-President of the United States, and had waited until he was dead, knowing how hard it would be to prove then that the article was not genuine. Moreover, he counted on the willingness of a New York newspaper to publish an article which might be of influence in the campaign. Consequently his article had inflicted a double injury on the State, in that not only was a false signature appended to it, but it contained a false political argument.

Mr. Nott asked the jury to note that Brandenburg had declared that Mr. Cleveland had signed the article in his presence between March 12 and 15 last year, and that this was before either political convention had met. Mr. Cleveland died on June 24, and then, after one convention had adjourned, Brandenburg had sold the article to THE NEW YORK TIMES, which published it on Aug. 30.

In describing the sale of the article to THE TIMES Mr. Nott pointed out that this newspaper had made investigations into the genuineness of the article and had communicated with Mr. Hastings, executor of Mr. Cleveland, about it, with what seemed to be a satisfactory result.

"I will produce," he went on, "two ladies who will say that the defendant came to their typewriting office and said that he had some notes from Mr. Cleveland which he would make into a newspaper story. This was in August, long after Mr. Cleveland's death. I will produce witnesses, both lay and expert, who will show that it was physically impossible for Mr. Cleveland to have written the signature to the article. For the last four or five years of his life all his signatures had five or six breaks, but in this signature there is no break save between the capital and the name. To explain this to you I shall call Dr. Finley of the City College, his physician, and handwriting experts.

"I shall also lay before you Brandenburg's own statement before the Grand Jury, in which he said that he copied out in his own room, on his own typewriter, the statement he got on detached pieces of paper from Mr. Cleveland, and that he took it back to Mr. Cleveland, who signed it. Yet in the article are words misplaced, misspelled, and misused, and other evident signs of haste, and the typewriter company's books show the same number of folios as are contained in the article that appeared in THE TIMES.

"THE NEW YORK TIMES did not rely on Brandenburg's word. It went to Mr. Cleveland's executor for confirmation, but as it would not have published the article if it had not believed the signature was genuine, a clear crime has been committed, if the signature is a forgery."

On motion of Mr. Jacoby the jury was then excused, and he made a motion for the dismissal of the trial on the ground that as Mr. Nott had contended that THE TIMES had carefully investigated the article on its own behalf before publication, it had not been misled by the defendant, and that therefore no crime had been committed. If the District Attorney consequently asked for a conviction for an attempt to commit grand larceny he was barred by the principle that no man can

A BEDSIDE WEDDING OF AUTO VICTIMS

Bridegroom Held Up, Bride in Bed, with Injured Aunt in Another Bed.

THE THREE IN ACCIDENT

R. C. Brandreth and Miss Armstrong Had Set the Date and Wouldn't Let It Be Changed.

Special to The New York Times.

MONROE, N. Y., June 15.—Ralph C. Brandreth of Bellport, L. I., who was injured in an automobile wreck near this place last Saturday night, was married this afternoon to Miss Edith Hill Armstrong of 300 West 106th Street, New York City, who was also injured in the same accident, and who this afternoon went through the ceremony propped up in bed with her face and body swathed in bandages. In another bed in the same room was Miss Martha McKay of Sternbridge, Penn., an aunt of the bride, who also came near losing her life in the accident.

Had the Brandreth automobile not collided with the telegraph pole that caused all the trouble Mr. Brandreth and Miss Armstrong would have been married at Miss Armstrong's home in New York this afternoon. There is a superstition that ill-luck follows a postponed wedding. Mr. Brandreth and Miss Armstrong refused to postpone the wedding until they had recovered from their injuries. John H. Armstrong, the father of the bride, gave her in marriage, while her younger sister, Miss Mabel Helen Armstrong, was the maid of honor. Guy Brandreth, a brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

The young people after the accident were taken to the home of Mrs. Amy Woodhill, a friend of Miss Armstrong. When they were told yesterday morning that it would be several weeks before the doctor would let them return to New York they told their friends that the marriage would have to be ararnged for the afternoon. The Rev. Dr. W. R. Reisenhart of the Monroe Presbyterian Church was notified, and then all the details were planned.

Dr. R. H. Ruilson, the physician who is attending the young people, said that while it was out of the question for Miss Armstrong to leave her bed even to be married, the bridegroom might do so if the best man and some other good friend held him on his feet during the ceremony.

In the afternoon the bridegroom's brother dressed him for the wedding. When word came that Miss Armstrong was ready for the ceremony, he was carried into the bride's room. It required but a little time to go through the Presbyterian ceremony. Then, after a short prayer, congratulations were offered all around, and Mr. Brandreth was carried back to his room. Later a wedding dinner was served to those of the party who had not been in the automobile crash.

Last Saturday night Mr. Brandreth, Miss Armstrong, Miss McKay, and Mr. Brandreth's chauffeur passed through Monroe in Mr. Brandreth's automobile on their way to New York. Mr. Brandreth and Miss Armstrong had been spending the last days of their single life at Miss McKay's home in the Blue Mountain region of Pennsylvania. They had started from Miss McKay's home early on Saturday and counted on reaching New York before midnight. Mr. Brandreth had issued invitations for a dinner to some men friends in New York for last night, while Miss Armstrong was anxious to prepare for the ceremony.

There are several stories as to how the accident happened. The machine had just descended the little hill near the bottom of which is the Summer home of Brian G. Hughes, when it ran into the pole. The machine was completely wrecked and the occupants were thrown into the road, all being rendered unconscious. So great was the impact of the machine that the telegraph pole was almost cut in two.

It was several minutes after the accident before an automobile containing E. P. Morse, a Brooklyn merchant; Mrs. Morse, and Mrs. Woodhull came along. As the Morse automobile neared the scene of the accident its headlights showed the figures in the road. Mr. Morse stopped his car, and with the assistance of Mrs. Morse and Mrs. Woodhull, lifted the injured persons into his machine, and then hurried them to the Woodhull home, in this place, where Dr. Rulison was called in. Dr. Rulison found that Miss McKay was the most seriously hurt, having a broken collarbone and internal injuries. Mr. Brandreth and Miss Armstrong were also severely hurt, as was the chauffeur.

When they are able to leave Monroe, which will be in two or three weeks, Mr. and Mrs. Brandreth will go to Europe to spend their honeymoon. Mr. Brandreth several years ago, with the assistance of Capt. Thomas C. Lovelace, tried to navigate the auxiliary yacht Taormina to South American waters. They got as far as Norfolk, and then Mr. Brandreth disposed of the craft.

AMERICAN THIRD WRANGLER.

Might Have Won First Place with the Usual Coaching.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 15.—The Cambridge correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES telegraphs that among university men the general impression is that the last senior wranglership would probably have been won by an American, L. J. Wordell of Philadelphia, had he allowed himself to be coached in the usual fashion.

Wordell was of the opinion that he could do better work by himself, and his success in winning third place in the list of wranglers is considered remarkable in the circumstances.

The last senior wrangler is P. J. Daniel of Trinity College, which now has fifty-six senior wranglers to its credit, to St. John's fifty-five.

Charles Darwin's grandson is one of five men bracketed as equal as fourth wrangler.

U. S. STEEL IS BARRED FROM PARIS BOURSE

Premature Announcement of Listing Gave Opposition an Opportunity to Crystallize.

PLAN NOT PRACTICABLE

Authorities Doubted Legal Ability of Bankers' Trust Company to Fulfil Its Obligations and to Make Profits.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 15.—Last Wednesday I cabled that though Herman Harjes and others interested in listing United States Steel on the Paris Bourse persisted in stating that only the formalities remained to be complied with, the fact was that an adverse decision had been submitted to the syndic of the Bourse by M. Marraud, chief of the Fiscal Committee, and that this would probably be made final on Tuesday noon. To-day at noon M. Caillaux, Minister of Finance, informed Mr. Harjes, whom he met for the first time, of the fact which THE NEW YORK TIMES had already made known, namely, that it had been decided that it was impossible to admit the stock under the Morgan plan.

In part the failure was due to bad management. All the Paris bankers and thousands of investors throughout France were eager to see American stocks listed and the Paris market enlivened. M. Caillaux and M. de Verneuil, the syndic of the Bourse, were well disposed. The Americans in charge of the campaign made many errors, among which were haste and lack of candor. The premature announcement as a fact that all arrangements had been completed was not only distasteful to their friends in high places, but gave an opportunity for the opposition to crystallize.

On Saturday a committee of the steel makers of France waited on Premier Clemenceau, M. Caillaux, and M. Pichon, Minister of Foreign Affairs, with a protest. M. Guillain, Secretary of the committee, threatened an interpellation in the Chamber if the American steel shares were admitted.

I am in a position to say, however, that the decisive consideration was suspicion of the proposed plan and the legal difficulties pointed out in my previous dispatches. How was it possible under the law to allow the Bankers' Trust Company of New York to assume the abonnement, that is, to guarantee the French taxes, on the stock of another corporation? Further, how was it possible to accept the Bankers' Trust Company's certificates against that stock instead of the stock itself?

The French officials further began to ask how the Bankers' Trust Company could go into such an undertaking. It had to agree to pay 10 per cent. of the earnings of all the steel stock traded in in Paris annually in perpetuity. Would the New York trust company laws allow it to bind itself to such an obligation? Where did its profit come in? What if a shareholder should seek an injunction? Did the Bankers' Trust Company really know what it was doing?

The fact is that the Bankers' Trust Company will probably be profoundly happy when it reads the French law and finds what burdens it has escaped by the failure of this plan, which was unquestionably as immaturely conceived as it was unwisely pressed. Had it succeeded it would have made a worse mess of the case of American stocks in Paris even than its failure has done.

Future efforts to list Americans on the Bourse proper must be by way of legislation. It is possible that something might be done to ameliorate the severity of the French law when the budget comes up early in the Winter, but as the matter is directly involved in the new income tax bill, which will take four or five years to put into final shape to pass, all hope of the introduction of American stocks here except on the coulisse may be abandoned for the present.

At the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. yesterday it was said that no word had been received from Morgan, Harjes & Co., the Paris house of the firm, which revealed any check in the negotiations under way to list steel on the Bourse. It is understood that dealings in the shares in the so-called coulisse, which corresponds in a way with the unlisted department of the Stock Exchange here, would serve practically the same ends as direct trading on the Bourse, and will be effected if the French regulations finally make direct dealings impossible.

Utah Copper and United States Rubber were admitted to the coulisse last week, and similar arrangements for United States Steel could readily be made.

BABY IN FRONT OF CAR.

Frightened Mother Relaxed Her Hold and the Child Is Dying of Injuries.

Tessie, the three months' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Deak of 8 West Street, Newark, is dying in the City Hospital in that city, as a result of being accidentally dropped by her mother in front of a trolley car yesterday afternoon and being tossed by the fender.

Mrs. Deak was crossing the trolley tracks when a car came toward her unexpectedly. Frightened, she jumped backward and unconsciously relaxed her hold on the child, which fell in front of the car, sustaining severe internal injuries, from which it is said there is no chance for recovery. Mrs. Deak is in a serious condition from hysteria and grief.

FALLS 3,500 FEET AND LIVES.

Nebraska Aviator's Home-Made Aeroplane Goes Wrong in Test.

BERWYN, Neb., June 15.—V. Sorenson, a blacksmith and an amateur aviator, dropped 3,500 feet in a crippled aeroplane here to-day. He was not seriously hurt. In view of several hundred persons Sorenson made an ascent in a balloon, and then attempted a descent in an aeroplane that he had constructed after several months' labor. When he cut the aeroplane loose he found the rudder had worked loose, and he was unable to guide the machine. It began to descend at a terrific speed, turning over and over as it dropped.

The inventor clung to the craft, and when it struck the ground he was in a sitting posture. The aeroplane was demolished, but Sorenson, although knocked senseless and sustaining numerous bruises, was soon revived.

HARRIMAN MEETS PALLAIN.

Governor of Bank of France Lunches with Him and James Stillman.

PARIS, June 15.—Finance Minister Caillaux and M. Pallain, Governor of the Bank of France, had luncheon to-day with E. H. Harriman and James Stillman, the American financier.

Mr. Stillman is leaving shortly for America, while Mr. Harriman is going to Vienna.

TO REBUILD FRENCH TOWNS.

Government Will Pay Part of Expense for Repairing Earthquake Damage.

PARIS, June 15.—The Government is elaborating a plan for the reconstruction of the villages in the south of France destroyed by the earthquake of a few days ago. It will contribute part of the expense outright and arrange loans on easy terms for the rest.

President Fallières has contributed $4,000, and other contributions are coming in.

AUSTRIAN LONDON ENVOY OUT.

Strained Relations Necessitate Change of Ambassador to Britain.

VIENNA, June 15.—Because of the strained relations between Austria-Hungary and Great Britain, which necessitate a change in the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador at London, Count Mensdorff has handed in his resignation.

He will be succeeded by Marquis Pallavicini, the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador to Turkey.

THIEVES RETURN $15,000.

No Use for It, They Tell Mrs. Shea—Spent $5,000 on Furniture.

SEATTLE, Washington, June 15.—Mrs. George Shea of Duluth, who notified the police on May 30 that $20,000, which she had concealed under the mattress of her bed, had been stolen, has received $15,000 in a letter signed "Two Thieves."

The writers say they used $5,000 to furnish their home, and having no further use for the money returned it to the owner.

FAIL TO LAUNCH DESTROYER.

The Roswell H. Lamson Sticks on the Ways, but Is Named.

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.—The United States torpedo-boat destroyer Roswell H. Lamson was not launched to-day from the yard of the Cramp Shipbuilding Company, as was scheduled, but it was named by Mrs. Henry S. Grove, wife of the President of the shipbuilding corporation. The boat stuck on the ways after sliding half way into the water, where she will remain until the next high tide, when an effort will be made to release her.

The contract under which the destroyer was built calls for a speed of 28 knots an hour. The length of the craft is 294 feet. The armament consists of 5 three-inch semi-automatic guns, 3 torpedo tubes mounted on deck, and 2 small-calibre automatic guns.

SOLDIERS IN TYPHOID TEST.

Submit to Inoculation to Test Value of a Serum.

OMAHA, June 15.—Major Gilchrist, Sergt. Fuller, and Privates Schmidt, Ingram, Harrison, Goodman, and Dowler and Acting Cook Daily of the United States Army were inoculated to-day with typhoid fever serum to test the qualities of the vaccine. The germs were injected into the arms of the men, who volunteered for the experiment.

It is anticipated that the men will be sick for forty-eight hours with high fever and nausea. They will be kept quiet and in ten days, if no alarming symptoms arise, they will again be inoculated. A third injection will be made at the end of twenty days.

Close scrutiny will be made of their condition during the entire period to determine the value of the vaccine.

GUEST OVERSTAYED WELCOME

Brother-in-Law Has New York Woman Arrested for Board Bill—She Pays.

Special to The New York Times.

WILKESBARRE, Penn., June 15.—Having overstayed her invitation to visit her sister and brother-in-law, Edward Miano of this city, Miss Ellen McCloskey of New York was arrested to-day at the instance of Miano and taken before Alderman Donohue in a suit to collect $8 for one week's board. She had been invited for two weeks, but stayed a third. The brother-in-law objected to this, demanded that she pay board, refused to accept his wife's excuse that her sister helped her with the housework, and finally had his sister-in-law arrested.

In order to avoid further unpleasantness she paid the $8 and went home. She has decided opinions about her brother-in-law.

Root's Son Wins His First Lawsuit.

Elihu Root, Jr., son of the United States Senator from New York State, tried his first case in the City Court yesterday and won it. He defended the Interborough Rapid Transit Company in a suit brought against it by Miss Tessie L. Silverstein, eighteen years old, of Milburn, N. J., to recover $2,000 damages alleging that she had been forcibly ejected from one of the defendant's cars. Several witnesses testified for the defense that the plaintiff was not even in the car, and that any bruises she sustained came from the crowding when her father attempted to board the car with a large bundle.

SERVANTS DESCRIBE MRS. GOULD'S HABITS

Once Stayed in Her Room Two Weeks, Drinking Day and Night, Butler Testifies.

COCKTAILS IN THE MORNING

Followed by Whisky and Soda, Wines and "Nightcaps" of Brandy—Life at Castle Gould Stormy.

Howard Gould's defense, that he was justified in abandoning Mrs. Viola Katherine Gould, opened yesterday with the commencement of the fourth day of the trial of the action brought by Mrs. Gould for a separation, which is in progress before Supreme Court Justice Dowling. Four witnesses were examined during the day, all of whom were, or had been, employes at Castle Gould.

For the first time during the trial Mrs. Gould lost her composure yesterday afternoon, and for a few moments broke down and wept audibly while testimony was being given as to her alleged drinking habits and use of bad language. It was but a temporary lapse, however, and soon she was again coaching her lawyer, Clarence J. Shearn, as to the line of questioning to be adopted in the cross-examination of some particular witness.

Howard Gould was in court all day. It had been expected that he would be called to the stand, but De Lancey Nicoll, his counsel, decided it would be better to delay this action until some of the other witnesses had testified. It is probable, however, that Mr. Gould will be called to-day.

Denial by Mr. Nicoll's Sister.

Prior to getting down to business for the day, Mr. Nicoll gave out to the reporters copies of a letter he had received from his sister, denying that she had ever received one of Mrs. Gould's discarded dresses, as stated by the latter in her testimony yesterday. This is Mrs. Charlotte Nicoll Western's letter:

> 137 East Fifty-ninth Street.
>
> My dear Dell: If the inclosed refers to me, it is an absolute falsehood. I have never even seen the woman, nor do I know any of her associates. If she is under oath to tell the truth her statement is gross perjury, and if this is a fair sample of her testimony the rest of it is probably as untrue. Such an untrue statement in print is most annoying to me, and is there anything that you can do to her?
>
> CHARLOTTE NICOLL WESTERN.

Mrs. Western is an actress and has appeared in plays produced by Amelia Bingham and David Belasco.

Some comment was caused yesterday afternoon by the presence of District Attorney Jerome in the courtroom. He occupied a seat on the bench with Justice Dowling for nearly an hour, but it was said that he wished to consult the court on the latest move in the Thaw case—the suing out of another writ of habeas corpus.

The proceedings opened yesterday with the calling of Maurice Malloy, Superintendent of the Castle Gould estate, as the first witness for the defense. He is a well-set-up young Englishman, and gave his answers in a cool and frank manner. The first question put to him raised a rumpus.

Mrs. Gould's Drinking Habits.

"Did you see Mrs. Gould under the influence of intoxicants in June, 1906?" asked Lawyer Watson, who temporarily relieved Mr. Nicoll.

Mr. Shearn objected strenuously. He argued that it had been held in this State from the earliest days that intoxication is not justification for abandonment. He quoted many decisions to back up his contention. After Mr. Nicoll had replied Justice Dowling held that "gross, continued, and habitual intoxication" would constitute sufficient grounds, but the court warned Mr. Nicoll that it must be shown that there was no attempt at reform.

In a last effort Mr. Shearn put forward the claim that it has been held that if a husband drank he needed the love and company of his wife even more than if he were a sober man. Surely this should equally apply in the case of a wife, he argued. But the court allowed Malloy to answer.

"The first time I saw Mrs. Gould was early in June, 1906," he said. "She went away on July 4 and came back on July 14. She began to reproach me for an accident to one of her automobiles. I told her I left the car, which had broken a sprocket, at Huntington. She was very much excited and flushed, but from what cause I am not prepared to say."

"Did you smell her breath?" asked Mr. Watson.

"No, I tried to keep away from her. I did not get close enough to smell her breath."

Malloy was asked about the incident described by Mrs. Gould wherein she said he tried to choke the butler in her presence.

"She certainly was intoxicated on that occasion," he replied. "She sent for me, and when I went into the dining room she was taking luncheon. I noticed she was drinking champagne. She asked me to wait in the hall outside, which I did. Then she called me in and told me to sit by her.

"'I am very much annoyed with you,' she said. 'It is a disgrace, a shame, an outrage, the way you have neglected your duties.' She ordered me out, and told me to get out quickly. Then, as she walked across the floor I noticed she did not walk with her usual brisk, steady step, but swayed slightly."

Says She "Ricochetted" Upstairs.

Malloy went on to say that he watched her go upstairs, and noticed that she "ricochetted slightly against the banister. She was plainly under the influence of some intoxicant."

Asked to tell of the next occasion when he saw her in a similar condition, Malloy said he went to the house in response to a message. He was told by the butler that Mrs. Gould was upstairs, "so I went upstairs to Mr. Gould's private office, which adjoins Mrs. Gould's bedroom, on my way to the sun parlor, where the butler said she was.

"Mrs. Gould came into the office and abused me roundly. 'How dare you force your way into my apartment?' she shouted. I told her the butltr had sent me up. She said, 'You are a liar,' and called me other names, such as impostor, alien, and impudent puppy. She was, in my opinion, intoxicated."

Malloy said he made no response to these verbal assaults. The next time he saw her, he said, was early in November. He met her in the lane outside the cow barn. "I called her to one side and said to her: 'You are making it very hard for me; you are trying to take away some cattle, and that is against the orders.'

"I had previously ordered some Italians who were leading two bulls away to take them back to the barn. She called me many names and ordered me to stand aside. In obeying my orders I took hold of one of the cattle, and another man took the other. Mrs. Gould was very intoxicated then."

The next occasion Malloy saw Mrs. Gould was two days later—on Nov. 8, he thought. She entered the estate office, and, putting her head inside an inner room, where he was seated, shouted out: "Hello, Malloy. Come out here, you Malloy."

"She was very intoxicated," testified Malloy, "so much so that she swayed backward and forward. Her head struck the wall once. She said: 'Malloy, you beast, you are discharged.' I told her I did not wish to listen to her, and stepped out."

Said She Tried to Burn the House.

Malloy, cross-examined by Mr. Shearn, said he was able to fix the date Nov. 8 because he kept a diary.

Q.—Do you recollect having stated in your affidavit that on Nov. 8 the watchman, Frederickson, told you Mrs. Gould had attempted to set fire to the house? A.—I think that was the date. The watchman had reported to me the evening before that he had seen Mrs. Gould attempting to burn up the estate.

Mr. Shearn questioned Malloy about his contract with Mr. Gould. It provided for a salary of $7,500 for the first year and $10,000 a year thereafter.

Q.—Did you make it a condition of your contract that you were to have $10,000 a year if Mr. Gould wanted to keep you in this country to testify for him? A.—I certainly did not; I would not enter into such a bargain with any one.

Q.—Have you any feelings of animosity against Mrs. Gould? A.—I have not; I feel very sorry for her.

Q.—Although she called you "puppy," "impostor," and "alien"? A.—I regarded her as being irresponsible when she called me these names.

Q.—You would like to see Mr. Gould win this suit? A.—I certainly should.

Mr. Shearn never questioned Malloy on his testimony as to Mrs. Gould's intoxication. He brought out that Malloy is still in Mr. Gould's employ, subject to three months' notice on either side. Malloy said he had been ten years in the estate business, having managed estates in England for R. C. Harrison of Shipley Court, Henley on Thames; A. D. Acland of Welling, W. H. Barber of Culham Court, Berkshire, and Hudson E. Kearney of Marlow, Bucks.

At the afternoon session Alfred Richards of 81 West 127th Street was called. He was formerly head steward at Castle Gould, but is now in the employ of the Pullman Car Company as a steward. Examined by Mr. Nicoll, he said he entered the employ of the Howard Goulds on June 22, 1905, remaining about two months. His duties included the charge of the servants and of the butler's pantry.

Q.—During the time you were employed at Castle Gould did you ever see Mrs. Gould under the influence of liquor? A.—I did see Mrs. Gould on different occasions under the influence of liquor.

Q.—Can you tell us whether or not during the first week of your service? A.—Not in the first three weeks.

Richards said that it was toward the end of July that he began to notice Mrs. Gould's condition.

Q.—Please describe what you observed. A.—Mrs. Gould, when she was in this condition, would complain to me about her servants, also telling me that they had robbed her.

Q.—Was she under the influence of alcohol? Yes, Sir; she was very excitable.

Q.—Have you any knowledge of the quantity of liquor she consumed during the time you were in her service? A.—Not the exact quantity. She once stayed in her room for two weeks, and liquor was served to her morning, noon, and night.

Q.—Did you hand her the liquor? A.—Not exactly.

Justice Dowling asked the witness how he knew it was for Mrs. Gould.

"Her maid came down for it," replied Richards. "She used to have two cocktails in the morning, then about 11:30 a whisky and soda; light wines with her luncheon, and at night she would take two brandies."

Q.—How many bottles of brandy did you deliver to her? A.—I did not give bottled brandy. I gave her two drinks.

7 Bottles of Brandy in 2 Weeks.

Richards said that according to his records which he kept at Castle Gould, they showed that seven bottles of brandy went to Mrs. Gould's room during those two weeks.

Q.—Did you see Mrs. Gould herself during that period. A.—No, Sir.

Q.—Do you recollect an occasion—two nights before you left Castle Gould? A.—I do, very well.

Q.—Did you see Mrs. Gould under the influence of liquor on that occasion? A.—Do you want the commencement of the evening?

Q.—Yes. A.—Dinner was called at 8 o'clock, and Mrs. Gould came to the dining room with her husband. Mrs. Gould didn't eat anything, but Mr. Gould went through the dinner. At 8:30 they retired. Mrs. Gould went to her bedroom. Mr. Gould took a cigar and went out on the terrace. About 9:20 Mrs. Gould rang the bells in the house, and also put the burglar alarm on. As these bells rang in Mrs. Gould's room, they brought the chambermaid and two men from the pantry running to her assistance. She turned them off, and told them she wanted me. I went to her, and found her in her room in a blue dressing gown, tearing her hair and waving her arms. Her maid was sitting on the floor looking over some old letters. The burglar alarm was still ringing. Mrs. Gould told me she was sure the house was not closed, although the servants were not supposed to be in until 10:30. I told her that Mr. Gould was outside. She said the house was to be closed, whether the servants or Mr. Gould were outside.

Richards said he went downstairs and looked around, and met Mr. Gould coming in.

"I went upstairs behind him," continued Richards, "and heard him ask Mrs. Gould what was the matter. 'You little hound, get out of this room,' she shouted at him, and then as Mr. Gould made to leave, she slammed the door in his face."

Richards testified that there were several other occasions on which he had seen Mrs. Gould intoxicated. He related one, wherein she sent for two workmen—a safe combination man and an electrician. She inquired of the latter why he had not put a certain 'phone in as she had directed, and when he replied that he had not the wire she became very excited and shouted: "Pick up your tools and get out of the place or I will have some one kick you off."

This is not exactly as the witness gave Mrs. Gould's order to the workmen. It was couched in language much more forcible.

Mrs. Gould had been gazing intently at Richards while he was testifying, and it was when he repeated her order that she broke down. Covering her face with her hands, she cried aloud, moaned, and seemed thoroughly unstrung.

Mr. Shearn came to the rescue as he began his cross-examination.

Q.—You were discharged, weren't you, by Mrs. Gould? A.—No, I was not. I resigned in writing on Aug. 14, 1905.

Mr. Shearn asked the witness if he was aware that in Mr. Gould's answer the burglar-alarm incident was fixed as taking place in September. Richards persisted that it was in August, and on a Sunday.

Q.—In an affidavit signed by yourself you say that you left Mr. Gould's service in the month of September. Which is correct, the affidavit or your testimony to-day? A.—It was in August that I left Mr. Gould's employ.

Mr. Shearn went very carefully over Richards's affidavit, and tripped him up on many dates, but could not shake his evidence in the main.

Called It "Mrs. Gould's Spree."

An interesting fact brought out was that after Richards left the Goulds he had charge of the Pullman car in which they, with a large party of friends, made the trip to Palm Beach and Ormond and back. He admitted that he had never seen Mrs. Gould intoxicated on that trip, but a little later Mr. Nicoll got from him that he had asked to have certain matters kept out of his affidavit and testimony for fear of injuring himself with the Pullman people.

Mr. Shearn showed that on different occasions Richards had sworn that Mrs. Gould did not leave her room for "five days," "two weeks," and "about three weeks." Richards referred to the occasion many time as Mrs. Gould's "spree." He explained that when he said five days he didn't want to be too hard on Mrs. Gould, but that about two weeks was the truth.

Charles H. Danis of Glen Cove, L. I., who was employed at Castle Gould for some months in 1902-3, making artificial lakes and artesian wells, said Mrs. Gould often used to inspect the work as it was being done.

Q.—Do you recollect a trip on which she stopped at your house? A.—Yes. I told her I was sorry I hadn't any wine to offer her, but that I had some whisky. She said she didn't care about whisky, but that she had some brandy with her. Mrs. Gould was not intoxicated.

Danis was sure he had never seen Mrs. Gould intoxicated, but he had heard her using language which is not usually credited to a lady.

The last witness of the day was William H. Cocks, a carpenter, who has been in the employ of Howard Gould, at Castle Gould, since 1906, and who was for a short time employed there in 1902. In the latter year, he said, he was sure that he saw Mrs. Gould under the influence of liquor. The occasion was one day when the men were eating their luncheon in the hen roost, when Mrs. Gould appeared and gave them twenty minutes to get out. She was so excitable, the witness said, that he was sure she was intoxicated.

In October or November, 1906, Cocks testified, he and his brother Jacob called at the house to get some cases to send to Mrs. Gould's farm in Virginia. Mrs. Gould, he said, was sitting on a sofa in the reception hall, when they arrived. She was under the influence of liquor, and said to him:

"Come right in, Mr. Cocks; although I've little more time here, I'll make it warm for the boys."

On cross-examination Mr. Shearn got the witness to admit that he is now receiving $4 a day, whereas in 1902 his rate of pay was $2.75 or $3. But Cocks said he was a member of the Carpenters' Union, which fixed the scale of wages.

At this stage court adjourned until this morning.

GOULD WITNESS ARRESTED.

Man Charged with Grand Larceny Had a Subpoena in Separation Case.

When John Mahoney of 102 East 124th Street was searched last night at Police Headquarters, after being arrested on a charge of grand larceny in misappropriating funds advanced to him by Anna Dougherty of 2,093 Lexington Avenue, a subpoena ordering his appearance as a witness for the defense in the Gould separation case to-day was found on him.

The man refused to tell in what way he is connected with the case, De Lancey Nicoll said that as far as he could remember he had never heard of Mahoney.

Miss Dougherty says she gave Mahoney $715.50 on May 27 to assist him in purchasing a saloon on the northeast corner of Lenox Avenue and 126th Street.

GUGGENHEIM DEFENDS MORSE.

Says Imprisoned Banker Is More Sinned Against Than Sinning.

Before sailing for Europe on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie yesterday Isaac Guggenheim said he thought prosperity was here to stay and that the business outlook had never been brighter.

Mr. Guggenheim went on to observe that in his opinion Charles W. Morse, the convicted banker, now in the Tombs, was more sinned against than sinning, and that Morse had been "persecuted" until it had resulted in his downfall. Asked if it was not true that he himself had lost money through transactions with Morse Mr. Guggenheim said:

"Yes, I did lose money through him, but that hasn't destroyed my confidence in him. If I branded every man through whom I have lost money as a crook the city would be full of crooks, I suppose. Others have lost money through Morse, like Charles Schwab for instance, but they, like me, believe in the man. In many instances he has made restitution, paying dollar for dollar, and I hope that he will be given a fair show."

BUILDING CODE NEAR THE DUELING CODE

Aldermen Doull and Kenneally in a War of Epithets at a Public Hearing.

ALMOST COME TO BLOWS

Friends Intercede at the Close of the Session to Prevent a Personal Conflict.

The "shorter and uglier word" was bandied back and forth at the Building Code revision hearing yesterday in a lively manner. "Dirty grafter," "base calumniator," and various other terms which can only be expressed in print by dots and dashes also were cast about recklessly. The contestants were Alderman William P. Kenneally, Chairman of the Aldermen's Building Committee, and Alderman Reginald S. Doull, leader of the minority of the Revision Commission. That blows were not struck was the marvel of the affair to every one who witnessed the altercation. The hearing adjourned and the men separated, however, without a physical conflict.

Later in the day "Little Tim" Sullivan and the other Tammany leaders of the board censured both Aldermen for the exhibition they had afforded the throng of builders, engineers, architects, and property owners who were present at the hearing.

Mr. Doull threatened to bring up the charge made by Kenneally that he had "held a man up" for $500 before the session of the board. He was persuaded not to do this, however, and no direct cognizance of the matter was taken by the board.

Kenneally represents Charles F. Murphy's home district in the board, and, as a member of the majority of the Revision Commission, was one of the most ardent advocates of the provisions of the proposed new code, while Mr. Doull has fought long and hard for the Roebling Construction Company, of which Richard Croker, Jr., is Secretary, and for the minority report in general. He and Kenneally have been at loggerheads continually since the hearings on the code started.

Battalion Chief Beggin of the Fire Department was talking when the trouble began. He appeared to oppose the provision of the code requiring the installation of a certain type of stand pipe in office buildings and other clauses. Mr. Kenneally asked him several questions and Mr. Doull joined in. The Chairman did not seem to like the interference, and objected. Both were talking at once, when Mr. Doull was heard to shout: "I have a right to ask what questions I please, and I don't intend to be interrupted either." He then insisted on having the Chief state what in his opinion is the best method of fighting a fire.

"A two-year-old child would know that the best way to fight a fire is to squirt water on it," interrupted Mr. Kenneally.

"Possibly," retorted Mr. Doull, "but a two-year-old child would not have the dishonesty to present a code like this."

"As far as that goes, we all know you," retorted Mr. Kenneally.

"What do you mean by that?" shouted Mr. Doull.

"Do you want me to explain?"

"I most certainly do, and I will compel you to, too."

"I'll explain this afternoon."

"Yes, and you may have to in court."

"How about the $500? While we are in the explaining line, suppose you explain that $500 you held a man up for?" exclaimed Mr. Kenneally.

"You're a base calumniator," shouted Mr. Doull. Then there was a rapid-fire exchange of epithets.

"Anyway, I don't hold a contract with the city through a dummy company," Mr. Doull was heard to shout just before the excitement subsided. This reference was to the Union Novelty Company, of which a newsdealer at Third Avenue and Fourteenth Street, named Morris, is the head. The company, it has been asserted, holds the contract for the expenditure of the greater part of the $20,000 appropriated by the board for the Queensboro Bridge celebration. The talk raised over this caused three men to resign from the Aldermen's committee on the carnival.

Things went along smoothly after this until Mr. Kenneally arose to announce an adjournment.

"Just a minute," shouted Mr. Doull, "You accused me of holding up a man for $500, and I demand a public explanation right here and now."

"You'll get it all right," retorted Mr. Kenneally. "I'll bring the man down here and prove it."

"If you bring Joe Morris down here I'll send him to State prison, and you after him," shouted Mr. Doull, livid with rage. "You're a gratuitous, willful, and malicious liar."

Mr. Kenneally adjourned the meeting, and every one rushed up to the front of the room, as it was clear that something lively was likely to follow. The two men were close together, and but for the interference of friends they would have come to blows. Mr. Doull was heard above the uproar, shouting, "You're a damned liar, and you know it."

The hearing will continue to-morrow afternoon.

B'RITH ABRAHAM OFFICERS.

Grand Master Dorf Is Re-elected—Zionist Flag Not Displayed.

The Order of B'rith Abraham, now holding its annual convention at the New Star Casino, in East 107th Street, spent much of yesterday in the election of officers. Late last night this result was announced:

Grand Master—Samuel Dorf, New York; Deputies—Mayer Schoenfeld, New York; David Grody, Syracuse; Emil Mantel, Indianapolis; Grand Secretary—Leonard Leisersohn, New York; Grand Treasurer—Barnet Friedman, New York; Secretary Endowment Committee—Oscar Wiener, New York; Treasurer Endowment Committee—Samuel Kanrich, New York; Chairman Endowment Committee—Simon I. Kopelman, New York; Chairman Finance Committee—George Sachs, New York.

David Trautman and Elias Zuckerman of New York were made Chairmen of the Committees on Appeals and State of the Order, respectively. Jacob H. Schiff sent a telegram of regret that important appointments made his absence necessary. An attempt to order the Zionist flags displayed in the convention hall was negatived by Grand Master Dorf.

WORLD'S LARGEST DRY DOCK.

Government Awards $1,760,000 Contract for One in Hawaii.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Contracts for what is destined to be the largest dry dock in the world were awarded by the Navy Department to-day, when Secretary Meyer accepted the bid of the San Francisco Bridge Company for the construction of the dry dock at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. The masonry and cement part of the big structure is to cost $1,760,000, and the finishing work necessary to complete it will run the cost even higher.

When it is ready for the reception of vessels, the dock will accommodate the largest of the battleships and have room to spare. It will be able to take in a complete flotilla of torpedo craft, or two cruisers at the same time. The dock is 620 feet long and 140 feet wide outside the coping, and it will be equipped with the most modern appliances for repairing the vessels of the navy.

Plans for an elaborate system of defenses for the harbor have been drawn, and work is to proceed at once, keeping pace with the construction of the dock.

Fine for Unlicensed Dentist.

Alfred Taylor, owner of three dental establishments, one at 387 Canal Street, one in Harlem, and one in Flushing, pleaded guilty yesterday in Special Sessions to practicing dentistry without a license and was sentenced to pay a fine of $500. He admitted it was his second offense.

SUGAR WORKERS SEEK DELAY.

Fear Trial Now, They Say, in the Present Inflamed State of Public Feeling.

Counsel for the seven former employes of the Sugar Trust who have been indicted in connection with the sugar weighing frauds on the Havemeyer & Elder piers in Brooklyn are endeavoring to get Henry L. Stimson, the special counsel retained by the Government to prosecute the sugar cases, to consent to a postponement of their trial on the ground that at present the public mind is too much stirred up by the recent settlement of the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company's $30,000,000 suit and its attendant developments to make it possible for these defendants to have a fair trial. The trial has been set down for to-morrow before Judge Holt in the United States Circuit Court.

The attorneys for the seven accused men and Mr. Stimson will accordingly appear before Judge Holt to-morrow morning to take up the question of an adjournment for six months or some such period. Mr. Stimson and his associate in the case, W. T. Dennison, have completed their case and are anxious to have the trial over before the close of the June term of the court. It is hardly likely that they will consent to an adjournment.

The defendants are Oliver Spitzer, who was Superintendent of the Havemeyer & Elder piers; Jean M. Voelker, Thomas Kehoe, Edward A. Boyle, J. R. Coyle, J. M. Halligan, Jr., and Patrick J. Hennessy. Although no responsible official of the Sugar Trust now living has been connected with the weighing frauds in the evidence that the Government has adduced, it was shown in the trial of the Sugar Trust itself that these men, while in its employ, received each week a certain bonus over the regular salary that was marked on the outside of their pay envelopes and was credited to them on the company's books.

WISE AND WICKERSHAM CONFER

Reticence in Washington Over the Expected Battle with Sugar Trust.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—United States District Attorney Henry A. Wise of New York conferred to-day with Attorney General Wickersham. It is believed they went over the Sugar Trust investigation, since Mr. Wickersham has been devoting most of his time for the last week to a close study of a mass of documentary evidence in connection with the case.

The supposition is that the department wishes to utilize all of the Government's legal machinery in New York to deduce further evidence, in the collection of which two special agents of the department are now at work there. Officials of the department declined to-night to discuss Mr. Wise's visit or to admit that he was summoned here. Mr. Wise left for New York late this afternoon, immediately after the conclusion of the conference.

LEUPP QUITS INDIAN BUREAU.

President Taft Regrets the Commissioner Is in Ill Health.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Francis E. Leupp, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, submitted his resignation to-day, and it was accepted by President Taft with a note of regret. Mr. Leupp has been in poor health for some time, and when the Taft Administration came into power sought to resign. The President, however, prevailed upon him to remain in office until certain affairs in the Bureau of Indian Affairs were completed. These have been disposed of, and Mr. Leupp felt that he had earned a rest. The President, in accepting his resignation, wrote Mr. Leupp to-day:

> My Dear Mr. Leupp: Secretary Ballinger has handed me your letter of resignation as Commissioner of Indian Affairs. In accepting your resignation I wish to express my appreciation of your indefatigable labors in advancing the interests of the Indian Service, and my regret that the condition of your health impels you to withdraw from further active connection therewith.
>
> I sincerely trust that your relief from the responsibilities of this position will fully enable you to regain your health, and with the kindest regards and best wishes I am, very sincerely yours,
>
> WILLIAM H. TAFT.

Robert G. Valentine, Deputy Commissioner under Mr. Leupp, will succeed to the place. The President already has announced his appointment.

NECK BROKEN BY HIS AUTO.

Contractor Brintwall of Binghamton Killed Near Owego.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., June 15.—Charles J. Brintnall, a contractor of this city, was instantly killed when his automobile overturned shortly before 6 o'clock this evening about two miles east of Owego.

Mr. Brintnall, G. Max Ricks, and George A. Quick, with Mr. Brintnall's chauffeur, Harry Pearsall, were in the car. They were going to Owego for dinner, when Mr. Brintnall, who was driving, turned out to avoid a bad place in the road. He was unable to bring the car back into the road, and it went through a board fence and into a deep ditch beside the Lackawanna Railroad track.

Ricks and Quick jumped and were uninjured. Pearsall was thrown out, but was not badly hurt.

The car turned bottom side up, pinning Mr. Brintnall underneath, the back of the front seat resting on his neck, which was broken. He was able to murmur: "Lift the car off," and died almost immediately.

Mr. Brintnall was about 36 years of age and unmarried. He was the manager of a large construction company that recently completed a large contract for the Lake Shore Road near Sharon, Penn.

AUTO CRASH IN MOUNTAINS.

Car Runs Into a Wagon and a Little Girl Is Seriously Hurt.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHOOLEY'S MOUNTAIN, N. J., June 15.—Laurence Stephens, who lives in the mountains near here, was the victim of an automobile crash late on Saturday night as he was driving home from the village. His little daughter was stunned—he thought killed—and he, half dazed with shock, had one of his ears nearly torn off.

In spite of his own severe injuries, Stephens placed the limp form of his daughter in the wagon, a rear wheel of which had been torn off in the collision, and managed to get home. The child now lies in a critical condition. The accident happened late at night, and he has not the faintest idea of who is responsible for it. In the darkness the autoists sped away without even slowing up to see if harm had been done.

More than half of the way home, which was largely uphill, Stephens had fairly to hold up the end of the wagon, so as to enable his horse to pull the load. He was weak and almost fainting with loss of blood when he reached his house.

INTO WATER WITH AUTO.

Machine Goes to the Bottom, but Its Driver Gets Clear.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 15.—An automobile driven by Charles Stubley of Newburg plunged off the ferryboat Brinckerhoff into the Hudson River at Highland opposite this city this evening. Stubley drove the machine on the ferryboat toward the bow end. Instead of putting on his brake he threw on the high speed. The machine tore through the iron gates of the boat and plunged into the river.

Stubley was unable to free himself in time to jump, and he was carried far under the surface with the machine. Under water he managed to extricate himself from his seat and came to the surface, where he was fished out of the river by deckhands. Elmer Manney, his mechanician, who rode with him, jumped to the deck of the boat before the machine went into the water. Neither man was injured, but the car is still at the bottom of the river.

CAST OFF, SHE SAYS, LIKE AN OLD SHOE

Miss Sinclair Tells What She Did for Laird, Whom Now She Is Suing for Breach of Promise.

HER LETTER OF PROTEST

The Wife Whom Laird Deserted Miss Sinclair to Wed Is Attending the Trial of the Suit.

Miss Cora Sinclair was the principal witness yesterday in Justice Amend's part of the Supreme Court in her suit against Samuel S. Laird, Jr., said to be a member of the shoe manufacturing firm of James W. Bannister & Co. of Newark, N. J., seeking to recover $50,000 for alleged breach of promise of marriage.

She testified that after he had asked her to be his wife he told her that they would have to wait until the death of his father. She told him of her history.

"After our first conversation about getting married," she said, "I told him that I had made my living by sewing, and that I was obliged to stop on the doctor's orders. I had been ill, and the doctor told me that continual leaning over would throw me into consumption.

"When I told him how I had made my living after that, and that I had no other way of getting along," she continued, "he said, 'Don't talk about that. It hurts you and it hurts me. I will try and make you happy.'"

"Was the subject ever referred to again?" asked her counsel.

"No, never," replied Miss Sinclair, after a moment's thought.

Her letter to Laird after he had broken the alleged engagement was produced and the witness identified it as one written him Sept. 26, 1907, replying to one she received from him. The letter read:

> My Dear Sam: Your letter received. You say it will be a surprise to me. It is more than a surprise. You must be crazy to write me such a letter. I want an explanation. Something has changed you since you went away, as all was love the night you left me, and you asked me to write you every day. You have the nerve to tell me you are in love with the dearest girl in the world. It is not so long ago that you wrote and spoke those very words to me. I can freshen your memory with a little more than you think.
>
> I don't believe your story about a girl. If you want to leave me, why don't you come to me like a man and talk it over? You cannot expect to live with me for eight years and then throw me over without a cent, and the rent due on the first. You know I have not a soul to go to. * * * I was a fool to put up with a drunkard. I went through trouble for you, nursed you night and day, and helped you to find the people that ran over you. You ask me to look at this in a sensible way and we can then be happy. You say "send my things at once to my home, I am through with you," just as you would say "throw those shoes away—I don't want them any more." If you want them you can have them by coming for them yourself, and then perhaps we can come to an understanding. Now, you can do as you like, but if you treat me fairly I will do the same. But if, on the other hand, you are looking for trouble you will get more than you want. Answer at once and remember I insist on seeing you.
>
> CORA.

The witness testified to meeting the brothers of Laird and an uncle, John Laird, who, she says, was told by his nephew that she was the girl he was to marry.

Mr. Laird denies that he ever promised to marry Miss Sinclair. He was married to Miss Lillian G. Hayes of Philadelphia in September, 1907. She is in attendance at the trial.

Lawyer's Fee, $60,453.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—One of the largest fees ever granted to a Washington attorney, $60,453, was to-day awarded by the Probate Court to Holmes Conrad, former Solicitor General of the United States, for services in connection with obtaining a judgment from the Supreme Court of the United States allowing the claim of the heirs of Joseph Parrish of $181,358 for ice furnished to the Union Army during the civil war. Because of this and other attorneys' fees and debts the two heirs received but $19,848 of the judgment.

be tried for an offense for which he has not been indicted.

Justice Fitzgerald dismissed Mr. Jacoby's motion, and then an adjournment was taken.

Mrs. Cleveland Testifies.

Immediately after recess Mrs. Cleveland was called. She had been in attendance all morning in the Criminal Court Building, escorted by Mr. Hastings. She wore a mourning cloth dress, a black jacket with silk revers, and a flat black hat with a long veil thrown back from it. As she came in from the side entrance to the courtroom Justice Fitzgerald rose to receive her. Among those present to hear her testify were Dr. John W. Finley, Dr. Austin G. Flint, and Richard Watson Gilder.

Mrs. Cleveland answered the questions put to her in a voice so low that it was difficult for the jury to catch what she said, but there was no hesitation in what she had to say. The first questions of Mr. Nott were formal. He brought out that she was the widow of Grover Cleveland, former President of the United States, and had been married to him in June, 1886. Mr. Cleveland died on June 24, 1908.

Five checks and four letters were then handed to her, and she identified them as being in Mr. Cleveland's writing. Then a slip of paper containing a signature, which was inclosed between two pieces of glass, was handed up to her.

"Where did you see that piece of paper for the first time?" Mr. Nott asked her.

"I suppose it's the piece I saw in THE TIMES office," was her reply.

Q.—And did you subsequently see that anywhere else? A.—Yes; at Dr. Bryant's office.

Q.—Dr. Bryant was the family physician of President Cleveland? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—And on those occasions did you examine it carefully? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Will you state to the jury whether you also saw that piece of paper before the Grand Jury of the County of New York? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—And you examined it before you went into the Grand Jury room? A.—I think I did.

Q.—Now, will you look at that piece of paper and state whether that is the handwriting of President Cleveland? A.—I do not consider that it is.

Q.—Have you any doubt on that subject? A.—Very strongly.

Q.—I say, have you any doubt as to whether or not it is in his handwriting? A.—I am very sure it is not.

Her Doubts After Publication.

Mr. Jacoby objected to Mrs. Cleveland being asked to give any reasons for her opinion. He was then allowed to cross-examine her.

Q.—You have no way of positively identifying the glass as the same you held in THE TIMES office? A.—Except by my eyes.

Q.—Was this in a glass case the first time you saw it? A.—No.

Q.—Who was present? A.—Mr. Miller of THE TIMES, Mr. Reick of THE TIMES, and Mr. Hastings.

The date of this interview Mrs. Cleveland fixed as some time in September after the article had been published. She stated that her attention had been first called to the article by a friend, who had seen an advertisement of it in THE TIMES before it appeared.

Q.—You came to New York prior to the publication? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you ever have an interview with Mr. Hastings about the article prior to publication? A.—I had one interview over the telephone. I never talked to him about it, that I remember.

Q.—When did you give Mr. Hastings authority to state that the article was genuine? A.—I did not.

Q.—Who else was present in THE TIMES office when you talked with Mr. Hastings, Mr. Miller, and Mr. Reick? A.—Nobody, except possibly a clerk.

Q.—Did you have any conversation with other people about this article? A.—A good many—Dr. Bryant, President Finley, Mr. Richard Watson Gilder, and John G. Carlisle. I did so on several different occasions, after the article was published.

Mr. Jacoby then handed Mrs. Cleveland a memorandum of a telegram. As he did so Mr. Nott pointed out that the defense was now making Mrs. Cleveland their witness. The telegram read:

> N. Y. Times and Boston Herald:
>
> I have just learned that you expect to publish on Sunday an article purporting to be by Mr. Cleveland. I doubt its genuineness, and advise you to consult my co-executor, Mr. F. S. Hastings, 80 Broadway, N. Y., before publication.

This was sent about Aug. 28, the Friday before publication. After it had been sent Mrs. Cleveland talked with Mr. Hastings over the telephone. Of this conversation the witness said:

"I do not remember everything I said to him. I said it was a misunderstanding. I do not remember authorizing him to write to THE TIMES to say there had been a misunderstanding."

Mr. Hastings's Indorsement.

A letter written to THE TIMES by Mr. Hastings on Aug. 29 was then produced by Mr. Nott at the request of Mr. Jacoby, but on Mr. Nott's objection was not submitted to the jury. This letter, which will appear later, was as follows:

> Indian, Harbor, Greenwich, Conn.,
> Aug. 29, 1908.
>
> To the Editor of The New York Times:
>
> Dear Sir: I have examined the signature submitted to me by Mr. Ybarra and compared it with others of Mr. Cleveland's, and believe that the one submitted by Mr. Ybarra is genuine. I have talked with Mrs. Cleveland since she telegraphed you yesterday. Her telegram was sent you under a misapprehension, and she authorizes me to say that the agreement with Mr. Brandenburg is valid. I have no reason to believe that the article furnished you by Mr. Brandenburg purporting to have been written by Mr. Cleveland is not genuine. I am sending you a signature of Mr. Cleveland in order that you may compare it with the one submitted by Mr. Brandenburg. Yours very truly. F. S. HASTINGS.

Unauthorized, Mrs. Cleveland Says.

After refreshing her memory with this letter Mrs. Cleveland said: "I did not authorize him to say there was a misunderstanding and that the article was genuine. I authorized him to state that there was a misunderstanding."

Q.—What do you mean by that? A.—I did not know in the beginning that the article that Mr. Brandenburg claimed to have was the same on that THE TIMES was going to publish. The misunderstanding was between the article he claimed to have and the article that they were going to publish.

Q.—You knew that Mr. Cleveland had written and had published in The Herald an article, did you not? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Do you know, whether or not, of your own knowledge, that while he was writing that article or about the time it was ready for publication, that Mr. Cleveland had any communication with Mr. Brandenburg. A.—Yes; I do know that he did.

Q.—You know, then, that Mr. Brandenburg had seen Mr. Cleveland about some article? A.—I know that some one had. I never heard him refer to him by name.

Q.—Did you know that it was the same man that had interviewed him on The Herald article—to identify Mr. Brandenburg? A.—I did not know.

Q.—Do you know whether or not the party who had the interview was the party who had The Herald article? A.—I only knew of The Herald article.

Questioned as to any communications she had had with Brandenburg, Mrs. Cleveland admitted receiving a letter from him early in August. Prompted by the defendant, counsel asked if she had ever had a telephone talk at Princeton with Brandenburg, but this she could not remember.

Mr. Jacoby offered in evidence Brandenburg's letter to the witness, but on the objection of Mr. Nott that it was irrelevant Justice Fitzgerald ruled that for the present it should only be marked for identification.

In redirect examination by Mr. Nott, Mrs. Cleveland declared she had never authorized Mr. Hastings to state that she thought either the article or the signature genuine, but she admitted to Mr. Jacoby that she did not see the signature till some time after publication. She was then excused and left the court immediately.

Purchase of the Article.

Charles M. Lincoln, Sunday editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES, then took the stand. He said he had had a business acquaintance with Brandenburg for about ten years, and that Brandenburg brought the Cleveland article to him about ten days before publication.

The typewritten copy of the article was shown him by Mr. Nott, and he identified it and also the signature, purporting to be that of Mr. Cleveland. After a good deal of sparring between counsel he testified that he believed this was the signature which he had cut off the copy before he handed it to Mr. Reick.

In cross-examination Mr. Jacoby tried to make Mr. Lincoln acknowledge that there had been originally another page preceding the typewritten ones.

"There might have been," said the witness, "but I don't recall it."

To support this he pointed to some writing on the first page, which he said he had put there himself, but not in the presence of the defendant. Mr. Jacoby tried to get the witness to admit that the article identified might have been only a copy of the original, but Mr. Lincoln was sure that he had put the writing on the first page of the original.

Counsel then suggested that the Cleveland article had been handed to Mr. Lincoln in a rubber band or an envelope, along with an article by Andrew Carnegie and an article called "A Coon Fantasy." Mr. Lincoln would not admit this. He said he could not remember whether Brandenburg had left with him the other articles at the same time as the Cleveland article, as he called on him several times.

The Contract with Hastings.

In redirect examination by Mr. Nott the witness stated that the signature purporting to be Mr. Cleveland's was cut off the article about a week before publication. Brandenburg showed him a contract signed by himself and Mr. Hastings.

"Do you object to this form of identification?" asked Mr. Nott of Mr. Jacoby.

"I'll put it in evidence myself if Mr. Nott doesn't," replied counsel for the defendant. "It'll help my case."

"I'm not afraid of that," rejoined Mr. Nott.

Mr. Lincoln told how Brandenburg represented that Mr. Cleveland had agreed to write three articles during the political campaign, and that his illness had prevented him from writing more than one.

Q.—How much did he want? A.—I told him to leave it with us; we would examine it and give him an answer.

Q.—When next did you see Brandenburg? A.—Two or three days after I accepted the article. He didn't then say anything about the signature, or whether it had been written in his presence.

Q.—You accepted the article. At what price? A.—Five hundred dollars.

Mr. Lincoln stated that Brandenburg had asked for the return of the copy, as he wished to publish the article in book form.

"Was the article submitted to anybody else?" asked Mr. Nott.

"Yes, to Mr. Hastings, executor of the estate of Mr. Cleveland."

"Did you submit it personally?"

"No," answered the witness.

The article, according to Mr. Lincoln, was submitted to Mr. Reick before purchase, soon after he (Mr. Lincoln) had seen Brandenburg. The rest of his examination was taken up with the identification of two corrections made in Mr. Lincoln's own handwriting on the manuscript and paragraph marks and certain typographical corrections which also appeared on it.

The court then adjourned until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock. This morning the interrupted murder trial will be resumed.

MESSAGE FROM TAFT ON THE INCOME TAX

Will Advocate Tax on Corporations and Constitutional Amendment Plan.

EXPECTS DEMOCRATIC HELP

Inasmuch as the Party's Platform Advocates Similar Step—Confers with Cabinet and Senators.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—From apparently certain information about the Senate it was learned to-day that the President will send to Congress to-morrow a special message advocating the adoption of a tax on corporation earnings and a resolution submitting the income tax constitutional amendment to the States, unless the message, which is said to be now ready, is held over until Thursday, when the House will also be in session.

The message will be a complete discussion of the resolutions for the measures suggested as opposed to the immediate adoption of an income tax. The insurgents to-night admit that the open move of the President destroys what little chances of success his known support of the Aldrich committee had left.

In one respect only do the insurgents feel more reconciled to-day than they did when the news of the President's position first became known. They thought then that the only concession they were forcing from the committee was a 2 per cent. tax on corporate dividends with a probable limitation of that tax to two years. To-day they ascertained that in the face of their bitter comments on the tactics of the President and Mr. Aldrich the tax will be on the net incomes of corporations, and that it will be levied without any time limit.

Wants Power Over Corporations.

The President discussed his message at some length at to-day's meeting of the Cabinet. The point in the proposed legislation affecting corporations that especially interests the President is the definite power such a tax will give the Government to inquire into the transactions of corporations, their capitalization and their issues of bonds and stocks along the line of the inquisitorial powers the Roosevelt Administration steadily labored for in regard to inter-State railroads.

Aside from the advantages of this power of investigation, the President argues against the imposition of an income tax that would necessarily either force the Supreme Court to reverse itself as to the constitutionality of the tax or to decide again that the tax is unconstitutional. To the President's mind a reversal by the Supreme Court of its own comparatively recent decision would be the greater of the two evils, for he believes that the popular respect for the courts—already at a low ebb—would be materially diminished.

The constitutional amendment will obviate the necessity of any reopening of the case on its constitutional merits, while a close adviser of the President said this afternoon that, in his opinion, the amendment would be certain of passage by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the States.

Outlines His Plan to Senators.

Before taking up the subject of his message with the Cabinet the President went over it at length with prominent Senators. At the White House last night there was an important gathering, and the President stated the general line his message would take. Before that meeting he also had conversations with certain of the more stubborn of the income tax supporters, though it is known that some of them at least are determined to fight to the last against accepting what they believe is nothing but a sop from the organization.

Even before it was generally understood this afternoon that the President would declare against the income tax in a special message it was seen that the organization would almost certainly be successful. Senator Culberson, the minority leader, said to-day that the Democrats would support the constitutional amendment as a separate proposition, and even the real income taxers dislike the idea of seeming to fear to send the amendment to the country.

Situation in Aldrich's Hands.

In the compromise on which Senator Aldrich finally decided, and in which he has the full support of the President, the insurgents and regulars alike see an extraordinary instance of Mr. Aldrich's abilities as a parliamentary leader. He will probably introduce the constitutional amendment first, forcing the Democrats, who have such an amendment proposed in their platform, and most of the insurgents to vote for it.

With the income tax tangle practically straightened out to the satisfaction of the committee, attention is already turning to what the joint conference on the tariff may bring forth. Much is believed to depend on the personnel of the House Conference Committee members. There will either be from each House five Republicans and three Democrats or four Republicans and three Democrats.

In the Senate the rule is fixed that the managers for the conference shall be the ranking members of the committee in charge of the bill. That will put, in case there are to be five Republican Senators, Messrs. Aldrich, Burrows, Penrose, Hale, and Cullom on the conference. Mr. Cullom is the only one in that group with any revisionist tendencies, and they are limited to hides and coal.

There is no rule, however, for the appointment of the House managers. A prominent regular Senator said this afternoon that the House conferrees would be selected by the Speaker, Mr. Aldrich, and the President, and that statement is taken to mean that every effort will be made to select a conference committee that will quickly come to an agreement.

The real issue in this regard hinges around the status of Mr. Hill of Connecticut, and his reputation as a fighter has directed Mr. Aldrich's attention to him in an effort to keep him from the conference. Should he be appointed the insurgents will feel that they at least have some hopes left them in regard to the textile schedules with which Mr. Hill is particularly conversant.

In order of seniority the five Republicans from the Ways and Means Committee would be Payne, Dalzell, McCall, Hill, and Boutelle. Mr. Payne and Dalzell are, of course, the fathers of protection in the House. Mr. McCall is nominally a revisionist, though he took little part in the formation of the original bill. Mr. Boutelle, though an ardent supporter of the Speaker, was the inventor of the term "ultimate consumer," and he is known to favor revision theoretically.

BIG SCARE, BUT NO THIEVES.

Residents of West Seventy-second Street Bring Out Reserves.

Residents of the block between Seventy-first and Seventy-second Streets and Broadway and West End Avenue had a burglar scare after midnight this morning which brought out the reserves of the West Sixty-eighth Street Police Station. The police came to the conclusion after half an hour's search that the only burglars that had visited the district existed in the imagination of timid persons.

The trouble began when J. D. Thomas, who lives at 271 West Seventy-first Street, quietly opened his front door and motioned to Special Patrolman James McLaughlin, who was on duty in the street. Mr. Thomas told McLaughlin that he heard burglars on his roof. Another special policeman, John Bohen, was summoned, and the three went to the roof. The policemen are heavy men, and they made considerable noise as they tramped to and fro on the tin roof looking for the burglars.

They were preparing to go downstairs again, when a woman's screams were heard from No. 269, which is next door to Mr. Thomas's house. The policemen grasped their clubs and sped down the street. They found Mrs. Bethune at a window shouting for help at the top of her voice. She said that she had heard burglars on her roof, but she had probably mistaken Bohen and his comrade for the thieves.

At all events the search went on with renewed enthusiasm, but it could not have lasted much longer if William Volkhart, a real estate broker, who lives in the rear of Mr. Thomas, at 256 West Seventy-second Street, hadn't heard the racket made by the thief chasers and telephoned to the West Sixty-eighth Street Police Station that he was being bothered by a desperate band which made no attempt to rob quietly.

WANTS AMERICAN STYLES.

Parisian Gowns Make Cripples and Coquettes, Says Mr. Paull.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 15.—At the dinner of the United Ladies' Tailors' Association of America Samuel Paull, Grand Master of the association, announced himself a foe of the Empire and sheath gowns. He wanted America to lead in fashions and New York to become a fashion centre.

"It is a fact," said he, "that the United States is the leader in a great many fields, such as business, sciences and otherwise, and there is absolutely no valid reason why the Americans cannot lead in this particular instance likewise. Does this country lack civilization?"

Mr. Paull said that a fight against Paris was a necessity. Paris styles were making of American women cripples and coquettes. Of the sheath gown Mr. Paull said:

"Should a woman happen to want to sit down, she has either one of two choices, either to unbutton the buttons, or she must have a force of three men to sit her down."

Mr. Paull claimed the "hipless" gown for America.

"At a banquet," said he, "held recently at the Waldorf-Astoria, where many rich and fashionable women attended, a resolution was passed by them recommending and urging all women to wear plain tailor-made gowns and to dispense with the nonsense and waste of time that these twisted Parisian gowns caused. It was urged that they should spend this time on more important topics than the styles."

The speaker urged that his hearers work on his suggestions.

"This will save the disgrace," he said "a respectable woman must feel when wearing those twisted and good for nothing gowns created by the Parisians."

TO HELP OPPRESSED ALIENS.

Jewish Relief Organized to Care for Newly Arrived Strangers.

The incorporation of the Jewish Women's Relief Association was approved by Supreme Court Justice Guy yesterday, the object of which is to "voluntarily extend general relief to those needy and unfortunates who may find themselves in the city, strangers to language, manners, and customs; to furnish temporary relief while aiding them to obtain work, and particularly to voluntarily provide for the influx of those who are being driven from foreign lands by oppression and by injustice, and who turn to the United States as their only refuge for safety and freedom."

The work of the organization will be principally confined to New York City: the number of Directors will be nineteen. Among the incorporators are Lillian Rose Greenberg, 12 East Eighty-seventh Street; Rebecca A. Honor, 51 East 122d Street; Judith Lewin-Epstein, 1,036 Trinity Avenue, the Bronx; Luba Gamson, 39 West Twenty-second Street, and Sophia Harvitt of 182 Hooper Street, Brooklyn.

HURL BLAZING BOTTLE INTO MAYOR'S HOME

Bellefontaine (O.) Official Issued Warrants in Black Hand Cases Last Week.

BLOODHOUNDS ON TRAIL

Niven Talks of His Local Option Foes—Black Hand Suspects' Bail Increased.

BELLEFONTAINE, Ohio, June 15.—What is believed to have been an attempt to assassinate Mayor William R. Niven and burn his residence in this city was made early to-day, when a blazing bottle of kerosene was thrown through a window of his home.

The bottle was wrapped with rags saturated with oil. The curtains, carpets, and furniture in the room were set on fire, but the Fire Department put out the blaze. The Mayor was away from home at the time.

Mayor Niven was elected on a "dry" ticket two years ago. He is a well-known Democratic politician and a member of the State Committee. Two policemen standing near his home heard the crash, saw the blaze, and saw a man running away from the scene, but they thought it was some one going to give an alarm and did not pursue him. Bloodhounds, however, were put upon the trail later.

The Mayor doubts that the bottle was thrown by members of the Black Hand, though he issued warrants in the Black Hand cases last week. The Mayor believes that he made many enemies by his enforcement of the local option and other laws.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 15.—Postal Inspector E. F. Hutches, who arrived here to-day with Inspector R. M. C. Hosford, says that investigation shows the Black Hand situation to be more serious than was at first thought.

In compliance with this view United States District Attorney Day had the bond of Salvatore Lima increased to $5,000, and the bond of Sebastian Lima, his cousin and brother-in-law, arrested last night at Marion, was fixed at the same figure. They, with Joseph Batagalia and Salvatore Rizzo, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Gaines to-day on the new charge of conspiracy to defraud by the use of the mails. They pleaded not guilty, and the preliminary hearing was set for June 28.

"The evidence turning up in papers seized by the Inspectors makes the case appear more serious every day," said Inspector Hutches. "Complications have been uncovered. It was bad enough to begin with. The Government's case is being constantly strengthened."

The charge of conspiracy to defraud carries a greater penalty than the prior charge of using the mails to defraud, and the Government, it is said, will not be required to prove the consummation of the act. Hutches said that both charges will be pushed.

Attorney Day announced that a meeting of all the Inspectors working on the case will be held in Cleveland the last of the week.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 15.—Two strange Italians who came into Columbus yesterday were arrested to-day at the instance of the Post Office authorities as Black Hand suspects. They were taken to the Post Office and examined, but were released subsequently. They were well armed.

TO INSPECT ATLANTIC FORTS.

Secretary Dickinson and Gen. Wood Plan a Tour of Them.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 15. — Secretary Dickinson is to make a thorough personal inspection of the defenses of the Atlantic coast within the next few months. It was announced to-day that the Secretary of War has arranged to accompany Gen. Leonard Wood on a visit to the defenses of New York, Long Island Sound, Boston, and the New England coast as far north as Portland, Me. The tour of inspection will begin June 26, and the Secretary probably will not return to his desk before July 6 or 7.

Although he went into the War Department with only a scant practical understanding of the duties before him, Mr. Dickinson has commanded the admiration of the officers under him by the manner in which he already has grasped the essential facts. The inspection trips this Summer are intended to be as much in the nature of further education for the Secretary as to lead to the physical betterment of the defenses themselves.

BARS SKIMMED MILK OUT OF MANHATTAN

Court of Appeals Holds That the Law of 1893 Is Constitutional.

TO PROTECT CONSUMERS

Lawyers Have Long Been Contending That the Removal of Cream Does Not Render Milk Unwholesome.

The Court of Appeals handed down a decision yesterday of great interest to the milk producers of the State and the milk consumers of the Counties of New York and Kings. The decision holds, in effect, that the agricultural law of 1893 which prohibited the sale of skimmed milk in New York and Kings Counties, while permitting its sale in the county in which it is produced and adjacent counties, was constitutional. This reverses a previous decision of Judge Spencer of St. Lawrence County that the law was unconstitutional.

The case in which the decision was rendered was that of the State against the Liberman Dairy Company of New York. This came up before Judge O'Gorman in the Supreme Court a year ago. It was then contended that the defendant company had sold milk in New York County from which a portion of the cream had been removed. A demurrer was interposed by the attorneys for the defendant company.

The constitutionality of the sections of the agricultural law which allowed the sale of skimmed milk in counties other than New York and Kings and prohibited it in them was brought forward, and it was urged that the complaint did not constitute a cause of action. The demurrer was not sustained by the Appellate Division, but the matter went as a question of law to the Court of Appeals, which sustained the decision of the Appellate Division.

Through this decision the matter will now go back to the lower courts for trial upon its merits. It was alleged by Henry W. Bridges, the attorney who represented the Department of Agriculture of the State, that the defendant company sold, shipped, and delivered to certain customers doing business in the City, County, and State of New York certain cans of milk containing milk, from which cans the cream had been partially separated.

The attorneys for the defendant company contended that the sections of the law relating to Kings and New York Counties were unconstitutional. They set forth in their argument that "the portions of the statute under consideration cannot be sustained as a health law for the reason that the mere removal of cream from milk, incontestably, in no way affects its wholesomeness."

"It can not and will not be contended," they asserted, "that by the mere act of skimming, or the removal of cream, milk is rendered unwholesome, unhealthful, unnutritive, or adulterated."

They said that in another section the law described skimmed milk as being "clean, pure, wholesome, and unadulterated." They therefore said that the question for the court to consider was whether skimmed milk was a wholesome food.

Mr. Bridges argued that "the fact that a particular article sold may be wholesome in no way affects the right of the Legislature to prohibit the sale thereof."

"Even admitting that skimmed milk is wholesome," he argued, "and under certain conditions a proper article of food the Legislature in the exercise of its police power may forbid its sale."

Mr. Bridges said yesterday that the decision had an important bearing on the marketing of milk in New York and Kings Counties.

"The statute provides," said he, "that skimmed milk may be sold as such in the counties in which it is produced with the understanding that it is valuable as food for animals there and in adjacent counties. The prohibition in two congested counties is to protect the milk supply.

SATURDAY NIGHT IS "TUB NIGHT".
It is the night when ALL the little ones are given what the French call "The Grand Bath"—a thorough cleansing from top to toe.
In this weekly function, Ivory Soap plays an important part. A white soap, it yields a snow-white lather—a lather that cleanses but does not harm.
Ivory Soap has another advantage over most bath soaps—it floats. If you happen to drop a cake of Ivory in the bath tub, up, up it comes to the surface of the water.
There is no "free" (uncombined) alkali in Ivory Soap. That is why it will not injure the finest fabric or the most delicate skin.

MAY RAISE QUESTION OF RUIZ CASE BRIBERY

Curran to Ask More Questions If Home Secretary's Reply Is Not Satisfactory.

EXPECT STATEMENT TO-DAY

Parliamentary Investigation May Be Made if Evidence Is Adduced That Official Was Paid to Suppress Facts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 15.—Pete Curran, the Labor Party member of Parliament, said to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent to-day that he expected Mr. Gladstone, the Home Secretary, to make a statement to-morrow relative to the subject of the question he submitted with reference to the suppression of the facts in the suicide of Mrs. Ruiz.

"It is possible," said Mr. Curran, "that the statement will show that the ordinary, perfunctory notice of an inquest to be held was given, as customary, though nothing of that sort yet appears. There is an allegation that the Coroner subsequently refused to allow newspaper representatives to see the depositions which were taken by him. If the Home Secretary's statement is not satisfactorily clear on this matter, I shall have some supplementary questions to put to him.

"We shall want to know whether anything in the case suggests bribery of public officials, and whether the ability of the interested individual, whether a foreigner or not, to expend great sums to save himself from public disgrace is to be permitted in this country to prevent the publicity of crime and its attendant circumstances.

"My labor colleagues in Parliament and myself are united in feeling very strongly that this thing should be sifted to the bottom. If there appears a probability that an official accepted a bribe the affair becomes at once of the utmost gravity. Maybe an investigation by a Parliamentary committee will be ordered. To bring that about it would be necessary for me to ask leave to make a statement later, and then to move an adjournment of the House. There would have to be forty members to stand by me to carry this measure through.

"I don't know of a case of this kind having ever before arisen. While there may be no specific law requiring the entire publicity of the Coroner's proceedings, the right and custom have been recognized from time immemorial and have all the force of law. It certainly is a scandal of serious magnitude that a bargain should have been struck to keep a case of suicide from the knowledge of the public. This, I understand, is exactly what was done."

PAUL PROTESTS TO GOMEZ.

Venezuelan Envoy Says He Was Condemned Without Hearing.

CARACAS, June 15.—José de J. Paul, the Venezuelan envoy to Europe who was removed recently from the Diplomatic Service on the ground that the calling of American warships to La Guayra, for which he was responsible, was an insult to the dignity of the country, has sent the following message to President Gomez from Paris:

"I have been judged and condemned without a hearing. I protest before you, the nation, and the world against this infamous inculpation, and I request the publication of this protest."

Gen. Manuel A. Matos may be appointed to succeed Señor Paul.

It has been proposed in Congress to expropriate the property in Venezuela of former President Castro for the purpose of establishing an agricultural bank, and opposition to this proposal has brought out several heated discussions in Congress.

HUMAN SACRIFICE IN RUSSIA.

Police of Perm Investigating "Sect of the Crimson God."

ST. PETERSBURG, June 15.—Dispatches from Perm, European Russia, say the local police have begun an investigation into the "Sect of the Crimson God," the members of which are accused of human sacrifices and various other horrible practices. Repeated disappearances of people in the region where the members of the sect dwell drew suspicion to the organization, which worships a red wooden idol colored, according to the statements of the country people, with human blood. The police have located a secret grave containing the mutilated body of a man supposed to have been sacrificed, and they expect to find others.

The Ural region, of which Perm is the centre, is a breeding ground for many fanatical cults. It is a meeting place of the Pagan tribes of Asia, as well as persons who flee from Russia on account of religious persecution. These refugees have lived for centuries in the dense forests of the district, and their beliefs have developed along the most fanatical lines.

CZAR ATTACKED IN COMMONS.

Socialist Says He Is Inhuman and Should Get His Deserts.

LONDON, June 15.—William James Thorne, the, extreme Socialist member from West Ham, caused an uproar in the House of Commons this afternoon by a heated denunciation of the Emperor of Russia in connection with his proposed visit to King Edward during the Cowes regatta. Mr. Thorne shouted:

"It will be a good job if the Russian Emperor gets his deserts when he comes; he is an inhuman brute."

The Speaker's efforts to stop the speaker's abuse were ineffectual until an uproar of protests from the other members drowned his words.

KAISER OFF TO MEET CZAR.

BERLIN, June 15.—Emperor William left here this morning for Dantsic, where he will embark on the imperial yacht Hohenzollern and proceed to the Gulf of Finland to meet Emperor Nicholas of Russia. He is accompanied by Foreign Secretary von Schön and a brilliant suite.

The Czar suggested the interview, probably with the object of preparing German sensibilities for his forthcoming and more formal visits to France and England.

MADRID, June 15.—William H. Buckler, Secretary of the American Legation here, has tendered his resignation from the Diplomatic Service.

LION WOUNDS HUNTER.

Member of Selous Party Mortally Hurt in District Where Roosevelt Is.

NAIVASHA, British East Africa, June 15.—A member of the party of F. C. Selous, the noted African hunter, and George McMillan, nephew of the late Senator McMillan of Michigan, was brought in here yesterday mortally wounded by a lion.

The man's name is Williams, and he was in the service of Mr. McMillan as a secretary. The encounter with the lion occurred in the Sotik district, where the party has been shooting.

The Roosevelt party left here ten days ago for the Sotik district, but nothing has since been heard of it here.

ST. LOUIS, June 15.—C. W. Prynne, one of the managers of the McMillan estate here, identified the wounded hunter to-day as Henry C. Williams, an Englishman about 30 years old, who had attained considerable fame in Africa as a hunter and an officer of the Constabulary. Mr. Prynne, who hunted on the McMillan ranch a few years ago, said Mr. Williams had seen much service in the Basuto and other native wars of British East Africa. Mr. Prynne said the young Englishman was especially noted as a stalker of game and as a quick and sure shot, whose coolness in time of danger had often been proved.

CARDINAL ANDRIEU DEFIANT.

Refuses to Answer in Court Charges Under Separation Law.

BORDEAUX, June 15.—Cardinal Andrieu, who has been summoned to court charged with having incited a breach of the laws by the allocution he pronounced at the Cathedral on the occasion of his enthronement, has sent a letter to the Judge in which he formally refuses to appear in court to answer any charge in connection with the separation law. The Cardinal writes:

"That law became nonexistent for Catholics the minute their supreme chief, the incorruptible guardian of the morals of individuals and nations, condemned it as inimical to the property, authority, and liberty of the Church."

ENCYCLOPAEDIA SUIT UP.

More Statements About the Tangle and The London Times Sale.

The suit brought by Walter M. Jackson of Newton, Mass., against Horace E. Hooper and others of the Encyclopedia Britannica Company of England had a hearing in the New Jersey Court of Chancery in Newark yesterday. Henry W. Taft, brother of President Taft represented the encyclopedia concern, with ex-Attorney General Robert H. McCarter of New Jersey and Henry Wollman, Edward S. Leidmann, and Francis S. McGrath of New York.

The suit is brought to establish a partnership between the complainant and Hooper. A rule by the court has directed the defendants to show cause why they should not be enjoined from taking action prejudicial to the complainants, as Directors in two corporations known as the Hooper Jackson Company, Limited, an English corporation, and the Encyclopedia Britannica, an Illinois corporation. Horace E. Hooper, in answering an affidavit by Jackson, in which it is averred that they were partners, declares that they never had any agreement direct or indirect in that sense. Jackson and he had equal authority in the management of affairs, but there was no agreement of equality in other enterprises in which both were interested.

There did exist a joint general policy to act by mutual assent. If this last condition had existed, Hooper points out, Jackson would not have undertaken to discharge the Vice President of the encyclopedia company without Hooper's consent, as Jackson in his petition admits he did try to do, because Hooper was opposed to the removal. The Vice President was Harris B. Burrows.

The defendant avers further that he protested time and again against the complainants having any interest in the business and of Hinckley & Co. of Boston and the Grolier Society of New York, which he alleges were engaged in practically the same kind of business as Hooper & Jackson, Limited, and the Encyclopedia Britannica Company.

Mr. Whipple, opening for Jackson yesterday, told how the two corporations were organized to meet certain exigencies, chief of which related to the imposition of heavy takes by the British Government on the business as it had been conducted by the complainant and chief defendant under what was tantamount to a partnership agreement. In each corporation, the one organized under the laws of Illinois and the other in England, each had 49 per cent. of the capital stock.

The fact of the incorporation, Mr. Whipple declared, made no difference in the manner of conducting the business of publishing the Encyclopedia Britannica, which was the principal business of both corporations. Each partner, Mr. Whipple said, drew indiscriminately on the different bank accounts maintained by the two concerns in different banks. Up to 1904 a bank account was kept in a London bank in the name of the Encyclopedia Britannica Company, but the English tax gatherer got wind of it, and it cost the company about $50,000, whereupon the account was discontinued.

Mr. Whipple asserted incidentally that it was Mr. Jackson who defeated an arrangement to sell The London Times to Cyril Arthur Pearson, and certain associates, and succeeded instead in bringing about the sale to interests associated with Lord Northcliffe.

The present situation in the Encyclopaedia Company, Mr. Whipple explained, had been brought about through Jackson's act in apportioning part of the qualifying stock to a brother and a brother-in-law of Horace E. Hooper.

JEROME'S ADVICE SPURNED?

Zionist Dinner Speaker Makes an Apparent Criticism of His Speech.

Toastmaster H. Fromenson considerably enlivened the dinner of American Zionists in Vienna Hall, Lexington Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street, last night by remarks which many in the room took to refer to District Attorney Jerome's speech to the Order of B'rith Abraham in the same hall on the evening before.

"Not three hundred miles from here and not three centuries ago," said Mr. Fromenson, in presenting the first speaker of the evening, "a man who was not a Jew undertook to advise the Jews what they should do, and that was the reason they would not listen to him."

"He's meaning Jerome," said several, and the applause was general. Mr. Jerome was unable to make himself heard on Monday evening and addressed his remarks to the reporters instead of to his hosts.

Last night's dinner was the closing feature of the twelfth annual convention of the Zionists, the final business meeting and election of officers having been held in the afternoon. Last year's officers were re-elected, with these ten honorary Vice Presidents: Dr. S. Schechter, New York; Dr. Max Heller, New Orleans; Miss Henrietta Szold, New York; Prof. C. Pessels, San Antonio, Texas; Dr. Max L. Margolis, New York; Dr. H. Malter, New York; Dr. B. L. Leventhal, Philadelphia; Dr. S. Schaffer, Baltimore; the Rev. Masliensky, New York, and Jacob de Haas, Boston.

The convention reaffirmed the Basle programme and congratulated the Turks upon their victory for popular government, and the Turkish Jews upon their achievement of citizenship. The convention again emphasized their declaration that the intention to establish a Jewis State in Palestine is in no way antagonistic to the integrity of the Ottoman empire.

HER ACT BARS JAPAN FROM HAWAIIAN CASE

Cannot Take Up Appeal of Accused Conspirator Till Islands' Courts Have Acted.

MADE THE RULE HERSELF

Strike Leaders Appeal to Ambassador Takahira—Prisoners Admitted to Bail—Affray at Kahana Insignificant.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 15. — The State Department is watching closely the trend of events in Hawaii, but it will not have anything to do with the situation there unless the Japanese Government makes representations that its subjects cannot obtain justice. The fact that Mr. Negoro, the editor of the Japanese publication, The Jiji, has brought suit for damages against the Territorial Government simplifies the matter. In appealing to the regularly constituted tribunal, Negoro practically relieves his Government from the necessity of taking up his case until he has exhausted his own efforts or finds that he cannot get justice.

The Japanese Government, it is pointed out, cannot well appear in the affair until after the court has handed down its decision, and then only if it is convinced that justice has not been done.

The Japanese Government is barred by its own action from making any diplomatic representations in such a case until the American judicial procedure has been exhausted. A little more than three years ago the Japanese Government formally notified all the other Governments represented at Tokio that it would be unable thereafter to regard any contentious matter in respect of which a judicial remedy existed as ripe for diplomatic intervention until such remedy has been completely exhausted and a case justifying such intervention presented.

During the existence of Consular jurisdiction in Japan diplomatic intervention in "contentious matters" such as the present case in Hawaii had been the regular thing. On the abolition of extra territoriality the Japanese Government sought to have the regular judicial remedies for such cases exhausted before diplomatic intervention was resorted to, but for a number of years was not entirely successful. But after the close of the war with Russia the situation had developed to such an extent that Japan sent the formal notice.

In view of the fact that the judicial remedy in the Hawaiian case has only just been invoked, if Japan were to undertake diplomatic intervention now it would be sufficient answer for the United States to cite this Japanese note of April 8, 1906.

HONOLULU, June 15.—Strong efforts are being made by the Japanese strikers to get the Japanese Government to make an international incident of the Sheriff's forcible entry into the office of a local Japanese newspaper and the seizure of papers last Friday. Strike leaders appealed to Ambassador Takahira at Washington by cable to-day, and demanded an immediate investigation. The message recites that the Sheriff without warrant of law broke into the offices of the Jiji, arrested its editors, and seized their private papers and books, and complains of other acts of the Sheriff and Territorial authorities.

Determined efforts, it is said, are also being made to secure the influence of the political parties in Japan in the matter, and to get the leading newspapers in the empire to bring pressure to bear upon the Japanese Government to institute an inquiry into the raid and resulting arrest of Japanese subjects.

M. Negoro and the three other Japanese editors, and several others of the seventeen Japanese arrested last Saturday and yesterday on indictments growing out of the strike of sugar plantation laborers, were released on bail to-day, and their preliminary hearings were set for June 18.

The situation remained virtually unchanged to-day. No attempt was made by the striking laborers to interfere with such of their countrymen as have returned to work. Many conferences were held between the delegates from bodies of strikers from various parts of the islands, but what plans the strike leaders agreed on were not made known.

While the feeling among the Japanese, of whom there are between 6,000 and 8,000 still out, is tense, because of the arrest of some of their leaders, they have carefully refrained from any overt act that would lead the authorities to take more drastic measures.

The reported attack on a Japanese restaurant proprietor at Kahana, a distant town with which communication is difficult, for refusing to furnish a striker with food proves to have been an insignificant affair incident to the strike. The strikers turned the man who committed the assault over to the police. The strike commissary, apparently, is well supplied, and good-nature prevails among the men.

WE GAIN OUR POINT ON CHINESE LOAN

British, German, and French Bankers Notified Their Protocol Will Not Be Ratified.

AMERICA MAY PARTICIPATE

Foreign Groups Tried to Hasten Ratification in Vain—American Syndicate Proposes to Build Uruguayan Road.

PEKING, June 15.—Acting on representations made by Henry P. Fletcher, Chargé d'Affaires of the American Legation, China has agreed not to ratify the loan of $27,500,000 by British, German, and French bankers for the construction of the Hankow-Sze-chuen Railroad, for which a protocol was signed on June 6.

It is expected that this refusal, coupled with the representations made by the American Ambassadors in London, Paris, and Berlin, will result in arrangements being made in Europe for American participation in the loan.

Mr. Fletcher was in conference both yesterday and to-day with President Liang Tun-yen and other officials of the Foreign Board. His representations assumed the importance of a protest, and China agreed to notify the German, British, and French banks of her inability to ratify the loan.

The banks concerned have been making persistent efforts to hasten ratification; the German group in Berlin instructed its representative here to use every means in his power to achieve the desired end. All these efforts were in vain, and this evening the local agents sent telegraphic notification to their European principals of the success of the American representations.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Mr. Fletcher, the American Chargé d'Affaires at Peking, is acting under instructions from the State Department, based on the promise made by China to Minister Conger in 1904, that America should participate in such loans. The attitude of this Government has been that, having been notified of the readiness of American capital to take a portion of the loan, China would not attempt to avoid fulfilling its clear obligations to the United States.

The State Department is not yet prepared to make any comment on the latest advices from Peking, indicating that China, on Mr. Fletcher's representation, has agreed not to ratify the protocol providing for a loan of $27,500,000 by European bankers.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, June 15.—An American syndicate has made a proposal to construct a railroad across Uuruguay from Santa Rosa, on the Uruguay River, in the northernmost corner of the republic, to Puerto Corinilla, on the east coast, a distance of about 500 miles. The cost will be $15,000,000, and the syndicate offers to build the line without guarantees from the State.

BATH TOWEL ISSUE AGITATES Y. M. C. A.

Boarders' Supply Cut Down to Two a Week, Which Is Insufficient for Three Baths Daily.

AND SOME DO TAKE MORE

The Young Men Have Protested and Petitioned, Yet They Are Ignored—Dr. Meyers Thinks It All Trivial.

There has arisen in the Fifty-seventh Street branch of the Young Men's Christian Association a perfectly dreadful situation which bids fair completely to disrupt the customary harmony and peace which ordinarily mark the conduct of affairs in that institution. The matter has been brought to the attention of the Executive Committee, which has charge of the management of the Fifty-seventh Street branch, but without avail.

At present it remains a fact, according to the sixty-five or seventy young men who dwell in the association rooms, usually in peace, that they can no longer bathe with the freedom and comfort to which they have become used. The magnitude of the hardship can be better understood when it is known that, according to the committee which has been seeking to ameliorate conditions, most of the residents of the Fifty-seventh Street branch have been in the habit of bathing at least thrice a day—sometimes oftener.

A thoughtless management has now cut down the supply of bath towels to three a week for each man. The supply of smaller towels, two of which were formerly given to each roomer daily, has also been reduced by the simple expedient of giving each man only one. All this is according to the statements made last night to a TIMES reporter by a justly angry committee which had just visited a Turkish bath, because it had used up its supply of bath towels for the week, as the committee explained.

"The outside of the building looks like the front of a laundry," complained one of the committee. "You see, we have to wash out our own towels now and hang them out to dry. Why, if a friend calls on us for dinner, and we want to let him wash up a bit, we sometimes have to give him a pillowcase in lieu of a towel. It's just horrid of the management. I don't know what we shall do if conditions do not improve."

The committeeman went on to explain that even were the roomers to buy their own towels, the association would not launder them, so there was no hope of relief in that direction.

"We got up a petition to the Executive Committee," continued the spokesman, "asking that even if the smaller towels must be cut down, to please give us a bath towel a day. They never even paid any attention to it. It's a shame."

The Y. M. C. A. young men became doubly angry, so the committee said, when some of the statisticians of their number figured out that the saving in laundry bills amounted to $3 per year per man. Why, they would pay this sum themselves if only they might have sufficient towels. But apparently no compromise can be reached.

Dr. H. G. Meyers of 153 West Seventy-eighth Street, a member of the Executive Committee, declined hotly last night to discuss the towel problem.

"Do you mean to say that you had the audacity to come here to ask me about that?" demanded the doctor angrily. "My time is far too valuable. I'll say nothing about it."

According to the boys, the whole trouble is that no one will discuss it. But in Fifty-seventh Street the towel question ranks in interest far ahead of the tariff.

GRAVE REVEALS A MURDER.

A Weapon and Not Heart Disease Killed Mrs. Roberts.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 15.—Following the exhuming of the body of Mrs. Augusta Roberts of Columbia, Conn., from a grave in Sleepy Hollow Cemetery, at North Tarrytown, to-day, under an order of Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morschauser, at White Plains, it was said that there was no doubt that she was murdered.

Mrs. Roberts, who at one time lived at North Tarrytown, was found dead in the highway near her home in Columbia, Conn., on June 7, and it was reported that she had died of heart disease. The authorities of Connecticut later received reports that Mrs. Roberts had been heard to quarrel with some one before the body was found.

Mrs. Roberts, who was 50 years old when she was killed, left several prominent relatives in Westchester. The order for the exhumation of the body was granted by Judge Morschauser on affidavits of Coroner Fiske, Dr. Bean, and Chief of Police Egan of Columbia. The autopsy revealed that there were two large bruises on the back of the head and there had also been an internal hemorrhage near the base of the brain. The physicians reported to Assistant District Attorney Weeks at White Plains that the woman had probably been struck with a stone or a club.

CUVILLIER GETS WROTH.

Assemblyman Sends a Tart Letter to the Citizens' Union.

Assemblyman Louis F. Cuvillier, who represents Percy Nagle's district in the lower house, sent a tart letter yesterday to Secretary Robert S. Binkerd of the Citizens' Union in reply to a communication from him inviting the lawmaker to drop in at the office of the union and inspect what the Committee on Legislation of the Citizens' Union has prepared with reference to his record for publication in its annual report and offer corrections or explanations with reference to his performances during the recent session of the Legislature.

Mr. Cuvillier says in his letter that the Citizens' Union is nothing but a "lobbyist union," and that in presuming to pass on the action of members of the Legislature it renders itself liable to punishment for contempt before the bar of the House. In addition Mr. Cuvillier pleads his constitutional prerogative as a legislator, which renders him immune from questioning, except on the floor of the House, for anything he may have said while performing his duties as a legislator.

He holds the record for the number of bills introduced, the length and number of his speeches, and the frequency with which he has interposed motions which have had no result except to delay legislative procedure. In 1908 he introduced seventy-five bills of which not a single one passed, and there is no record of any Cuvillier measure being enacted this year. In its last annual report the Committee on Legislation of the Citizens' Union had this to say about Mr. Cuvillier:

> Very active, but utterly useless. Introduced mass of ill considered and foolish legislation. Voted against anti-race track gambling bill.

At this year's session Mr. Cuvillier sought to have the legislative representative of the Citizens' Union debarred from the privileges previously accorded to him in the State Capitol.

HELD FOR FREIGHT FRAUDS.

Chicago Broker Charged with Violating Inter-State Commerce Law.

CHICAGO, June 15.—John B. Sardy, a broker, was arrested to-day on a charge of violating the inter-State commerce law. Sardy is alleged to have solicited transportation for inter-State freight at less than the regular rates by the falsification of weight bills and billing orders.

The arrest is said to have been made as the result of an inquiry by the Illinois Central Railway. District Attorney Sims said the case was the first of its kind to come before Chicago officers.

ACTIVE SUFFRAGIST FIGHT.

Mrs. Catt Suggests a Great Pageant Such as London Had.

The Interurban Woman Suffrage Association held its last business meeting for the Summer at its headquarters in the Martha Washington Hotel in East Twenty-ninth Street, yesterday morning, the session lasting from 10:30 till 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the International Suffrage Alliance, presided, and presented more in detail the suffrage campaign plans suggested on the previous day at the larger meeting at the Hotel Astor.

Mrs. Catt discussed the suffrage petition now being circulated, and urged on the suffragists the necessity of presenting it in season and out of season, and to use every effort to obtain the largest roll of names ever presented to Congress.

A great pageant, such as took place in London in May during the suffrage congress there, was put forward by the speaker as a means of agitation. Above all the necessity of political work was urged by Mrs. Catt. To go directly into campaigning against the politicians, who are anti-suffragists, and to work for those who support equal suffrage will be the watchword of the future, Mrs. Catt said.

Open air meetings, with everything done in the most decorous manner, will also be undertaken, the speaker said. She declared that the failure of women to get the ballot was due quite as much to the inertia of women who are not educated up to the value of suffrage as to the men, many of whom were advocates of suffrage. Men should not be deemed enemies of the cause save in the case of politicians who oppose suffrage.

Mrs. Catt argued that persuasion was the proper method of winning over both sexes.

Among the members present were Mrs. Crossett, Mrs. Harry Hastings, Mrs. Hackstaff, Mrs. Minnie Reynolds, Mrs. Ida Hoy Greeley, Miss Mary Garrett Hay, Mrs. Ida Husted Harper, Miss Ida Craft, Mrs. William M. Ivins, and many others.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont joined the Interurban Association while the meeting was in session.

LARCHMONT WOMEN VOTE.

They Turn Out in Automobiles and Help the Republicans to Win.

Special to The New York Times.

LARCHMONT, N. Y., June 15.—Women turned out at Larchmont to-day in automobiles and helped elect the Republican ticket, consisting of Edward C. Griffen, a real estate broker, for President; W. B. Sutherland for Trustee, Joseph Bird, President of the Manhattan Savings Institution for Treasurer, and William J. Kellener, a builder, for Tax Collector.

A proposal to spend $50,000 to pave the Boston Post Road, despite the efforts of motorists, was defeated by a vote of 62 to 25. The residents took the view that they would prefer first to improve the streets of the Manor before going outside.

Nineteen women turned out at the election, and the yachtsmen gallantly provided a separate ballot box for them. The women were brought to the polls in automobiles, and on their arrival the greater number of them stood around discussing the issues until instructed how to vote by the men.

The Democratic candidate was Lester C. Faurot. He was defeated by 25 votes.

Of the nineteen women who voted, thirteen were against the bond issue and six in favor. Among the women who cast their ballots were Miss Clare Davidson, Miss Lindsley, Miss Cowdry, Mrs. F. W. Flint, Mrs. W. C. Kirtland, Mrs. H. C. Southwick, Mrs. B. B. Marco, Mrs. E. C. Griffen, Mrs. F. E. Towle, Mrs. H. E. Foote, Mrs. H. M. Sedley, Mrs. Emma Herne, widow of James A. Herne, the actor; Mrs. William E. Bullard, Mrs. G. H. Bassford, and Mrs. H. E. Payson.

Of the entire vote there were five void ballots, none of which was cast by the women.

FINANCE MAIL RECOVERED.

Divers Worked Six Months to Get It from Sunken Liner.

After some six months of heavy work under the surface of the water in the lower channel, divers employed by the War Department yesterday rescued six bags of first-class mail, some of it containing registered letters, from the wreckage of the steamer Finance of the Panama Railroad Company. The bags themselves, sealed and locked, were in good condition, though the mail within was thoroughly soaked with water. It is now drying out in the engine room of the General Post Office.

The White Star liner Georgia, a freighter, tore a great hole in the bow of the Finance on Nov. 27, 1908, and sent her to the bottom when both she and the Finance were manoeuvring three miles east of Sandy Hook Light in the fog trying to get to sea. Fifteen minutes later the steamer sank with all her mail and baggage aboard, and in the confusion three passengers and an assistant engineer were drowned.

The War Department gave the contract of removing the wreckage and recovering the mail to a wrecking company, whose divers have been at work ever since. Some second-class mail was recovered months ago, dried out with good results, and sent on to its destination, but the first-class mail, in bags weighing from 30 to 40 pounds, was so enmeshed in wreckage that the divers could not work their way to it until yesterday.

BRIDE HIS NURSE FOR THIRTY YEARS

Samuel Wix Seeley, 78, Weds Johanna Christina Johnson, 61, Long His Friend.

HE'S A CIVIL WAR VETERAN

Bridegroom Too Feeble to Stand Up for the Ceremony, So He Sat on a Couch.

The Rev. D. Barns Griffiths of Spuyten Duyvil officiated yesterday at the marriage of his oldest couple—Johanna Christina Johnson, 61, and Samuel Wix Seeley, 78, both of this city. The bridegroom is a veteran of the civil war, and an old-fashioned district school teacher. The woman, an immigrant from Sweden, for thirty years his nurse and housekeeper, has been cook for some of the most prominent families of the city.

The witnesses of the marriage were Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. McCormick of Branchport, N. Y., and Mrs. David Stewart of Spuyten Duyvil, in whose little yellow farmhouse, just above Spuyten Duyvil Creek, the wedding was held.

Mrs. McCormick is a niece of Mr. Seeley. She had come down from her farm with her husband a few days ago, when she heard "Uncle Sam," as every one calls him who knows him, was so ill at Mrs. Stewart's as to be in danger of death.

She found Miss Johnson at his bedside, and when his niece insisted that the old man should come to her farm for the rest of his life he replied that Christina must be his bride, and she responded coyly that she was going anyhow.

So it came about that they were married in the Stewarts' parlor, the bridegroom, too feeble to stand, sitting on the red plush sofa, the bride, with her white hair brushed down tight, standing beside him.

"I've lived alone," said Mr. Seeley yesterday, as with a face like ivory and a long white beard he lay on his bed after the ceremony, "on my pension in my flat, cooking my own meals, and now the time has come when I can't do that any longer, and Christina's been faithful and kind to me. So you see this isn't what you could call a young love match exactly."

Born at Poultney, Steuben County, near where he is going to spend the rest of his life, Seeley began school teaching in his youth. That was in the days when little white and red schoolhouses were something more than fiction, and until the war he was a typical district schoolmaster. With the war he enlisted—they were raising the One Hundred and Eighty-eighth New York Infantry at that time—and his fortunes led him over many Virginia battlefields, through the Wilderness with Grant, and finally to Appomattox Court House, where he joined in the cheers at Gen. Lee's surrender.

But in the Wilderness a Confederate bullet, lodging near his spine, so affected it that he was never fit for work afterward. Then he came to New York and took private pupils—foreigners who wanted to learn English. Later he began running a furnished room house in Twenty-third Street and advertised for a housekeeper.

Years before, when little more than a child, Christina Johnson had come to this country. At home she had learned the rudiments of cooking. She was bright and energetic and faithful as a servant, and finally became an expert cook, with references from prominent families. She answered the advertisement, and for years, as housekeeper, conducted the houses which Mr. Seeley superintended.

As time went on he lost strength and had to give up the houses. He lived alone on his pension in a flat, cooking his own meals, for he had never married. Christina went out again to service. But he had several long spells of illness, and with each came Christina to nurse him. Finally, two years ago, he fell ill again. He lived then at 315 West Forty-fourth Street, and once more she was on hand to take care of him.

Three weeks ago they thought he would die. He went to Mrs. Stewart's—he had known her from childhood—for fresh air, and his old housekeeper went, too, and then his niece came with her husband to take him away. Yesterday they decided he could travel. So Mrs. Stewart called up the Marriage License Bureau. Clerk Stewart Harris went up and issued a license, and Dr. Griffiths presided at the simple ceremony.

Last night the bridal pair took the 9:45 train for the McCormick farm.

MURDERER IN WOMAN'S ATTIRE

Negro Who Killed Trolley Conductor, Caught Here in Disguise, Confesses.

Policeman O'Brien saw what he believed to be a negress shambling along Broadway, near Fulton Street, early yesterday morning and stepped up to question her. To his question he got a reply in a voice so much like that of a man's that O'Brien sought to raise the heavy veil that concealed the features of the supposed woman. Instantly he got a blow in the chest with the traveling bag the "woman" carried and the "woman" ran. The run was like that of a man, too, and O'Brien, close behind, was so sure that he had a man to deal with that he struck the fugitive with his club, and, sure enough, brought a man to the ground.

Walter Owens was the name the prisoner gave, and he said that he had left his home, at 1710 Naudin Street, Philadelphia, the night before in disguise because of a quarrel he had had near there. He would say nothing else about himself until he was arraigned in the Detective Bureau at Police Headquarters, where word had been received already from Philadelphia that a man answering Owens's description was wanted there for the murder of a trolley car conductor in Woodbury, N. J., on Friday night. According to the police, Owens then broke down and confessed.

The negro told them, say the police, that he and Ida Jones, a friend, were returning on a trolley car to their homes, in Mullion Hills, near Philadelphia, on Friday night, and that both having been drinking, they passed their station. Angered by this, Owens got into a quarrel with the conductor and drew a revolver "to frighten him." The pistol was "exploded accidentally," the negro told the police, and when they saw that the conductor was injured, Owens and the girl jumped off the car and took to the woods, where they remained until Monday morning, when Owens got a horse from his friends at Mullion Hills and gave it to the girl to escape. They furnished him with the woman's attire and he got away on foot.

Owens said that he would not fight extradition. He was held without bail pending the arrival of detectives from Philadelphia.

PUBLICITY IN CHARITIES.

Conference Speaker Declares It Is the Best Agent.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 15.—The Conference of Charities and Correction here to-day discussed recreative methods at its morning session. "Press and Publicity" was the topic at the evening session.

H. Wirt Steele of Baltimore and Albert Shaw of New York were the principal speakers. After they had spoken there followed a symposium on "What Constitutes Right Publicity," in which Charles W. Birtwell of Boston and Francis H. MacLean, John A. Kingsbury, Orlando F. Lewis, and Frederick D. Greene of New York took part.

"The remedy for many if not all social ills lies beyond an educated public opinion," said Mr. Steele. "Education is a process; the dynamics are within the people. Humanitarian impulses may be awakened and directed by the educational process, but the educated will themselves exert the force to right wrongs. We hold that it is the duty of every social worker to lend himself to a campaign of publicity."

ROCKEFELLER PASTOR BANKER

The Rev. Mr. Luci of Cleveland Joins Bank's Foreign Department.

CLEVELAND, June 15.—The Rev. Carmello Luci, who was brought to Cleveland several years ago by John D. Rockefeller and made associate pastor of the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church, has given up his religious duties to go into the banking business.

For months the officers of a large banking company have had in contemplation a plan to protect foreigners who wished to deposit their savings. The problem was to acquaint them with the ways of American banking. The Rev. Mr. Luci consented to act for the foreigners, and entered upon his duties to-day.

An Industrial Exhibit
At "The Store of Certain Satisfaction"

Every floor of the store is alive with interest. Those who like to see how things for household use and personal wear are produced will find much to entertain them at almost every turn they make in the Bloomingdale Store. Everybody is cordially invited.

ON THE FOURTH FLOOR there is an Oriental at work on Oriental rugs. A worker is weaving the old-time rag carpet on the ancient hand loom.

ON THE THIRD FLOOR men are busily engaged in almost magically turning plain, blank glass into beautiful iridescent cut glass articles of utility. In another section on this floor the art of engraving initials and designs of various kinds on glassware is being demonstrated.

ON THE SECOND FLOOR may be seen the method employed in producing the "Little Nemo" Barefoot Sandals that are so popular for children's Summer wear.
Adjoining this industrial demonstration is the "bench made" shoe shop. Cobblers of the old school are turning out the Bloomingdale Hygienic Arch Support Shoe by hand just as every pair of these famous shoes is made in the factory for Bloomingdales' sales. There is no arch support in the market that can begin to compare with the Bloomingdale Hygienic Arch. It is a hand forged steel arch truss produced after much scientific and anatomical study, and absolutely accomplishes all that is claimed for it; i. e., it keeps insteps from falling and restores to nature's proper contour those that have fallen.

Free Souvenirs—Hand this coupon to any of our salespeople and you will receive a pretty metal ash or pin tray having a good reproduction of the famous Queensboro Bridge. T

ON THE MAIN FLOOR the art of making fancy feathers is an interesting object lesson. The various details employed in making up the beautiful trimming for women's hats are demonstrated.
Another object lesson is that given by the braiding machine, which, while you watch it, braids fancy silken covers for hatpin holders.
Here, too, is the famous Lundborg Silver Fountain that drips delicate perfume on your handkerchief.
The immense loom adjoining the ribbon section weaves before your very eyes a beautiful silk ribbon bookmark, with a good reproduction of the great Queensboro Bridge. This showing attracts immense attention.
A practical illustration of glove making is the exhibit installed by the Jacob Adler Glove Co.

IN THE BASEMENT is the Pure Food Show with its almost unlimited free samples. There are about 30 different food products being demonstrated. As many capable demonstrators will tell you all about the different goods, and ask you to sample freely. There has been no more comprehensive food show in New York than this.

OTHER DEMONSTRATIONS of a most interesting nature are to be seen in the departments of cutlery, leather goods, jewelry, umbrellas, hosiery, silks, notions, corsets, infants' wear, and so on through the store. The public of Manhattan and Queens are earnestly invited to visit, see and sample, whether they care to buy or not. All are equally welcome.

R. H. Macy & Co.'s Attractions Are Their Low Prices

Macys
B'way at 6th Av. 34th to 35th St.

The 1909 Series of Macy's Old-Fashioned Sales

Materially—physically—Macy's has developed and expanded broadly. Look at the store—look in the store. Yes, we have evolved splendidly, paradoxically as it may sound, by holding tight to all the good, old-fashioned methods that began to attract patronage to us fifty-one years ago. These Series of Old-Fashioned Sales are annual events organized for a definite purpose. By them we emphasize the fact, that while we improve the merchandise and the service wherever and whenever we can—matching strides with retail progress in every direction—we have never lost sight of the fundamentals. And all know that the fundamentals of the Macy business are to sell reliable qualities at prices that are not matched elsewhere for economy. That claim so completely sustained, is the source of the success that has come to the enterprise.

Our appeal is the universal appeal. We don't divide and subdivide the community's four-millions into the "masses" and the "classes," into "wage-earners" and the "millionaires" and set ourselves the task of getting the trade of one strata of humanity. We've labored long and hard to make MACY'S THE COMMON MEETING GROUND FOR ALL WHO WISH TO SECURE THE LARGEST POSSIBLE VALUE FOR THEIR MONEY WHETHER THEY HAVE A PINCH OF PENNIES OR HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS TO SPEND.

Exclusiveness in the sense of narrowness—meagre assortments and limited stocks—has no place in our store lexicon. It's our constant attempt to keep increasing the volume of sales in order to diffuse our helpfulness by decreasing our percentage of profit. The ordinary dealer would gasp in astonishment if he were told how slender is the net margin of profit realized in a store like this.

All this is meant to freshen zest in these interesting Old-Fashioned Sales.

THE CRAZE FOR NEW TAXES.

The Treasury deficit for the eleven months and fifteen days of the fiscal year thus far elapsed amounts to $96,542,614. It is conceded that the Tariff bill now under consideration will not meet the necessities of the Government. The protectionist majority headed by Mr. ALDRICH would be entirely unwilling to reduce the customs duties to a point where they would yield the maximum of revenue. They aim at exclusion, and exclusion means no revenue.

Accordingly, the Tariff bill must be pieced out by some measure of taxation that will restore the balance between income and outgo. The income tax has powerful support in Congress, so powerful that its opponents seem willing to compromise on an agreement that a Constitutional amendment shall be submitted to the States, the decision of the Supreme Court declaring unconstitutional our last income tax making a change in the organic law necessary. Early in the session inheritance taxes were talked of a good deal. That seemed to be a good way to put in force the Rooseveltian policy of abridging the fortunes of the excessively rich. Not much is said of that tax now. In its place appears the tax upon the net earnings of corporations, and there is a considerable probability that such a tax may be enacted.

There is a curious report that President TAFT favors this tax, not alone because it would produce needed revenue, but "as a decided step forward in carrying out the policy of corporation control." When the taxing power is used for other purposes than raising revenue a wide range of possibilities is opened. The Supreme Court has said that the power to tax is the power to destroy. The note issues of State banks were destroyed by a 10 per cent. tax. The great example of the use of the power of taxation for an indirect purpose is our protective tariff. The protective duties not only produce revenue, they enable the interests they favor to levy for their own enrichment much greater taxes upon the people. That is State Socialism, not for the advantage of all, but for the benefit of a small class. Now we are told that we must levy a new tax upon the corporations as a means of getting them under control.

When the night dogs of Populism break loose all sorts of queer game are chased. It would be futile to import considerations of economic principle and of scientific justice into the discussion of a tax bill framed for the purpose of throttling the corporations. It is because of the deep-rooted, and, in many parts of the country universal, conviction that the corporations are fair game and may be, nay, must be, hunted in and out of season, that while we have at Washington earnest advocacy of an income tax, an inheritance tax, and of a corporation tax, imposts the supporters of which fondly believe would fall upon the fortunes of the rich and leave the poor untouched, not a word is said about a convenient and most productive form of taxation of which we had not long ago an enlightening experience—we mean the stamp tax. To meet the expenses of the war with Spain, Congress, in an act taking effect July 1, 1898, provided that revenue stamps should be affixed to a considerable number of negotiable instruments and proprietary articles. Bonds, mortgages, promissory notes, bank checks, bills of exchange, contracts, telegraph dispatches, life insurance policies, and many other instruments were thus taxed. It was a tax easily borne, it burdened no individual. It was productive. In the first full year of its operation, the year ending June 30, 1899, the revenue from the sale of adhesive stamps was $43,837,819; in 1900 the revenue was $40,964,365; in 1901 it was $39,241,036. This tax was repealed the next year.

In the present state of public and Congressional opinion the defect of the stamp tax is that its burdens would be distributed throughout the community. It would diminish no great fortune, it would not increase the power of the Federal Government over any corporation. But as a means of accomplishing the direct purpose in view, of doing away with the deficit and providing revenue for the expenditures of the Government, the stamp tax has obvious merits. It is easily and quickly put into operation, the cost of administration is trifling, it is patiently borne, and does not provoke protests. At any other time, in a season when men's minds were not so desperately bent upon seeking out new ways for chaining down the corporations, the stamp tax would have many advocates in Congress.

COLLEGE WOMEN AND RACE SUICIDE.

It is not because they are so well educated that the marriage rate of college women is low and their children are few. It is simply because they have come from classes among whom marriages and births are comparatively less frequent. Births vary inversely with the educational ambitions of the parents, just as they vary inversely with their industrial and social ambitions. It costs $800 to $8,000 to put a girl through college, and only the well-to-do—the class convicted of chronic race suicide—can afford to do this. The fact that the college woman often selects a college man for a husband may advance the age at marriage somewhat, since she must wait during his extra years of training for a profession. But Prof. C. F. EMERICH of Smith College says in the current Political Science Quarterly that statistics fail to show her matrimonial chances to be slimmer than those of her less educated sisters.

The era of the prim and scholarly old maid is past. The first young women who went to college back in the sixties were doubtless a select few, distinguished by intellectual gifts and opposed to husbands, some of them, on principle. But twenty years have elapsed since a professor in a woman's college complained that the girls were "too confoundedly in earnest." They are there now not altogether because of their studies, but for the sake of the general college life and its liberal influences, and because it is socially the fashion. The A. B. degree does not mean that the young woman bearing it is to spend her life in an independent career; rather, it is regarded as an additional distinction for the prospective bride. In lieu of the test of scholarship, Prof. EMERICH says, "the one more commonly applied to-day is the contribution to the efficiency of the woman in the home."

It is probable, therefore, that college women are nowadays thought to make the most desirable wives, and that their chances of marriage are better than the average. Sir FRANCIS BACON said that "the care of posterity is most in them that have no posterity," since such have sought to "express the images of their minds where those of their bodies have failed." If the women who blazed the way to college are now childless, it may at least be said of them that they helped establish an institution of benefit to the young women of future generations.

WINDING UP THE PANIC.

The Knickerbocker Trust Company had to bear so much blame for causing, or at least emphasizing, New York's large share of the National panic, that it is only fair that it should receive credit where it is due. There is the greater fitness in this because the company's case is typical. One of the greatest bank runs which ever happened is followed by an equally unprecedented exhibition of intrinsic strength. Assuredly there was no lack of assets in a concern which has met its reorganization obligations in about half the stipulated interval, and is only prevented from completing its redemption by the severity of the conditions imposed to protect its recuperation.

In less degree the same excess of strength was characteristic of the general banking crisis which played so prominent a part in the panic not two years distant. Within that time the lost ground has been all but completely regained, including the speculative prices and temper of the security markets. The last may be a doubtful blessing, but it is part of the record. There never was so rapid a recuperation, judged by any standard, and there never was severer strain, at least in this country. This puts a problem before the theorists over the cause of the trouble. It has generally been attributed to exhaustion of capital, and Mr. HARRIMAN was roundly criticised for declaring that the true cause was loss of confidence, for reasons specific to the United States. Now, it takes time to save or create capital, but confidence may be restored with alteration of the conditions which lessened it. Recovery in other nations has been retarded harmoniously with the lack of capital theory, and elsewhere there was not the same shock to confidence as we experienced. Our recovery has been consistent with a new growth of confidence, accompanied by an alteration of methods in the enforcement of harsh statutes.

It has been amply demonstrated that the loss of confidence in the banks was not justified. Their reserves were so ample, not to say excessive, that it is impracticable to attribute deficiency of capital to them. And the recovery of confidence in accord with alteration of the chief disturbing condition, and perception of the truth regarding other conditions have been against some obstacles. The crop outlook has steadily improved, but has given some cause for reserve. The tariff debate is not a cause of strength. And yet we are back almost where we were. This remarkable record inspires a question both regarding the Knickerbocker Trust Company, and regarding what all suffered—how much of it was really necessary, and how much of it might have been avoided by greater loyalty and courage to one another, and to facts as they were, rather than to fancied weaknesses? Such questions are asked after every panic, but never with greater cause than in this case.

THE QUEENSBORO FRANCHISE.

It is said in the most respectable quarters that the pending franchise on the Queensboro Bridge should be withheld for two chief reasons. First, the city is excluded from the arbitration to determine the contract to be made between the present applicant and any future applicant desiring to use the route and tracks for which a franchise is now sought. And second, the pending application should be denied because it lacks the approval of the Public Service Commission. It is well for all concerned that the application recently denied is to be reconsidered. It would be unfortunate for the Commission to have its judgment challenged successfully on such points, or, worse yet, to have its decision overruled by the courts.

As to the first point, it does not appear how the city is concerned in the arbitration between the present and future applicants to settle the terms for the use by both of property belonging to one. The future applicant will require a franchise as much as the present applicant, and the terms of such future franchise will be settled directly between the applicant and the city in the same manner as the present franchise is being granted. There can be no need of arbitration with the present applicant regarding the franchise to the future applicant, and the concession of the future franchise could not give rights to use hereafter the property of the company now seeking a franchise. The allowance of a second franchise and the admission to a share of the use of the tracks and other property provided by the operator of the first franchise are distinct matters, and should not be confused. The city alone is concerned regarding the franchise, and the present applicant alone is concerned regarding any bargain for the use of its property. The arbitration refers solely to the latter point. The terms of the arbitration are criticised, as well as exclusion of the city from it. But the arbitrators are not limited in their arbitration. Certain factors are named for their consideration in fixing the value of what the future applicant may seek to acquire from the present applicant, but the arbitrators make their own appraisal of those factors, and unfairness in the award cannot be presumed.

It is a serious matter if the Board of Estimate is to be limited in its bargains on behalf of the city by an unlimited right of veto by the Public Service Commission. It is true that its approval is necessary before beginning the enjoyment of any franchise, but it does not follow that its veto is unconditional. In the words of the statute:

> The commission within whose district such construction is to be made, or within whose district such franchise or right is to be exercised, shall have power to grant the permission and approval herein specified whenever it shall after due hearing determine that such construction, or such exercise of franchise, is necessary or convenient for the public service.

The decision refusing the franchise recognizes the convenience and necessity of the franchise unreservedly, but it denies the approval upon a question of terms, and upon the apprehension of conditions unfavorable to the city after many years. Those are proper things to be considered, and they were considered by the proper body, the Board of Estimate. The result, in the words of the Public Service Commissioner who dissented from the refusal of the franchise, is a contract whose "terms do most carefully protect the city's interest. Indeed, they might be said to be ultra-favorable to the city in some particulars." Yet the privilege of access to a residential district as large as all of Manhattan north of Fifty-ninth Street is withheld, while incidentally $20,000,000 of invested city money lies largely idle. It is a large matter even as stated, but it is small in comparison with the question whether a State body can thus paralyze all the city's activities for reasons about as applicable to the present time as the excessive anxieties of an elderly mother as to who would care for her daughter's children if she should marry and the man should prove not to be a good provider. Shall the city enlarge its debt limit in order to build subways the terms of whose use shall not be settled by the city for itself?

THE HECATOMB OF DOGS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you please advocate the necessity of having the city's streets cleared of stray dogs at once, instead of waiting until the proverbial dog days are upon us?

It would be the means of many lives being saved from hydrophobia if the dog catchers were put to work at once. Washington Heights is simply infested with stray dogs. Will others take up this cause for the benefit of children playing in the streets?

ONE INTERESTED.

New York, June 14, 1909.

By all means, let the dogs be caught and slaughtered. Of course, hydrophobia has nothing to do with the season of July and August, when the dog star Sirius rises above the horizon with the sun—the disease is as prevalent during the rigors of December. We grant, too, that the chance of being bitten and developing rabies is a million times more remote than that of dying of tuberculosis. Yet in hot days is the mad blood stirring, if not of dogs, at least of human beings.

One person succumbed last year to a genuine attack of rabies. Thereupon our enlightened Health Department considered it politic to swell the tide of choleric and hysterical passion that seized the multitude by ordering the police to shoot all unleashed dogs at sight. For days and weeks school children were terrified by spectacles of frenzied "mad dog" chases, and gutters were adorned with carcasses. The superstitious myth about "dog days" was revived under official sanction. In the rural districts the madstone was sought and applied; the test of making suspected dogs ford streams was made; cases of "spontaneous" rabies were detected, and some neurotic individuals died of the fright which the alienists term lyssophobia. Before the universal fear abated this State's officials had placed thirty-four towns and two cities under quarantine.

We commend the letter of "One Interested" to the early attention of the health officers. If they will repeat the performances of the last hot season their efforts may not result in so great a saving of human life as would a little extra labor in clearing the crowded fire escapes of east side tenements. But they will have a chance to issue important statements and interviews, and to see their names heralded in the newspapers of the Nation.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Cost and Price Far Apart. Last Summer was not a good time for the selling—and a worse one for the buying—of enormously expensive country houses. HOWARD GOULD'S statement, therefore, that he vainly tried to get $1,000,000 for the "castle" at Port Washington, which had just been completed by him at a cost of $700,000 more, has to be interpreted with the financial conditions in mind. Yet in any year there would probably be an approach to the same difference between the expenditures involved in building such a house and laying out the grounds around it, both in accordance with individual taste, whim, and fancy, and the amount which anybody else, with inevitably unlike ideas as to luxury and comfort, would be willing, as well as able, to pay for it.

This would be true in any country, and it is especially true in a country where the inclination toward that particular device for locking up great sums of money is felt only by a very small class, and a class, at that, the members of which are not quite sure to have either the instinct or the education requisite for doing such work in a way intrinsically and permanently admirable. All of them could, and some of them do, permit their architects to copy or adapt good foreign models, but the result, at best, will be incongruous with the necessities and the habits of American life, and in the majority of cases it will deserve, and soon come to bear, the name of the ambitious builder, with "Folly" added to it for the warning of his kind.

For those who can afford such expenditures, however, they are at least comparatively innocent, and only serious-minded economists will realize that the incidental distribution of money among honest artists and artisans does not make up for the immobilization and waste of capital that might have been put to productive uses. As for the owners of these magnificently costly houses, the loss on sale is not as great as it looks when set down in figures. They have had all the fun of building, and some improvement in taste as well as a large increase of experience, and this they should be willing to pay for. At any rate, they cannot reasonably expect the next millionaire who comes along to forego these advantages, for he certainly loses them by taking a ready-made estate in the development of which, the chances are, all the rules of art have been more or less violated for the satisfaction of idiosyncrasies which are not his.

And even though Castle Gould would not sell at a profit as a whole, it would probably "cut up" more than fairly well, since property in that part of Long Island has advanced at least 100 per cent. in the last few years.

Exploiting Natural Weaknesses. When the police of a town are moved for one reason or another—there are several—to set traps for the capture of automobilists who yield to the temptation to break the speed laws, it is natural enough that the traps should be set where the temptation is more than ordinarily strong. Thus is the number of captures increased, to say nothing of the collection of fines or of the gratification of that rather widespread desire which one of STEVENSON'S heroes expressed when he said, "Anything to give pain!" It is, however, an excessively unkind, if not an absolutely indefensible, exercise of privilege when, as at Tottenville, down on Staten Island, the municipal authorities lay their snare for automobilists not only in a place where it can do no probable, and hardly a possible, harm to hurry a bit, but where the impulse to put on speed is, humanly speaking, unconquerable.

In passing along the road that leads to the ferry the turn which brings the boat in sight is some little distance from the wharf, and, if the boat happens to be lying there, who, knowing that it runs only at long intervals, could help hastening to catch it? A man on foot would walk fast or run, and one in a carriage would urge his horse into a more rapid trot. The motoring folk do the same thing—and then a policeman pops out from hiding and snaps them up one by one! On good days a catch of fifteen in that particular trap is considered small, and yet we do not recall that any accidents have ever happened there, and, as the road is clear, with few houses near, the chances of disaster from a merely technical breaking of the regulations is minute to the point of negligibility. Arrests so made are legal enough, but they cause irritation, not repentance, and they do not conduce to respect for the law as a formulation of common sense.

Another pretty fair grievance of the automobilists is the stern restriction of speed to the general limit on the boulevard running from Prospect Park to Coney Island. That is a broad, smooth road of special construction, to the knowledge of all, much frequented by automobiles, and the reason why they cannot be run a little faster there than on a crooked country road, with bushes growing high at every turn, or in thickly settled suburbs, with intersecting streets every few hundred feet, is not obvious—to the automobilists. Even to others it is a little mysterious if they haven't had recently any narrow escapes from being run down by a joy rider.

Information for the Traveler. Among the few railways wise enough to realize that passengers would be glad to get information about the places and things seen from the car windows is the Denver & Rio Grande Road, and in the exemplification of this wisdom it has issued a "folder" of a kind not quite new, we think, but certainly rare, and well worthy of imitation by other like companies all over the country.

The sheet is of the usual form, but instead of bearing a map on one side and a wilderness of figures and hieroglyphics for the be-puzzlement of the laity on the other, this one devotes both sides to a running commentary on the towns, big and little, along the line between Denver and Ogden and on the mountains, rivers, and cañons that come into sight as the train moves from one to the other. The paragraph for each town has its train schedule beside it in such simple form that even the least skillful of mathematicians can elucidate its mysteries.

The idea is an excellent one, whether invented or revived, and a welcome change from the customary railroad plan of assuming that passengers have as much knowledge of, and as little interest in, the sights along the line as are possessed by the engineers and brakemen. Even the names of stations are usually hidden away in dark nooks under overhanging eaves—why, has never been revealed.

NIPPERS AND PLIERS.

Showing How a Prosperous Factory Needs More Protection.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We desire to answer your editorial of June 10, 1909, making inquiry as to the necessity of an increased duty on nippers, pliers, and staple pullers, because we manufacture the most complete line of nippers, pliers, and staple pullers in the United States and are in position to give your readers an answer to your inquiry, "Why?"

Your editorial of above date contained the following statement and table:

> An obliging friend in the hardware trade has prepared a little table showing the effects of Mr. Root's amendment, which we here subjoin:
>
> PLIERS, NIPPERS, &c.

Foreign Cost. Custom. Value Per Doz.	Present Duty.	Proposed Duty. 40% And 60c. Per Doz.	Proposed Duty. 40% And $1.20 Per Doz.	Proposed Duty. 40% And $2.40 Per Doz.
.60	45%	138%	...	...
$1.30	45%	...	132½%	...
3.25	45%	...	...	114%

> We are moved to inquire what fiscal, economic, or ethical motive prompted Mr. Root to ask the Senate to impose duties ranging from 114 to 138 per cent. upon these apparently innocent implements of the gasfitter's and carpenter's trade and of the household tool box.

Nippers, pliers, and staple pullers are most difficult to manufacture, because they require the most exacting mechanical knowledge of metals, designs, and finishes as well as the greatest skill on the part of the workmen in procuring accuracy in the fitting of the joints and a finish equal to the finest gun work.

The elements required to make a first grade of nippers or pliers are as follows: Efficiency in the application of force, and this requires rigidity, leverage, and the reduction of friction.

Leverage requires a knowledge of the anatomical construction of the human hand and has mechanical restrictions limiting the ratio of leverage to the arms of the tool, so as to secure an effective angle for work.

The parts of the tool must be properly proportioned and the design and workmanship symmetrical. The material used must not only have strength and ductility, but hardness to resist abrasion and wear, and still the hardness must not be so great as to break or crack under shock.

When tempered the tool must have toughness in the mass of the material and hardness in the cutting edges and wearing surfaces. When all of these elements are combined these tools become the finest product of the cutler's skill, because their cutting edges will sever the hardest wire, the thinnest paper, and the finest hair, and be so durable as to be almost indestructible; in fact, at times, the lives of the linemen in midair depend on the stability of these cutting edges.

From the Consular reports verified by a personal trip to Germany in 1902 for the express purpose of studying this question we learned that the wages paid to the forgers, to the polishers, to the hardeners, to the filers, to the packers, and to the general help employed in Germany on this class of work ranged from 60c to 80c a day. Our average wages to our men are $2 a day.

The number of tools produced per man per day is in favor of the Germans.

This table shows the per cent. difference in wages between the two countries:

Wages Per Day, Two Classes Workmen, Germany.	American Average Wage Per Day.	Difference in Per Cent. in Favor of Germany.
60c	$2	233%
80c	2	150%

The protection desired by Mr. Root under the cutlery schedule ranges from 114 to 138 per cent., an amount not sufficient to equalize the difference in wages between the makers of American goods and the makers of German goods.

The following table makes more apparent the comparison of men and wages as paid per year in the two countries:

Number of Men.	German Wages Per Day.	Total Wage Per Year, 300 Days.
100	60c	$18,000
100	80c	24,000
	American Wage Per Day.
100	$2	60,000

In other words, the American paid workman for practically the same volume of tools per annum, but of a superior finish and quality, receives $60,000, as compared with the $24,000 of wages paid the German workman at 80c a day, or the $18,000 of wage paid the German workman at 60c a day, a difference in wages in the first case of 150 per cent. and in the second case of 233 per cent.

The manufacture of nippers and pliers in the United States is conducted in twelve or fifteen factories, whose names are mentioned in The Iron Age trade directory.

All are equally interested in obtaining a proper protection on their goods in order to secure for the American cutlery workman a proper wage and for the American nipper, plier, and staple puller user a better grade of tools than many foreign importations.

W. PIERREPONT WHITE, President,
Utica Drop Forge and Tool Company.
Utica, N. Y., June 14, 1909.

We observe that the Utica Drop Forge and Tool Company has struggled along quite successfully under the protection of a 45 per cent. duty. It has branch offices at Chicago, Boston, New York, Columbus, Mocksville, N. C.; Pittsburg, and San Francisco, with its main office and works in Utica. In these circumstances it would seem that an increase of the protection of this industry from 45 per cent. to 138 per cent. could be justified neither by solicitude for tender infancy nor by a desire to aid and abet the paternal designs of the company toward its employes, to whom, although they must possess, it seems, the nice skill and expertness of the gunmaker, it pays the rather common and ordinary compensation of $2 a day. We are afraid the nipper business will have to get along on 45 per cent.—EDITOR THE TIMES.

TO RECLAIM DEMOCRACY.

Old Leaders Plan a General Rejuvenation in the Next Four Years.

To reclaim the Democratic Party in city, State, and Nation from the slough into which it has fallen as the result of so-called Bryanism and unwise leadership is the aim of old-line Democrats. It was learned yesterday that a movement with that end in view was begun at a dinner given last February at the town house of S. Stanwood Mencken, a law partner of ex-District Attorney Philbin.

Mr. Mencken was not prepared yesterday to discuss the project or what occurred at the dinner, but from one of the men who attended it was learned that among those present were ex-Judge Alton B. Parker, ex-Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, Martin W. Littleton, Edward M. Shepard, ex-Controller Grout, and Oswald Villard. John G. Carlisle and Charles S. Fairchild, both of whom were members of the Cabinet under Grover Cleveland, were heard from by letter.

It was said yesterday that there was no likelihood that this movement would figure in the next municipal campaign, and that it probably would require all the time from now until another Presidential nomination before it could be strong enough to make any impression on the Democratic Party of the Nation. Meantime, it was said, that Senator-elect John Sharp Williams, former minority leader of the House of Representatives, and Senator Culberson of Texas had expressed approval of the movement, as had also Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy.

A Committee on Plan and Scope, appointed by the originators of the project of getting the Democrats together on the three issues, tariff, State rights, and economy in administrative expenditures will continue at work.

COMMITTEE OF 100 TO-NIGHT.

Members' Names to be Submitted to Cooper Union Mass Meeting.

It was announced yesterday at the headquarters of the Committee of Nineteen in the Beavers Building that its work had practically been completed and that it would be ready to submit to the mass meeting which will be held in Cooper Union this evening a list of proposed members for the Committee of One Hundred, provided for at the Cooper Union conference on May 11.

The Committee of Nineteen will also submit resolutions embodying the principles and issues on which the next municipal campaign should be fought.

Gustav H. Schwab, who was elected Chairman of the Committee of Nineteen, will preside at the mass meeting to-morrow night. Among the speakers will be Rabbi Stephen Wise, Prof. Charles Sprague Smith of the People's Institute, and William A. Coakley, President of the Lithographers' Helpers.

Mr. Coakley played a prominent part in the Hearst municipal ownership campaign four years ago.

FRANCHISE FOR NORTH SHORE.

Service Board Grants It; Also a Rehearing for South Shore Company.

The Public Service Commission unanimously approved yesterday the franchise of the New York & North Shore Traction Company for an extension of its surface trolley line from the New York City line, at Little Neck, through Flushing and to Chestnut Street, in Whitestone. The matter came up on a report by Commissioner Bassett, in which it was declared that the proposed line would undoubtedly serve the public convenience, and that it did not parallel any existing line.

Commissioner Bassett points out one possible difficulty in the narrowness of Broadway at Douglaston and Tenth Street, Bayside. The Board of Estimate, in its contract with the North Shore Company, however, expressly reserved the right to make the company place its tracks on a private right of way at both these points, or else, to buy a strip outside the roadway wide enough to accommodate the tracks, and cede this strip to the city as an addition to the roadway.

The commission granted yesterday the application of the South Shore Traction Company for a rehearing of the decision of the commission turning down the franchise passed by the Board of Estimate for the South Shore Company to construct a trolley line through the Borough of Queens and over the new Queensboro Bridge.

A QUESTION FOR DOCTORS.

Fears They Will Not Welcome a Speedy Remedy for Typhoid.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A young woman educated as a trained nurse and in medicine, but not a graduate in medicine, has made a discovery startling in its importance to humanity.

She has found the remedy for typhoid and can cure any case in three days. Typhoid fever is a germ ailment, and to effect a cure the remedy must kill the germ without harm to the patient; and this is what she has succeeded in doing. She will even imbibe the typhoid germs, develop the disease in her own person, and cure herself in three days. How can this discovery be made of use to humanity, and, incidentally to her, for she deserves some reward? Not as a proprietary article, for typhoid is too serious to be so treated. One could not be induced in such a case to discharge the doctor and take a proprietary remedy.

The doctors naturally argue that it would not profit them to reduce a six weeks' case to one of three days. Humanity would be immeasurable benefited by the elimination of typhoid fever, but the revenue of every doctor would be seriously impaired. Every Board of Health is controlled by physicians, and the head of such a board will generally say to you frankly, "I do not desire to do anything to harm the medical profession."

A doctor having a large practice and familiar with the merits of this discovery says: "It is very slow and expensive to introduce a remedy through the physicians. It can be done, but it takes time and money. Unless a pretty big expenditure be made in the work of introduction your grandchildren will die of old age before the remedy becomes generally known."

How can humanity be given the benefit of this discovery most promptly? L.

NON-INTOXICANT ALCOHOL.

It Is This That Prof. Voyle Proposes to Make.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There recently appeared in the columns of THE TIMES a statement that Prof. Voyle of Berkeley University had succeeded, by the removal of cynamide, in producing a non-intoxicating whisky. Believing that if such were the case it would be one of the greatest blessings conferred upon the human race, but that it was too good to be true, I wrote to Prof. Voyle, asking him if he had been misquoted. It may interest you to know that I have to-day received from him the following reply:

> Your letter received. The papers used the word "whisky" when it should have been "alcohol." Whisky of to-day is not the simple product of years ago, but a rectified, blended composition that may or may not respond to the reagents used on pure alcohol to remove the poison that intoxicates. When the cynanide is removed from alcohol the alcohol is then reduced to the strength of whisky and does not intoxicate, but has its full strength and beneficial effect, and is a rich, refreshing, exhilarating food, which is needed by many people; and all wines and liquors, when unadulterated, can be treated so as to reduce or remove the intoxicant. I intend to publish further information to correct errors.

PRESBYTERIANS HERE IN WORLD COUNCIL

Notable Gathering of Churchmen from Many Nations in an Alliance Meeting.

SEE THE CHURCH ADVANCING

Dr. Mathews Cites Figures to Show That Presbyterianism Has Grown Throughout the World in 5 Years.

The ninth General Council of the Alliance of Reformed Churches holding the Presbyterian system began in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, yesterday afternoon. It is one of the most notable Presbyterian gatherings ever held in this country, the foremost preachers and laymen of the Church in Great Britain, France, Belgium, the United States, Canada, and Asia being among the delegates.

The council was called to order by its venerable President, the Rev. Dr. J. Oswald Dykes of Cambridge, England. On the platform with him were the Rev. Dr. George D. Mathews of London, Secretary for the Eastern Section, and the Rev. Dr. William H. Roberts of Philadelphia, Secretary of the Western Section.

The council began with devotional services, the sermon being preached by the Rev. Dr. James D. Moffatt, President of Washington and Jefferson College. At the conclusion of the sermon the roll of delegates was called and the Committees on Credentials reported. Then followed the welcoming address of the Rev. Dr. David J. Burrell of the Marble Collegiate Church. Sir Samuel Chisholm, ex-Lord Provost of Glasgow, responded to the address on behalf of the visiting delegates.

Welcome to the Delegates.

"In welcoming you to New York," said Dr. Burrell, "I am welcoming you to a fair city. You are welcome to our churches and I am sure you will find them very much like your own churches. I wish that I could welcome you to our homes, but those homes for the most part are boarded up, and our families have flitted away to mountain and seashore. Some day I hope that you will come back when the latchstrings to our homes are on the outside, just as the latchstrings to our hearts are out now."

Sir Samuel Chisholm, in replying to the address of welcome, said that he supposed he had been chosen so as to give a majority of those who were present a chance to hear a different inflection of the English language.

"We have come from many lands," said Sir Samuel, "and have traveled many nameless leagues, over land and sea, and we are here one in our attachment to Christianity, and one in our loyalty to Presbyterianism. Scotland, my own country, is a land which Presbyterianism can claim as her own. For three and a half centuries it has been the chosen faith of her people. In this council now assembling let us endeavor to make evident to the world our oneness in faith, in hope, and in charity. I am sure that that is the earnest desire of us all."

Thomas Bell of London, one of the foremost Presbyterian laymen of Great Britain, and for years Treasurer of the alliance, died in London a few days ago, and his report was read by Robert Whyte, one of the London delegates. Mr. Whyte paid a touching tribute to the memory of Mr. Bell, who, he said, was the very last of a distinguished group of Presbyterian Elders in England whose work in behalf of their Church could not be overestimated.

Dr. Roberts, Secretary of the Western Section, followed Mr. Whyte in another eulogy of Mr. Bell, and on his motion a committee of three was appointed by Dr. Dykes to draft a suitable memorial to him.

Presbyterianism Advancing.

Dr. Mathews then made one of the most important addresses of the opening session, his speech showing that, despite reports to the contrary, Presbyterianism is not on the decline, but is growing steadily. Five years ago Dr. Mathews said there were in the world 27,700 Presbyterian ministers. To-day the number is 28,100. There were 964 ordained Presbyterian ministers in the foreign field five years ago, while to-day the Presbyterian Church is supporting in that field 1,361.

"We are not a dropping ministry," said Dr. Mathews, "but quite the reverse. To-day we have 142,500 Ruling Elders, whereas five years ago the total was 135,500. Five years ago our rolls showed communicants to the number of 5,137,000. To-day the number is 8,337,000. In our Sunday schools five years ago there were 3,817,000 pupils enrolled, and now our enrollment is 3,917,000. Five years ago the annual receipts of the Church throughout the world were about $40,000,000, whereas to-day they are over $50,000,000."

The speech of Dr. Mathews closed the afternoon session. Last night Dr. Dykes preached a sermon to the delegates, after which a reception was held in the parlors of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church. It was announced that all of the delegates would be taken to West Point on Friday on a vessel specially chartered by the Presbyterians of New York.

DOYLE'S NEW PLAY IS MELODRAMATIC

Incidentally It Goes to Show That a Man Is Never Justified in Committing Suicide.

AMERICAN GIRL COLORLESS

Lewis Waller Creates Enthusiasm as Hero in "Fires of Fate" at London's Lyric Theatre.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 15.—Conan Doyle's "Fires of Fate," produced to-night by Lewis Waller at the Lyric Theatre, is a rousing story of adventure, with the question whether a man is ever justified in taking his own life as the underlying idea.

Col. Egerton is told by his physician that he has only a year to live and that insidious paralysis will make part of that period a torture to him. He determines to shuffle off the mortal coil at once, but the doctor's brother, a clergyman, convinces him that he has no right to interfere with the designs of Providence, which may have work for him to do even yet.

The story develops with the capture of a party of tourists, among whom are Col. Egerton and an American girl with whom he has fallen in love, by Dervishes along the banks of the Upper Nile, and their eventful rescue through the instrumentality of Egerton. Thus he accomplishes the designs of Providence and at the same time is completely cured of his disease, so that the final curtain falls on his betrothal to the American girl who had won his heart, but to whom he naturally could not declare his love while his life was despaired of.

Dr. Doyle presumably knows his medicine, but nevertheless his exposition of Egerton's "case" is the weakest feature of his play. One might imagine that Dr. Doyle had never met an American in his life. His heroine is a quite colorless conception without any national characteristics of any kind, while her so-called New England aunt might just as well have been labeled Kamtschatkan.

The author is happier in his male characterizations. Lewis Waller invested Col. Egerton with such noble and heroic proportions that the female Wallerites, with whom the theatre was filled, went crazy with enthusiasm. Dr. Doyle calls his piece "a modern morality play," but its appeal to the public will be made not by its thesis but by its stirring melodrama and its capital, though conventional, situations.

FOOD.

BRAIN BUILDING

How to Feed Nervous Cases.

Hysteria sometimes leads to insanity, and should be treated through feeding the brain and nerves upon scientifically selected food that restores the lost delicate gray matter. Proof of the power of the brain food, Grape-Nuts, is remarkably strong.

"About eight years ago, when working very hard as a court stenographer, I collapsed physically, then nervously, and was taken to the State Hospital for the Insane at Lincoln, Neb., a raving maniac.

"They had to keep me in a straight-jacket, and I was kept in the worst ward for three months. I was finally dismissed in the following May, but did no brain work for years until last Fall, when I was persuaded to take the testimony in two cases.

"One of these was a murder case, and the strain upon my nervous system was so great that I would have broken down again except for the strength I had built up by the use of Grape-Nuts. When I began to feel the pressure of the work on my brain and nerves I simply increased the amount of Grape-Nuts, and used the food more regularly.

"I now feel like my old self again and am healthy and happy. I am sure that if I had known of Grape-Nuts when I had my trouble 8 years ago I would never have collapsed, and this dark experience in my life would never have happened.

"The power of Grape-Nuts as a brain food is simply wonderful, and I do not believe any stomach is so weak that it cannot digest this wonderful food."

"There's a Reason." Look for the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

"THE TEMPEST" OUT OF DOORS

Ben Greet Players Give the Shakespeare Comedy in Brooklyn.

An out-of-doors performance of "The Tempest" was given last evening by the Ben Greet Players as a part of a cycle of Shakespeare's comedies now being given in the Pratt Library Field, Brooklyn, for the benefit of the Parks and Playgrounds Association. With the exception of a few performances in April, 1897, under the management of Augustin Daly, with Nancy MacIntosh as Miranda, this is the only production of "The Tempest" in a generation, and it was welcomed enthusiastically by the Shakespeare lovers in Brooklyn.

It was also welcomed by a few hundred other people who would not be enlisted as believers in the art of the drama. Every available back window in Hall Street and St. James Place, overlooking the Pratt Library Field, was occupied long before the calcium lights had been turned on, and every smooth-topped fence post had been bespoken early in the evening. When the policemen hurried the small boys off the fences they literally retreated to the tall timber, perching comfortably on boughs some safe six feet above the strong arm of the law.

The trees became only too popular, so that

> Zaccheus, he did climb a tree,
> The play to see;
> The limb did break, and he did fall,
> He did not see the play at all.

The rending of branches and other crashes from without tended to mar the illusion. For instance, a string quartet rendered the overture to "The Tempest," composed by Sir Arthur Sullivan. What any one except those in the front rows heard were a few dulcet murmurs from the musicians screened in the shrubbery, interrupted now and again by shrill cries of "Clucky the Cop" and other reminders of the objective reality of things.

The performance was opened with a dance designed to put the audience in an atmosphere of mystery and enchantment suitable for the play. After that the real play began, omitting the first scene, and bringing on Miranda and Prospero on their isle in the Bermudas. It is practically impossible to give a Shakespearean play in full within the time limits allowed an ordinary performance, so that considerable cutting is necessary, but no criticism could be made on the portions chosen for omission in this production.

Caliban, the monster, was extremely effective, and the drunken butler and sailor supplied the needed comedy element, for the rest of the characters were taken with less lightness than is traditional. The Bermudas must have been considered a very melancholy place, for both Prospero and Miranda seemed to feel exceedingly sad at having to spend the Winters there. Nevertheless it did seem rather unnecessary, when Miranda was in the midst of her saddest speech to have a voice from a small boy, who had crawled to the ridgepole, break in: "Say, Helen, you stay right where you are. You can't see nothing from here."

About this time the police did some squelching, and the audience enjoyed the performance uninterruptedly for an hour or more. By that time things had progressed in the Bermudas, and Ferdinand, kneeling at Miranda's feet, vowed, "and your slave ever," in irreproachable chivalric accents.

Late in the season Mr. Harris will present "The Commuters," a new comedy of suburban life, by James Forbes, author of "The Chorus Lady," and a new play as yet unnamed by Charles Klein.

Mr. Harris has also in preparation "The Ghost Breaker," by Paul Dickey and Charles W. Goddard; "The Barbarians," by Edgar Selwyn; "The Natural Law," by Howard Hall; "The Children of Destiny," by Sydney Rosenfeld, and a new play, not yet named, by Elmer B. Harris.

NEW THEATRE IS BRADY'S.

He Is Back of Project to Build Playhouse in 48th Street.

William A. Brady, it was learned yesterday, is back of the project to build a new theatre in West Forty-eighth Street. The stock company which is to build the theatre was incorporated in Albany last week, and C. D. McCaull, a manager of one of Mr. Brady's theatres, was mentioned as one of the Directors.

The new theatre is to be called The Netherland, and it is to open on Jan. 1, 1910.

The property on which the theatre is to be built is situated at 137 to 143 West Forty-eighth Street. At one time it was the site of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, and lately it has been used as a garage.

This property, which occupied a frontage of 80 feet on the north side of Forty-eighth Street, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues, has been sold by Herbert L. May of Pittsburg through the Taylor-Sherman Company to a syndicate headed by A. C. Quarrier. Who Mr. Quarrier's associates in the new theatre enterprise will be could not be learned yesterday.

After the Christian Scientists built their new edifice at Central Park West and Ninety-sixth Street, this Forty-eighth Street property was unused for a long time and changed hands several times before coming into the possession of Mr. May. He is said to have held it at about $160,000.

SAENGERFEST JUDGES HERE.

Men Picked to Pass on Work at Madison Square Garden Met in the Bay.

Prof. Meyer Olbersleben and Choirmaster Gustav Wolgemuth, the two judges appointed by Emperor William of Germany to award the Kaiser's prize at the forthcoming song festival in Madison Square Garden, June 19 to 22, arrived yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse from Bremen. They were accompanied by Musical Director Mathieu Neuman, the composer of the prize song, "The Warning of the Rhine," which will be sung by the competing singing societies.

Several prominent musicians went down the bay on a revenue cutter to meet the judges and the composer, and members of the United Singing Societies of New York were on the pier. As the judges were to be the guests of the singing societies in this country, $300 was sent to each man to pay for his steamship round trip ticket. The members of the board came in the second cabin and saved the balance to spend ashore.

It makes no difference to us who invests in our bonds—it makes a great difference to you if you lose a chance—it is impossible in an advertisement to go properly into details, but we will send you on request a booklet telling you of our business real estate holdings in the heart of the city, why and how we can pay 6%—who our officers are and what convertible means. "THE MOTOR GIRL" IS LIVELY.

New Summer Musical Comedy Has a Lot of Good Songs.

Frank Hennessy's production of the Summer musical comedy, "The Motor Girl," had its first presentation in New York at the Lyric Theatre last night. The play is one of the liveliest Summer shows that has come to town this season. Its various songs have a truly musical lilt.

The play was evidently designed in the first place as a vehicle for Georgia Caine, but before it had advanced very far several other young women, principally Adelaide Sharp and Elizabeth Brice, were vieing for first honors.

The plot has to do with a motor girl, who wins a silver cup in a race which is never run, so far as the audience can judge. Miss Caine was Dorothy Dare, the Motor Girl, but, besides singing the praise of the automobile, she sang several other songs, which called out repeated encores.

Miss Brice took the part of Louise, the Countess of Altenstein, who masqueraded as several individuals. Miss Sharp was Wilhelmina, "a Deutscher maid in pastures new," and her performance, accompanied by a chorus of young Dutch girls and boys, recalled scenes from "The Girls of Gottenberg."

Miss Sharp's best songs were "Wilhelmina," "All the World Loves a Lover," and "When I'm a Duchess." The first act shows the plaza of a Holland city on Kermess Day.

The second act was transferred to the salon of the Grand Hotel, Paris, where the presentation of the silver cup took place. In this act several of the best musical numbers were rendered, including "Finesse," sung by Miss Caine and chorus; "In Philadelphia" and "Coffee and Cheese." "The Belle of the Dairy Lunch" was also appreciated.

James F. Cook as Bill Pusher, and John Lorenz as Robin Cayne, were really funny comedians, and Mr. Lorenz's dancing made a hit.

$20,000 Recovered in La Shelle Suit.

The verdict recovered by John Stapleton against Mrs. La Shelle, as administratrix of the estate of her husband, Kirke La Shelle, the playwright, from a jury before Supreme Court Justice Davis was $20,000. The action was based on a claim for work done by Mr. Stapleton on the plays "The Virginian" and "Checkers," which were produced by Mr. La Shelle. Benno Loewy was counsel for Stapleton.

Growing Every Day

One reason why everyone is rushing to read ARTHUR GOODRICH'S new novel,

The Lady Without Jewels

is its hero.
Restless, ambitious, clear-headed, lovable, young Duncan wins everybody, in the book and out of it. A saying that is characteristic of his breezy nature is: "The Eternal Feminine? Bah! The external feminine! Folderol clothes and soda water manners!"

CLOSING EXERCISES HELD AT PRINCETON

Degrees Conferred Upon 253 Members of the Graduating Class by President Wilson.

President Lowell of Harvard Praises Dr. Wilson's Policy at Princeton at Alumni Luncheon.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 15.—The one hundred and sixty-second annual commencement of Princeton University was held here this morning. At 10:15 o'clock the procession of Trustees, members of the Faculty and alumni, followed by the Class of 1909, formed in front of Nassau Hall and marched to Alexander Hall.

The exercises opened with music, followed by prayer. President Wilson presided. After this the announcement of prizes and the awarding of Bachelor's, Masters', and Doctor's degrees took place, followed by the conferring of honorary degrees. Isaac Thomas then delivered the valedictory, after which there were prayer and benediction, closing with the singing of "Old Nassau."

Honorary Degrees Conferred.

These honorary degrees were conferred: Doctor of Laws—President Abbott Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, Charles Francis Adams, Boston; Dr. Frank Hartley, New York; Doctor of Letters—John White Alexander, New York; Samuel McC. Crothers, Cambridge, Mass.; Doctor of Divinity—The Rev. John Carrington, Siam; Master of Arts—Gutzon Borglum, New York.

Outside of the commencement ceremony the most important event of the day was the alumni luncheon, which was held in the gymnasium. Andrew H. Joline of the Class of 1870 was toastmaster. President Abbott Lawrence Lowell of Harvard and Dr. Woodrow Wilson were the principal speakers.

Lowell Praises Princeton.

That the other universities of the land are looking to President Woodrow Wilson in his efforts to solve the problem of the college and that the trend of Princeton's educational policy is in an approved direction was the theme of the address delivered by President Lowell at the luncheon.

President Wilson spoke first of the feeling of comradeship which he felt toward President Lowell, and declared that the accomplishments of President Lowell would help to widen the counsel of college presidents, and incidentally draw Princeton and Harvard nearer and nearer together. Dr. Wilson called attention to Princeton's development along scientific lines for an alleged lack of which the Princeton of a few years ago was criticised. Since then, Dr. Wilson declared, the university had taken a foremost place in science. At the same time, he emphasized the need of a literary knowledge to accompany scientific study.

When President Lowell was introduced he received an ovation. He spoke of the close relation of Princeton and Harvard, asserting that they were both involved in solving parallel problems. He commended President Wilson for his courage in expounding the principle that "colleges exist for intellectual purposes." President Lowell said:

"President Wilson has undertaken more than one solution of college problems, and Princeton is thus an example and an encouragement to every other college in the United States. Everywhere I have gone I have heard lauded the preceptorial system of study introduced by Dr. Wilson. It is an unquestionable advance."

Senior Class's Farewell.

To-night, the graduating class gathered in front of "Old Nassau" for its final meeting. Only the new senior class and the graduates and a few invited guests were allowed to attend the ceremonies. It is the custom for the whole class to drink to the health of each one of its members. After the toasts had been drunk, the graduates burnt the benches from which they have sung so long and then marched to the Princeton Inn for their last dinner.

CLASS DAY AT TLAWRENCEVILLE

Mayor McClellan Warns the Graduates Against Newspaper Notoriety.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 15.—The final exercises of the commencement of 1909 class of Lawrenceville Preparatory School were held to-day on the campus and in the auditorium in Memorial Hall. Class day began at 11 A. M. The founders' day address was delivered by Mayor McClellan of New York. Diplomas were awarded to sixty-nine pupils.

In his address Mayor McClellan said:

"Years ago Senator Hoar told me that it was a very comforting sensation to know that one's future lies safely in the past. I was young then and doubted him, but latterly I have concluded that Senator Hoar was a very wise old man.

"Be yourselves, true to the best that is in you. Don't try to appear to be what you are not. Don't strive for effect. One of the weaknesses of our people and our day is our love of advertisement. It is an all too prevalent belief that the chief end of man is the attainment of publicity. 'If you won't praise me, abuse me, but don't ignore me' is a popular prayer to the newspapers.

"The yellow newspapers merely cater to the public appetite. If the public did not desire the silly, trivial, personal details of very uninteresting private individuals the yellow newspapers would not print them. Men to-day glory in the invasion of the privacy of their homes that their grandfathers would have resented with the pistol.

"An Englishman's house may be his castle, but an American's home is only too often a photographic studio. The dignified privacy of home life has been given up by those who throw open their doors to any passing idler who cares to explore the household sanctuary. We seem to enjoy living in public. The morbid curiosity that seeks to learn what kind of breakfast food is favored by the wife of some ignorant millionaire is not one whit more reprehensible than the morbid and vulgar vanity of the lady in eagerly furnishing the desired information. The enterprising newspaper that not long ago published a prose poem entitled 'Mayor McClellan at Lunch: What He Eats and How He Eats It,' felt much outraged because his Honor declined to let it take a flashlight photograph of the interesting ceremony."

MANHATTAN COMMENCEMENT.

Closing Exercises Held at Carnegie Hall.

The fifty-sixth annual commencement exercises of Manhattan College were held at Carnegie Hall last night. Notwithstanding the implications, made when the students of the institution recently went on strike, that diplomas would be held back, twenty-four degrees were conferred upon the graduates last night, as compared to only seventeen last year. Brother Castorius, one of the officials of the college, said last night that the strike had been merely a little incident, and that nothing further had come of it.

Among the recipients of the five graduate degress was the Rev. Matthew C. Gleeson of the class of 1891, Chaplain of the United States Navy, attached to the flagship Connecticut on the recent cruise of the fleet around the world. Seventeen undergraduate degrees were conferred and two honorary degrees—that of Master of Arts upon William C. Pommerer of the Bureau of Commerce and that of Doctor of Laws upon Dr. John W. Keefe of Providence, R. I. Twelve commercial diplomas, representing the completion of the four years' commercial course, were also conferred.

In the absence of Archbishop Farley, who is in Rome, the Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. J. Lavelle presided at the exercises. With him and the graduates upon the platform sat Brother Jerome, President of the college; the Rev. Thomas J. McCluskey, President of St. Francis Xavier College; James J. Walsh, Dean of the Medical School of Fordham University; Paul Fuller, Dean of the Fordham Law School; the Rev. William Penny, and Congressman John J. Fitzgerald, the speaker of the evening. The hall was well filled with friends and relatives of the graduates.

These degrees were awarded:

BACHELOR OF ARTS—R. J. Shea, G. J. Martin, J. F. Tewey, and J. M. Mulvey.

BACHELOR OF SCIENCE IN CIVIL ENGINEERING—J. H. Bolton, W. S. Mulrooney, W. J. Miller, J. T. Houlihan, W. T. Murphy, E. A. Ryan, D. F. McMahon, G. H. Boyd, H. A. Donovan, J. T. O'Halloran, W. J. Foy, W. L. Michel, and W. J. Dougherty.

MASTER OF ARTS—The Rev. M. C. Gleeson, and C. J. Barrett.

CIVIL ENGINEER—J. E. Dougherty, J. F. F. Flanigan, and F. A. O'Hare.

COLLEGE HONOR FOR KNOX.

LL. D. Conferred on Him by St. Thomas of Villa Nova, Penn.

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.—Secretary of State Philander C. Knox received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at the sixty-sixth annual commencement exercises to-day of the Roman Catholic college of St. Thomas of Villa Nova, near here.

Other honorary degrees in law were conferred upon the Rev. William Temple, rector of St. Elizabeth's Church, Wilmington, Del.; Leslie J. Tompkins, Secretary of the University of New York Law School; John Callan O'Loughlin of Washington, D. C.; George Whitney White, Washington, D. C., and Henry F. Walton of Philadelphia, former Speaker of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives.

The address to the graduates was delivered by Lewis Nixon of New York, upon whom was conferred the degree of Doctor of Science.

DEDICATE SAGE LABORATORY.

$400,000 Addition to Rensselaer Institute Completed.

TROY, N. Y., June 15.—The Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy has just celebrated the eighty-fifth year of its existence by the completion of one of the most modern mechanical and electrical engineering laboratories. It is a memorial to the late Russell Sage and was built with a part of the million-dollar gift of Mrs. Russell Sage. The building and its equipment cost over $400,000.

The exercises at the opening of the Russell Sage laboratory began at noon. The President of the institute read the letter from Mrs. Sage, in which she presented one million dollars to the institute, and the resolutions of the Faculty and trustees relating to the schools of mechanical and electrical engineering. Robert W. De Forest of New York then spoke in behalf of Mrs. Sage. He was followed by Jesse M. Smith, President of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and by Louis B. Stillwell, President-elect of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Various class reunions and dinners occurred in the evening, followed by the senior hop. To-morrow the commencement exercises will take place in Music Hall. The graduating class numbers eighty. The Macdonald prize for the best graduating thesis from the class of 1908 will be awarded to C. F. Reinicker of Baltimore, Md.

Within the past three years nearly two million dollars has been given to the institute. Andrew Carnegie gave a building to be used for lectures and recitations, and in 1907 a large and well equipped chemical laboratory was erected. Last year a student's club house was built beside the athletic field.

CORNELL CLASS GIVES $25,000

Graduates Pledge Aid for Alumni Work—Help Moakley Fund, Too.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 15.—The class day exercises of the class of 1909 of Cornell University were held to-day. After Dorr C. Price of Batavia gave the class oration and Roscoe C. Edlund of Brooklyn the memorial oration in the armory, the class marched to the quadrangle, where the ivy was planted at Goldwin Smith Hall. Frederick C. Rice of Ithaca was the ivy orator.

In the grove in front of Lincoln Hall the exercises were concluded by the reading of the class history by Walter G. Evans of Rome, and the class prophecy by Edwin Charles Mayer of Brooklyn. Then followed the presentation of the pipe from the senior to the junior class.

The class left as its direct memorial a sum of money toward the completion of the Moakley House Fund. This fund was started several years ago to give to Coach John F. Moakley of the track team $3,500 for a lot and $5,000 for a house. The alumni have contributed freely to the fund.

The class has also pledged itself to raise $25,000 for alumni purposes. The average subscription is to be $100. The committee in charge will collect interest at 5 per cent. every year until the principal is paid in. In this way a large sum is to be realized.

SMITH'S LARGEST CLASS—327

Young Women's College Celebrates Its 31st Annual Commencement.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., June 15.—The largest class that was ever graduated from Smith College—327 young women—received diplomas to-day from the hands of President L. Clarke Seelye at the thirty-first annual commencement. The exercises were held in Assembly Hall, where the commencement oration was delivered by the Rev. Dr. George A. Gordon, pastor of the Old South Congregational Church, Boston.

At the conclusion of the exercises the annual alumnae dinner was held in the new gymnasium, at which President Seelye announced the appointment of new teachers, and in the afternoon the meeting and reception of the alumnae association occurred.

DAYS OF CHEAP BREAD PAST,

Says Dean Davenport—Predicts a Population of 1,400,000,000.

KINGSTON, R. I., June 15.—"We have seen the last of cheap bread in this country," said Eugene Davenport, Dean of the University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill., at the graduation exercises of Rhode Island State College to-day, at which Dean Davenport and Gov. Pothier of Rhode Island were the principal speakers.

Dean Davenport estimated that in another 100 years the population of the United States would be 1,400,000,000, or more than 400 to the square mile of territory, and said:

"Any way you can figure it, we are near the end of cheap food in this country, which means that population is beginning to overtake the food supply. We can increase production yet manyfold, by means of better methods, more intensive practice, and the requisition of yet undeveloped acres, but the best land has been developed, its fertility has been more or less depleted, and some of it has already been abandoned, and while I have no desire to pose as a prophet, and still less to dogmatize, I am ready to venture the opinion that we have seen the last of cheap white bread in this country."

DIDN'T CRITICISE YALE.

Carnegie Foundation Has Yet to Investigate Entrance Requirements There.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 15.—Concerning a report that the Carnegie Foundation authorities are criticising the conditions regarding the admission of students to American universities and colleges, Secretary Anson P. Stokes of the Yale Corporation made the following statement to-day:

"An officer of the Carnegie Foundation has informed the Secretary of Yale University that there is no truth in the published reports that the foundation has expressed any special dissatisfaction with the enforcement of entrance requirements at Yale.

"The foundation is making a detailed and much-needed study of the entrance examination methods of different universities, but Yale has not yet been visited, although Dr. Pritchett is planning—with the hearty concurrence of the university authorities—to send his representative to New Haven in the near future."

Outside investigation shows that during the last eight years, about 18 per cent. of the final candidates for admission to the Yale academic department were not admitted and about 28 per cent. of preliminary candidates also failed. Of 441 preliminary candidates last year, 136 failed.

Vanderbilt Regrets Halma's Death.

It was regarded as a princely gift when William K. Vanderbilt, about two years ago, sent back to the United States and presented to the New York State Breeding Bureau the $30,000 thoroughbred stallion Halma, which, while prized for his Hanover blood in America, was regarded as a failure on Mr. Vanderbilt's breeding farm, the Haras de Villebon, near St. Louis de Poissy, France. Halma came to New York, and has been in service at a breeding bureau station at Delavan, N. Y. Since Halma's departure from France there has been a marked change in the estimates of the horse's potency, for Mr. Vanderbilt has quite recently had it brought to his attention that Halma is close about the head of the list of winning sires in France, and also is represented in Mr. Vanderbilt's own racing stable by sons and daughters ranking with the best horses in France. Mr. Vanderbilt made prompt acknowledgment that he had been hasty in his judgment of Halma, and his agents in New York have received instructions to repurchase Halma at any cost and ship him back to France, to be re-established at the head of the Vanderbilt breeding farm. The agents only began their negotiations for Halma to learn that the horse is dead, and that whatever his merit as a stallion his reputation must rest on the performances of the Halma colts and fillies now in the Vanderbilt stable in France. Halma, according to the report to the Breeding Bureau, died early in the Spring at the Delavan station. He was 17 years old.

SPRING VALLEY, Wyo., June 15.—I left Carter at 1:30 this morning determined to make a long day of it, but you know the old saying, "Man proposes." I arrived at Bridger at 5:15 A. M., where I endeavored to relieve myself of a chill. After a sort of fixing up I left there at 8:30 A. M., arriving at Spring Valley at 12:40 P. M. By this time I was in a frightful condition.

My fears of a few weeks ago are about realized, that is, the want of the much-needed food at the proper times and the lack of care have combined to bring about my present deplorable state. Just what the outcome will be I cannot at present determine, but I am doing all in my power to prevent lumbago, and sincerely hope I may succeed. If I am not successful there is only one thing to it—I am here for a long stay.

I cannot now say that I will be able to continue my walk to-morrow.

JEFFRIES GOES SIX ROUNDS.

In Bout with Berger He Impresses Pittsburgers Favorably.

PITTSBURG, Penn., June 15.—James J. Jeffries, retired heavyweight champion of the world, received a great ovation at Duquesne Garden here to-night, where he engaged in a six-round boxing exhibition with his sparring partner, Sam Berger.

Jeffries, in a short speech before the bout, said:

"I can't say any more than the papers have said, but when the right time comes I will deliver the goods."

The rounds were short, averaging fifty seconds each. Jeffries did the leading and delivered practically all the blows, Berger taking the punishment.

Jeffries appeared to have lost a great deal of weight, but was still heavy. He was extremely fast on his feet and very quick with his hands.

In the preliminaries Charles Goldman of New York had slightly the better of a bout with Young Ziringer of Pittsburg, while Harlem Tommy Murphy of New York outpointed Jimmy Dunne of Newcastle, Penn.

Johnson in Exhibition Bout.

BOSTON, June 15.—Jack Johnson, the world's heavyweight champion, appeared at the regular Tuesday night bouts of the Armory Athletic Association to-night and boxed three fast exhibition rounds with George Byers, a trainer. Johnson was well received by a large crowd, and made a speech in which he stated that no one had yet covered the $5,000 forfeit he posted on returning from Australia. Johnson referred briefly to his early training in Boston and declared himself a Bostonian.

The main bout of the evening, a twelve-round contest, was between Bill McKinnon of Roxbury and Jim Flynn of Boston, two heavy hitting local middle weights. Referee Sheehan announced the decision as a draw.

Savage Disposes of Mann.

Jim Savage, though fully twenty-five pounds lighter than Charlie Mann, beat the latter to a standstill in a ten-round go at Brown's Athletic Association last night. This is the second time that Savage has put it over Mann within a month. At no stage of last night's affair was Mann in front, and he held on and wrestled with Savage in an attempt to stave off a knockout.

CORNELL CREW STRONG.

Courtney, However, Says It Is Not as Good as in 1901 and 1905.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 15.—The crews of the Columbia and Cornell rowing squads were out for practice twice to-day. The work allotted by the coaches to the sweepsters was not strenuous. The Columbia oarsmen are glad to have Cornell's company on the Hudson River course. The rivals are watching each other with benevolent and unselfish curiosity, each confident in its own prowess. It is remarked that Coach Courtney's senior eight is the lightest Cornell has ever sent to the Hudson.

Mr. Courtney said to-day:

"I do not think that the 'Varsity eight this year is as good as the crew of 1905 or 1901, but it is a good crew and is doing very well. There is time for improvement. We have had no time trials to speak of, but if practice goes ahead smoothly the eights may be sent over the course this week. The 'Varsity has had only one four-mile trial this season, and that was on Saturday. The 'Varsity and freshmen have had one two-mile brush since the Harvard race."

The Columbia sweepsters were coached by James Rice this morning over a seven-mile stretch, paddling the distance at a 28 clip. This afternoon the men had a warming-up brush over the four-mile stretch. They rowed up stream with the tide and against a light breeze. Coach Rice stated to-day that he has not decided definitely on the make-up of the first 'Varsity eight. The men are rowing in the order of their boating arranged over a week ago. In case of a slump in the first 'Varsity, Coach Rice has plenty of good material in the second boat to fill in with, including Cerussi, Ryan, Jordan, and Keator.

Coach Courtney will entertain Coach Rice at Cornell quarters to-morrow. The Ithaca group received a warm welcome from the Morningside boys when they rowed past the Columbia barge this morning.

LIGHT WORK FOR OARSMEN.

Yale and Harvard Not Pressed in Their New London Training.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 15.—Neither Yale nor Harvard crews were given time rows to-day. Yale's freshman eight had a series of shake-ups to-day. Substitute Paul took Dilworth's seat at No. 4 in the morning, and the order of the rowing was again changed this evening, Dilworth being tried as stroke. Coach Kennedy gave the oarsmen instructions at close range this evening, when he vacated the launch Elihu Yale and entered Mr. Gillespie's smaller power boat Red Devil.

Coach Jim Wray coached the 'Varsity crews from his single scull this morning, but used the launch John Harvard this evening. The 'Varsity oarsmen were on the river just an hour, the freshmen being handicapped in starting, and were scarcely half that period in their shells. The latter crew did not leave quarters this morning, owing to examinations.

Dr. B. Ladd, who came from Cambridge to look after the health of the Harvard oarsmen, was called home to Boston at noon on account of the sudden death of his mother. Dr. C. Frothingham arrived to-night to replace Dr. Ladd.

KEENE'S BALLOT BEATEN AT ASCOT

American Horse Failed in His Debut on the English Turf.

COLIN STAYS IN PADDOCK

Seems to be Regarded as Certain That Champion Colt Will Not Race Abroad This Year.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 15.—James R. Keene's two famous American race horses, Ballot, champion of the handicap horses in the United States last season, and Colin, with an unbeaten record in his two seasons of racing in America, made their appearance at Ascot to-day, Colin simply being shown in the paddock, while Ballot ran his first race on the English turf in the Trial Stakes, over the seven furlongs and 166 yards of the Royal Hunt Cup course, and met defeat.

Ballot gave the impression of being still unripe and the idea was substantiated by his performance in his race. One moment Ballot seemed to be running at his ease and the next moment his jockey had his whip at work, and Keene's great horse collapsed utterly. After this performance it is not to be expected that Ballot will run for the Ascot Gold Cup.

Colin, in the paddock, attracted a lot of attention, but it seems to be regarded as a settled fact that Colin will not keep any of the engagements made for him in England, and it is even said that he soon is to be returned to America to enter the breeding stud maintained by Mr. Keene in Kentucky. A horseman recognized as an English racing authority says that Colin was unsound when he arrived in England. Samuel Darling, who has trained the Keene horses since their arrival here, realizes now the impossibility of winding up Colin, so it is probable that he will never run again.

In spite of the high weight fixed for Sir Martin in the race for the Royal Hunt Cup, the American colt is well supported for the race to-morrow.

AMERICANS KING'S GUESTS.

Royal Procession Goes from Windsor Castle to Ascot Course for Opening.

ASCOT, June 15.—The opening today at Ascot was unique in that for the first time an American woman, the Countess of Granard, who was Miss Beatrice Mills of New York, had a place in the royal procession which made its way from Windsor Castle to the royal inclosure, facing the Ascot course. This procession consisted of twelve four-horse open carriages with postillions, equerries, and outriders in uniforms of royal scarlet, in accordance with the custom when his Majesty the King drives in state. The first three carriages were occupied by the members of the royal family. In the fourth was the Countess of Granard, the Countess of Gosford, the Marquis de Soveral, and the Marquis of Angelsey, while other distinguished persons who are guests at Windsor Castle for the week followed in the other vehicles. The list of invitations to the royal inclosure was somewhat curtailed this year, so the lawn was not so crowded as usual.

The following Americans were recipients of these coveted invitations: Ambassador Whitelaw Reid and Mrs. Reid, the members of the staff of the American Embassy and their wives, D. O. Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills, Ogden Mills, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. William Sloane, Mrs. J. J. Astor, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Frank Mackay, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Duryear, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Farwell of Chicago. The list included also many other American women who are the wives of Englishmen.

AMERICAN TROTTERS LED.

Stotesbury's Exhibits in London Show Made Unsurpassed Record of Wins.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 15.—The international horse show in the Olympia ring had a brilliant close to-day, with a series of championship contests, which enlisted the keenest interest of an imposing array of spectators.

In the light harness competition E. T. Stotesbury, the Pennsylvania patron of trotting horses for road and show purposes, carried off the Vienna Cup with one of his superb trotters. With only six horses entered in the show, Mr. Stotesbury has won three first prizes and one second prize with his American trotters, his successes constituting a percentage unsurpassed at the exhibition.

In the heavy harness classes C. W. Watson of West Virginia, with only ten horses entered, achieved triumphs that have been productive of amazement as well as admiration on the part of all the horsemen present. With his ten horses Mr. Watson won eight first prizes, up to the close of this afternoon's exhibition, while Judge William H. Moore of New York, with five times as many horses, won eleven, and Walter Winans, with horses approximately equal in number to the Moore stable, won ten. Judge Moore won three championships, Mr. Watson won two, and Mr. Winans won one.

While the fast time made by Judge Moore, driving his own four, in the coaching Marathon yesterday, constituted a sensational success, as a record, there has been some sharp criticism of what has been termed the slapdash driving of the American. Judge Moore is said to have crowded some of the leaders in the contest when he made his rush forward to pass them, and in the crowding is said to have narrowly escaped going into the ditch himself.

One lead horse in the team of a rival coach came into the Olympia ring bleeding from the foreleg, which had been hurt in the encounter with Judge Moore's equipage. Some witnesses, however, declare that the mishap was not the fault of the American whip, and say that the whip on the rival coach held the American back for some time by unfairly monopolizing the road. Even when Judge Moore was nearly abreast the rival pulled his team over to force the Moore team to turn into the ditch. When Judge Moore did not turn the result was the injury to the leader in the rival team.

The incident has not been thought to be of sufficient importance to become the subject of an official complaint. An old stager at coaching through all of Great Britain, who drove with Judge Moore in the coaching Marathon, declared to-day that the American was the nerviest whip he ever saw handle a four-in-hand team.

Manhattan Wins from Queens.

Public School 169, Manhattan, won its second game in the elementary school baseball championships yesterday afternoon at Prospect Park by defeating Public School 58, Queens, by a score of 10 to 4. Neither team showed baseball of a fair order, errors on the part of both being in evidence at all times, and many of the runs were scored on these lapses in fielding. The score:

WHITE SOX WIN LAST GAME FROM YANKEES

"Hitless Wonders" Bat Two New York Pitchers Out of the Hilltop Box.

JOE LAKE COMES IN TOO LATE

Stops Run Getting, but Stallings's Youngsters Could Not Flatten Out Smith's Delivery for More Runs.

Palpitation of the heart in several acute attacks was given to 10,000 fans in American League Park yesterday, and when it was all over the triumphant White Sox, grinning like Chessy cats, turned their faces toward the Hub with three of the four games, with the Yanks hanging from their belts. Stretched on their spears, too, were the pelts of Manning and Wilson, both of whom they drove to the tall timber in that closing contest of the series. Lake alone was able to hold them, and by the time he took them in hand they had seven runs and eleven hits. New York, though achieving a tie in the fourth, couldn't turn the trick a second time, despite fair chances in the fifth and sixth and a golden opportunity in the eighth, which Demmitt opened with a screaming swat for the circuit.

Frank Smith, twirling for Chicago, held the whole Hilltop team in the hollow of his hand lightly as he would toy with a baby grand. That is to say, outside the fourth and eighth movements of the symphony. All the rest of the time, he ran the gamut of boxwork, sending over the plate arpeggios, chromatic scales, and staccato stunts until the high hopes of the Hilltoppers and their admirers became sweet bells out of tune and ended in a jangling discord on the black keys. The Sox won by a score of 7 to 3, whereas the Yankees might have carried the battle to an extra inning, if not to victory.

Bulldog Hahn, the resolute right fielder of the lakeside lads, was the batsman who had most to do with the triumph of his team. Lee Tannehill, with a riotous three-sacker to the scoreboard, actually won for the Sox, as he drove Dougherty home with the conclusive count. But it was Hahn who batted in the runs needed to offset the home outfit's three. He started right in at the breakaway to break up the game. Before Manning could train his range finder fairly on the pan Eddie leaned against the leather for a four-bagger to right centre. And in the fifth, with all the corners populous, he drilled through second for a single that enabled Tannehill and Atz to romp under the wire with Chicago's second and third tallies. Nor did that end Hahn's activity, for in the seventh, when his side was two to the good, he took a trudge, and recorded for the second time on White's sacrifice and Isbell's rap for a roost. Possibly Eduardo isn't the marshmallow youth in Breezeville to-day. Oh! not at all!

Hahn's homer was the only run made until New York went to bat in the fourth. Engle, in that round, responding to piteous appeals for a bingle, though two men were down, found a slit in centre for a sack and purloined the next perch impetuously. Chase was due, and realized it. His one-bagger to left brought Engle to port, and Hal went to second on the throw-in. Fandom begged like a dog for a long hit from Vaughn, but Tannehill was a world too quick for the youngster.

The logical sequence of a fourth-inning tie would seem to be extra careful work on Manning's part. Yes? Well, the youthful Manning evidently had been too busy cultivating curves to take logic as an elective study. Instead of tightening up, he loosened all the screws and simply played water boy to the Sox. Tannehill got to him for a sinister single, Atz for a scorcher few shortstops could hold, and Sullivan for a bunt that became a hit instead of a sacrifice, because the boxman himself fielding it became lost in thought until too late for an effective flip to first. The triangle was filled with none out. Fandom shuddered and, though Vaughn got under Smith's illicit hoist with neatness and dispatch, fandom groaned in anticipation as Hahn faced the box.

Well might it groan. Eddie's smash accounted for a couple of counts, and although the next two batters died, it was Chase's fine hotfoot grab of Isbell's low pop that prevented further chalking in that chapter.

All that was only the first section of anguish. Dougherty, in the sixth, stalked to the plate with a gimme-gimme glint in his eyes and got his gift. Purtell couldn't connect, but Tannehill could, and did, for a triple, scoring Long Pat. Lee made a hot finish on Atz's sacrificial roll, and there was the score 5 to 1 against the locals.

None too soon, Manning's sentence to hard labor on the slab was commuted for bad behavior, and Wilson, the boy southpaw, relieved him. What was the use? New York still had only one run, and Wilson's low shoots only perched Hahn. After a sacrifice and single sent Eddie around, Isbell snaked a sack, and, following Dougherty's fan, came in on Purtell's dexter drive for a nook. And behold, the record stood 7 to 1 in Chicago's favor.

Narration of that heart disease eighth in all its harrowing details would be like a technical report of a clinic. Large was the joy of the 10,000 faithful rooters when White's misjudgment of Demmitt's distance drive, coupled with his back-heel trip of himself, made the hit a circuit-cincher, much to Dem's surprise. More joy when Hemphill and Elberfeld singled. Now, then, you Engle. Ah! no—once, twice, thrice for Claudius, and back to the bench. But Chase carromed off Purtell for a corner, Hemphill registering, and the Kid went to third on Vaughn's out at first, Hal taking second. Hearts to mouths again when Knight, carelessly though he seemed to handle the hickory, waited profitably, animating all the angles.

"Batter up!" cried Silk O'Loughlin. And who should step forward but good old Jack Kleinow, who had gone behind the bat when Lake supplanted Wilson at the beginning of the eighth. Of course, Jack would swat it. Why, certainly! J'ever know him to fail? Well, he failed this time—a most involuntary bankruptcy—for an easy foul to Sully was the best he could do. And so the game went a-glimmering. The score:

BETWEEN THE INNINGS.

Now for the Naps.

Good morning, Larry.

Maybe there won't be doings to-day.

Why didn't Hemphill cover second on White's out at first in the fifth?

Elberfeld didn't get a chance until the seventh. It found him all attention.

Actor Atz made a grand running stop of Knight's sizzling single in the fifth.

You took a strange time to study the scenery, Mr. Manning, with Sully's bunt in your hand in the middle round.

New fancy the Sox have, that of making runs in blocks of two. Must be highly disconcerting both to masters and students of the slab.

What the Hilltoppers needed was an accelerator. Only in the eighth did they get up steam, and Engle quickly lowered the pressure by fanning.

Don't run away with the idea that Isbell is anywhere near a hasbeen. He can't run as he could, but at bat and covering the cushion he's Busy Izzy nearly all the time.

Either as a reward or a consolation, the Yankees are to see "The Man From Home" in the Astor to-night. The patriotic spirit of the play is expected to appeal to them.

Cy Young and Berger to take Cleveland into third place in the series beginning on the Hilltop to-day. All the Blues are resolved to return home well up in the race.

G. Tweedy Stallings says little at any time, but there's a glint in his eyes when the Naps are mentioned that bodes no good to the present visitors. The struggles between the Yanks and the Blues in the past usually have been fast and furious.

How interesting it would be and how it would amaze the calamity howlers if Chesbro, after all, should round to form this month. Happy Jack almost carried the Toppers to victory a few years ago. If he comes as close to it again, maybe he won't make a similar slip.

LAWTON WIGGINS FIRST BY A HEAD

Close Finish and Claim of Foul in Gravesend Race for Three-Year-Olds.

JOE MADDEN'S BROOKDALE

Hildreth's Horses Finish First and Second in $2,500 Handicap Stakes at the Brooklyn Track.

All the interest and excitement of the racing at the Gravesend track yesterday was furnished by the overnight events, and though the $2,500 Brookdale Handicap, at one mile and a furlong, for three-year-olds and upward, was the nominal feature of the card, the exercise gallop for S. C. Hildreth's entries, Joe Madden and Restigouche, which finished first and second, attracted barely passing notice.

For the spectators the real contests were the sprint handicap, won by King Cobalt in a smart finish with Rialto, and the mile and a sixteenth for three-year-olds, for which a close finish and a claim of foul against the successful favorite, Lawton Wiggins, kept the spectators in doubt until the official announcement of the result was made. Fouls were claimed in so many races that they were almost the rule at Gravesend yesterday, but the claim against Lawton Wiggins was of great moment to the crowd, for Lawton Wiggins was about the most popular favorite of the day, even the apparent certainty of victory for the Hildreth entry in the Brookdale Handicap making less appeal to the general public.

Lawton Wiggins, ridden by Butwell, started as about an even money choice in a field of fourteen, and, racing well forward all the way, came on at the end and fought out with Rostrum, which was the pacemaker into the last few strides. Just as Lawton Wiggins, under the whip from the head of the stretch, got up and looked to have Rostrum beaten, Rostrum came again under the whip, and, closing on the favorite in the last strides, passed the winning post on terms so nearly even with Wiggins that a great portion of the spectators thought Rostrum had won. The finish still was under dispute in the crowd when Scoville, who rode Rostrum, went into the Stewards' stand with a claim of interference and revived the anxiety of Lawton Wiggins's admirers until the Stewards dismissed the claim and placed the horses as the Judges saw them.

An attendance of about 3,000 witnessed the races, and though there was no official order, the crowd changed the place for "oral" betting from immediately in front of the grand stand to the lawn nearly opposite the furlong pole. The summaries:

SHAWMUT CAR LEADS RACERS.

Both Fords and Acme Have Troubles in Wyoming Mud.

Special to The New York Times.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., June 15.—Hard luck befell the cars in the New York to Seattle automobile race during the past twenty-four hours, and their positions have changed. The Acme car stuck in the mud at Pierce, forty miles south of Cheyenne, early this morning and was nearly all day extricating itself. At 5:30 P. M. the Acme passed Nunn, twenty-seven miles south of Cheyenne, but has not been seen since, and is probably again stuck in the mud.

The Shawmut car reached the big Union Pacific Railroad bridge over the Platte River at Fort Steele at 6:30 last night, and was held up by the station agent, who would not permit the car to cross the bridge without a permit from the General Manager at Omaha. The permit was not received until 10 o'clock this morning, when the car proceeded.

The Ford drivers had anticipated this, and secured a permit for both cars before leaving Cheyenne. Ford No. 2 crossed last night and spent the night at Rawlins, leaving there at 6 o'clock this morning, but broke down six miles out, and was towed back to Rawlins for repairs. Ford No. 1 reached Rawlins at 10 o'clock this morning badly crippled, having broken a wheel while crossing the Fort Steele Bridge.

The Shawmut arrived at Rawlins at 11 A. M. and left at 12 noon, and passed Wamsutter, 40 miles, at 4:25 this afternoon. Ford 1 and 2 left Rawlins at 4:45, since when nothing has been heard from the three leaders.

SMITH WINS GOLF MATCH.

Defeats Isaac Mackie in Grand Contest by One Hole.

Alec Smith, the Eastern professional golf champion, and Isaac Mackie played a match that attracted more than usual interest yesterday on the links of the Fox Hills Golf Club, Staten Island. Mackie is the Fox Hills professional, while Smith has charge of the Wykagyl Club links, at New Rochelle.

The match was at 36 holes, match play, for a purse. It was a hard-played contest from the first hole, but Smith finally won by the narrow margin of one hole. The match had its origin in the statement of a Fox Hills enthusiast that he did not believe there was a professional living who could defeat Mackie on his home links. Just for the sport of it, a friend offered to back Smith to defeat the Staten Island "pro."

The cards were:

Smith...5 5 4 5 2 4 6 4 4—39
Mackie...4 5 4 5 3 5 5 4 4—39
Smith...4 6 3 5 4 4 3 4 3—36—75

Rumson Beats New Haven at Polo.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., June 15.—In the first game of the Woodcrest Cup series to-day at Bala, the Rumson polo team of Seabright, N. J., defeated New Haven by the score of 10¼ to 6½. Rumson won a leg of the cup in 1907 and is striving to perfect their title. Frank S. Butterworth, the old Yale fullback, played back on the New Haven team. Hugh Druary had a narrow escape from death in the eighth period, when he was thrown over his pony's head and struck one of the goal posts. After remaining unconscious for almost fifteen minutes he was able to resume play, and finished the game. The teams and handicaps of the players were:

Rumson—S. Jones, 2; Walter McClure, 2; P. S. Borden, 3; C. H. Sabin, 1. Total handicap, 8.

New Haven—J. B. Thomas, Jr., 2; Hugh Druary, 5; R. C. Lawrence, 3; F. S. Butterworth, 3. Total handicap, 13.

Rumson lost ¼ goal by a safety and ½ for cross riding. New Haven was penalized ½ goal for mallet hooking.

Royal Arcanum Baseball.

Baseball under the title of "comedy game" will be seen at Washington Park, Brooklyn, on Saturday afternoon, when De Long and De Witt Clinton Councils of the Royal Arcanum line up for a struggle on the diamond. Herman A. Metz will umpire, and the proceeds will be devoted to the Royal Arcanum Bed Fund and Labor Bureau. The contest promises some exciting sport, if not high calibre baseball. In the event of rain the game will be played at the same grounds on Monday, June 21.

SUGAR BREAKS SHARPLY

Reactionary Tendency Controls Entire List—Wheat Prices Decline—May's Foreign Trade Showing Better.

On the Stock Exchange yesterday the movement of prices suggested the arrival of the reaction which Wall Street had come to consider as very much overdue. Without any particular explanation for the decline in the general run of news of the day stocks opened under pressure and sagged steadily to the close when quotations in comparison with the levels of the previous night represented losses of from 1 to 2 points in a majority of the active issues. It has been fairly obvious for a fortnight that the distribution of stocks resulted in the lodging of a considerable mass of securities in relatively weak hands, and it became, therefore, only a question of time before the customary reaction set in. Last week it was averted only through the strongly optimistic sentiment created by the favorable crop report and other encouraging news, such as that which came from the steel trade. In the absence of sustaining forces of a similar kind this week the decline in prices may well run further. It will be observed that all this has to do with technical conditions within the stock market itself, and that any movements there are in no way related to the movements in the business world which continue steadily forward. In several issues yesterday where maximum losses were sustained specific reasons were at hand. Thus, the break of 5 points or more in American Sugar shares was due solely to the disfavor into which this company and all its works have come owing to recent disclosures in the courts. The ordinary investor has no desire to participate in such proceedings as have been revealed in these judicial investigations. United States Steel common fell over 2 points, but not until after the close of business were there received the Paris cablegrams telling of the apparent failure of the effort to list the shares of a holding company for a block of Steel stocks on the Paris Bourse proper. It is taken for granted that such listing will be made in the coulisse, and the corporation's securities thus introduced, with practically the same results, to French investors. Local traction issues were strong, the explanation lying in the current reports regarding the progress made toward the reorganization of the companies. Interest attached to the grain markets owing to the continued decline there in the prices for wheat, these losses reflecting apparently the growing belief, even among the professional operators responsible for the wheat manipulation, in substantial harvests.

Bankers are following closely the course of money in London, where last week's flurry naturally raised the question as to the duration of the ease here. The demand from trade sources develops from day to day, but supplies are still adequate as current quotations abundantly prove. In connection with the endeavors of the Bank of England to attract gold once more the Government's preliminary statement of our foreign trade in May is interesting, showing, as it does, another record-breaking volume of imports, the figures exceeding those of May, 1908, by above $32,000,000, while exports increased $9,746,000. Imports fell below those of March and April, and this, together with the increase in exports, reflected in the showing as a whole a tendency toward improvement in our foreign trade, which should increase rapidly with the tariff out of the way and crop questions settled.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT—Favorable prospects for the new crop were again seen yesterday, when July broke a full cent per bushel, last prices showing ⅜c to ⅝c net loss. The greatest weakness was in Winnipeg, where the July contract closed at $1.32¼. A sample of the dispatches was one from Southern Indiana stating that cutting would commence next week, with predictions looking toward a larger yield and better quality. English markets closed ¼d to ⅜d net lower. Receipts at all interior points were 233,000 bushels, compared with 352,000 bushels a year ago. Cash wheat in New York was quoted, No. 2 red, $1.51 elevator and $1.51, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.38, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.35, free on board, afloat, all nominal. Exporters bought three loads.

CORN—Generally lower prices yesterday reflected improved crop conditions through the belt, larger receipts at Chicago, and a slow cash demand from the East. Liverpool was up ¼d, and the interior movement amounted to 499,000 bushels, compared with 930,000 bushels a year ago. Cash corn in New York continued nominal, No. 2, 85c elevator and 83c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 85½c, and No. 2 yellow, 85½c, free on board, afloat.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Old Crop Leads New in Final Advance—Closes 1 to 14 Points Up.

Cotton started irregular yesterday, but became firm in the last hour, advancing quite sharply and closing firm at a net advance of 1@14 points. Old-crop months were 8@14 points higher and the new crop was 1@9 points higher. The market opened steady at an advance of 2@5 points and prices soon weakened.

Detailed reports did not indicate heavy precipitation in the central belt. Private cables from Liverpool reported that crop advices reaching there by mail and cable were distinctly less favorable and expressed the opinion that there would be no organized short time in Manchester.

Contract prices ranged as follows:

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.—Notwithstanding the filing in the Supreme Court of a bill in equity to compel the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company to restore the strip tickets, the stock received sturdy support this morning, ruling around 28. Reading was a strong spot during the morning, but fell back later, whereas United States Steel was subjected to pressure at intervals. The market closed steady.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Bears More Aggressive.

It was generally conceded that the bears yesterday assumed a much more aggressive attitude than they had done on previous days. The irregular tendencies of the market lately had undoubtedly to some extent impaired the confidence of at least a part of the bull following, which took the precaution of spreading out stop-loss orders right and left. A little careful inquiry by shrewd traders can usually result in the disclosure of the extent of such orders in the market, and when they are found to be large they offer an almost irresistible temptation to bear traders as a target. Yesterday their aim seemed to be particularly good. The observation of those who had taken the trouble to inquire into the matter was that the market had become honeycombed with stop-loss orders, a condition which always contributes to technical weakness. It was too good an opportunity to be lost by bear operators, particularly in view of the conclusion which they reached that not quite such strenuous support was being accorded to prices as had been a week or so ago. The optimists who refused to admit that there was anything radically wrong with the speculative structure said that a cleaning out of weak accounts would only help matters.

⁂

Raid on Sugar.

Recent unsavory revelations concerning the American Sugar Refining Company and the announcement from Washington relative to a proposed Federal investigation had practically no influence on the market price of the stock until yesterday, but then the market made up for lost time, declining 8 points in all, to 123, from which a slight recovery occurred. Those on the floor of the Exchange who watched the transactions said that the movement bore all the earmarks of a "raid." It was started by a professional operator, and when he got through the general opinion was that the books of the specialists had few stop-loss orders in Sugar left on them. The selling was not heavy, amounting in all to little more than 7,000 shares. The sharp breaks, amounting to a point and sometimes more between sales, indicated clearly enough an absence of support, but when the fall became too violent some orders from inside sources appeared to stay the decline.

⁂

Jersey Central Dividend.

Reading was marked up sharply early in the session to 157⅛ on reports coming from very respectable quarters that the Directors of the Jersey Central at their meeting to be held in the afternoon would declare a quarterly dividend of 3 per cent., placing the stock on a 12 per cent. annual basis. This, of course, would add several hundred thousand dollars to Reading's income, derived from its Jersey Central holdings, but for some reason or other the plan was upset at the meeting, or the information, in the first place, had been wrong. The board declared only the usual 2 per cent. quarterly dividend. Jersey Central sold off a couple of points, and Reading receded nearly 3 points from the top, the decline in the latter, however, probably being more influenced by general market considerations than the failure of the Jersey Central Directors to increase that dividend. Some of the Philadelphia holders of Jersey Central, however, were keenly disappointed, as interests in that city are understood to have been buying the stock all the way from 225 up on the idea that the dividend would be raised to 12 per cent. at this period. They would seem to have little reason for complaint, though, considering the profits which must have accrued to them on their holdings, irrespective of the dividend question.

⁂

Strength of Tractions.

One notable exception to the general weakness in yesterday's market was found in the local traction shares. Interborough-Metropolitan preferred gained a couple of points and the common also improved, while Third Avenue and Metropolitan Street Railway shares likewise advanced from 1 to 2 points. Metropolitan Street Railway reached 30¼ on the Stock Exchange, and higher bids were said to have been made privately for a good-sized block of the stock. Reports were current that the announcement concerning the Metropolitan Street Railway reorganization project, which is expected to be made next week, would point the way toward a rehabilitation of that company's lines in a manner more advantageous to the owners of the property than the general public has supposed possible. The Third Avenue, of course, is no longer affiliated with the other local traction properties, but a sympathetic rise in its stock was regarded as natural.

⁂

The Wabash "Mystery."

Some of the edge appeared to be taken off the speculation in the Wabash issues by the failure of the multitude of rumors concerning the property to materialize into tangible form, and the preferred stock, after reaching a new high record at 61¾, sold off rather sharply. Dispatches from Montreal were to the effect that the proposed acquisition by the Canadian Pacific was chiefly in the Wall Street imagination, and nothing came out of the Lackawanna camp in confirmation of the well-worn story that that road was to take it over. Early in the day, to be sure, some one of an inventive turn of mind, disregarding the legend about the tail wagging the dog, set under way a new version to the effect that the Wabash was going to buy the Lackawanna. The yarn was well dressed up, with the proper amount of frills, but failed to carry with it a tone of conviction. The cynics suggested that the Wabash "mystery" might be cleared up later by the announcement of a sale of a considerable amount of refunding 4 per cent. bonds. A high price for the preferred stock, it was admitted, would not tend to interfere with the securing of a fairly good price for new bonds.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

United States Steel Active on the London Exchange.

LONDON, June 15.—Money was more plentiful on the market to-day, and discounts were quiet.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was irregular and generally dull and uninteresting. British and foreign securities were inclined to ease in the absence of support. Kaffirs weakened on further liquidation, but the lower level brought fresh support and there was a good recovery, Paris buying well.

American securities opened within a fraction of parity. Later prices improved on light buying, and at noon were quiet and unchanged to three-eighths of a point higher than yesterday's New York closing. In the afternoon United States Steel monopolized attention, but otherwise the market was dull. New York sold moderately and caused a setback, especially in the last ten minutes, and the market finished weak.

Bar silver dull at 24d per ounce.

Money, 1@1½ per cent. Rate of discount in the open market, for short bills, 1⅞ per cent.; for three months' bills, 1⅞ per cent.

PARIS, June 15.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were firmer.

BERLIN, June 15.—Prices on the Boerse to-day weakened on the new tax projects and the uncertainties of revenue reform.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The cash requirements of the Seaboard Air Line reorganization will be underwritten by a syndicate now being organized by Blair & Co., Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., and Middendorf, Williams & Co.

The syndicate being formed to provide $2,500,000 cash in the readjustment of the Southern Steel Company has been closed, it was announced yesterday, the full amount having been subscribed.

The Stock Exchange has admitted to quotation New York City Controller's temporary receipts for 4 per cent. corporate stock, due 1959, "and interest." Quotation has been discontinued in the unlisted department of the stock, when and as issued.

The Directors of the Trust Company of America have increased the dividend on the company's stock from 8 per cent. to 10 per cent. a year by the declaration of a quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent., payable on June 30 to stockholders of record on June 21.

N. W. Harris & Co. and the National City Bank have purchased from the Chicago Railways Company $5,000,000 first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds, the proceeds of which will be used for rehabilitation and extensions. The bankers will probably offer the bonds to the public in about a week.

Jonathan B. Currey, President of the Metropolitan Savings Bank, has been elected Secretary of the Association of New York Savings Banks. The institution of which Mr. Currey is the head has just declared its 112th consecutive semi-annual dividend at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum.

MIAMI CONTINUES LEADER

Reaches New High Record in Early Trading—Western Pacific 5s in Good Demand.

After some early improvement in prices and a moderate display of activity, the Curb market drifted in dullness yesterday with a reactionary tendency. Miami was again the feature, rising soon after the opening to a new high record, at 16⅞, this price showing an advance of ½ from Monday night's closing, but in the downward movement that developed later this gain was lost. Practically all the other copper issues closed lower, Boston Copper losing ¼, British Columbia ⅜, Davis-Daly ⅛, and Nevada Consolidated ¼. United Copper closed unchanged at 10, recording an earlier loss of ½. La Rose Consolidated reached a new high record for the year, at 7⅞, and closed at 7 13-16, with a net gain of 1-16. In the industrial list Standard Oil continued strong, with a net gain of 2, to 687; American Tobacco reacted 3½, to 44. Western Pacific 5s were in the best demand among the bond issues, although Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul new 4s were also fairly active. The last named sold at 94¾ to 94⅞ and the first named between 97¾ and 98.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

E. D. SHEPARD & CO.—Judge Holt of the United States District Court has designated William Allen, referee in bankruptcy, of 67 Wall Street, to take charge of the further proceedings of E. D. Shepard & Co., bankers and brokers, of 31 Nassau Street, who have been adjudicated bankrupt, both as a firm and individually, for Messrs. Shepard and Ensign, the two general partners.

KATE HAUKAP.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Kate Haukap, dealer in millinery at 26 West 125th Street, by two creditors—L. W. Marks, $282, and Bamberg & Risser, $308. It was stated that she was insolvent and made preferential payments. She was formerly employed in a large department store for ten years and began business for herself Sept. 1, 1908, buying the business of F. Alexander. It was said that she invested $8,000 in the venture. A representative of some of the creditors said yesterday that she had not been at the store for ten days and that she was in a sanitarium, suffering from nervous exhaustion, and that some of the large creditors had tried to protect the business for her during her absence.

FRAZIN & OPPENHEIM.—Judge Hand has authorized Payson Merrill and Joseph H. Wichert receivers of Frazin & Oppenheim, dealers in shoes and cloaks, on Sixth Avenue and various other places, to continue the business for thirty days. Two creditors, the Second National Bank of this city, $40,000, and the Julian & Kokenge Company of Cincinnati, have filed specifications of objections to the composition offer of 35 cents cash and 40 cents in stock of a new corporation, and these have been referred to William H. Willis of 80 Wall Street to take testimony. The Second National Bank loaned the money, it is stated, on the strength of a statement of the financial condition of the firm on Jan. 1, 1908, showing resources of $979,494 and liabilities of $288,653. The bank alleges that the provision for stock in the new corporation is illegal and not authorized by the bankruptcy act; also that the offer is not for the best interests of creditors because it postpones indefinitely the payment of any amount in excess of 35 per cent.

THE AMERICAN STEEL SPRING COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the American Steel Spring Company of 2 Rector Street by these creditors: Thomas B. Wilgus, $2,100; Edward L. Kent, $16, and Atwood Paxson, $200. Mr. Wilgus stated that his claim is $100 for salary and $2,000 for moneys obtained from him under false representations as to material facts. Mr. Paxson stated that his claim is for money obtained from him under false representations about March 13. Mr. Kent's claim is for money lent. These creditors allege that the company is insolvent, and on May 29 made a preferential payment of $56 to the United States Express Realty Company, owner of the building. In trade circles little was known about the company, which has had an office for about six months at 2 Rector Street. It is a New Jersey corporation, and was reported to have a small plant at Cambridge, N. J. Mason G. Worth, the President, was said to be the principal one interested in it. He has been President of a number of steel companies in Philadelphia, Pittsburg, and other places.

Discharge from Bankruptcy.

Judge Hand has granted a discharge from bankruptcy to Alice B. Campbell, manufacturer of cloaks at 18 Waverley Place, whose liabilities were $5,372 and assets $4,218.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 15.—The stock market was dominated to-day by the weakness of sugar. The local Coppers were quiet and practically unchanged. Miami was strong, but North Butte was rather heavy. Telephone could not stand up against the weakness of the general list, and that stock went off a fraction.

BERSIN SEEN IN EAST SIDE SALOON

Police Now Hear Murdered Painter Frequented Resorts in That Part of Town.

WORE ALL HIS JEWELRY

Detectives Return to Their Original Theory That He Was Lured to a Dive and Killed There.

A new turn was given the investigation into the murder of Samuel Bersin, the painter, whose mutilated body was left in bundles at Oliver and Henry Streets last Thursday night, when Central Office detectives were told yesterday that Bersin the night before the murder was seen in a saloon in the vicinity of the Bowery.

From what the detectives had been told by the relatives of Bersin, they were led to suppose that the victim of the murder was not given to frequenting such resorts. They were, therefore, quite unable to trace out their first theory that he had been enticed to a room in the neighborhood of the Brooklyn Bridge and there put to death. The detectives were told by Bersin's brother, Solomon Bersin of 180 East 101st Street, and others of the painter's relatives that he was a young man of exemplary habits and not given to spending any of his time in saloons.

It appears, from the developments of yesterday, that Bersin was fairly well acquainted with certain saloons east of the Bowery, and that he went to these places at frequent intervals to play cards or sit with acquaintances, drinking. The night before the murder, according to a witness found yesterday, Bersin visited the particular saloon in question early on Tuesday night, a week ago. There he is said to have met some men whose acquaintance he had made in his visits to east side resorts.

Bersin left the saloon late in the evening, saying he was going home, according to the information obtained by the detectives. Before going to the east side he had called upon his brother, Solomon Bersin, and had taken a lesson upon the violin from his instructor. Bersin did little drinking at the east side saloon, and was not in any sense under its influence, the detectives were told, when he left there.

In his trips to resorts in the vicinity of the Bowery, Bersin always wore his elaborate display of jewelry, and this, the police think, must have been the incentive to the murder. He is known to have worn the jewelry on Tuesday night, for he had it on when he called upon his brother.

The police are keeping secret this line of information, so far as the location of the saloon and the men whom Bersin met are concerned. They have been unable to find those with whom Bersin drank on Tuesday night. In the neighborhood of this saloon are many resorts of questionable type, and into one of these, the police think, Bersin may have been lured the night the murder was accomplished.

Capt. Carey considered the new clue of sufficient importance to put four of his men at work on it. They are trying to learn what has become of the men who were in Bersin's company that night.

The police attach little weight to the suggestion that Bersin was a Russian revolutionary spy or that he was in any way associated with such work. Capt. Carey says that Bersin was not affiliated with any organizations excepting a painters' union. He has made every effort to ascertain whether or not the murdered man could have been regarded with suspicion by the Russian Government's agents in this city, and has been unable to find any basis for such belief.

Mrs. Isaac Fremerbaden, who has a pushcart in front of 60 Hester Street, told the police yesterday that she had sold a strip of drill oilcloth, similar to that in which the dismembered parts of Bersin's body were wrapped, to two men on Thursday morning. They looked over her stock, she said, and seemed to be in a hurry. The piece they bought was the length of that which, ripped in half, had been used by Bersin's murderers.

"One of the men carefully examined the cloth and remarked to the other that it seemed to be all right," said Mrs. Fremerbaden. "They spoke together for a moment and then one of them said he would take it. The two men went away in the direction of Orchard Street. They walked rapidly, one of them slightly ahead of the other."

Mrs. Fremerbaden was asked for a description of the men, but could help the detectives little. She said she paid more attention to watching her cart than she did the features of her customers. She thought one of them bore a resemblance to the man who left the two bundles at Henry and Oliver Streets, but was not certain enough of it to make the detectives feel that her information was of much value.

Mrs. Solomon Bersin informed the police yesterday that Bersin, her brother-in-law, was on the east side visiting a woman two weeks ago last Sunday night. This was soon after Miss Jennie Siegel had finally forbidden him to call upon her any longer. Mrs. Bersin happened to meet Bersin upon the street that day and he told her he "had a new sweetheart." She asked him who the sweetheart was and Bersin replied: "Oh, just some one that I like, that's all." The police will try to find this young woman and see if she can throw any further light upon his life in the east side.

MORE "UNWRITTEN LAW."

Italian Who Killed His Faithless Wife Is Acquitted in Court.

The "unwritten law" apparently won yesterday in the case of Francesco Ferro, an Italian, who was acquitted of a charge of manslaughter in the second degree by a jury in the County Court, Brooklyn.

Ferro was indicted for beating his wife to death. His defense was that he returned unexpectedly to his home and found a man there with his wife. Seizing a heavy bed slat, he attacked the man. Mrs. Ferro got between them and, according to the husband, was unintentionally struck several times.

Ferro said he had no thought of killing the woman. The jury apparently believed his story, as it returned a verdict of not guilty, after being out only a few minutes.

ARRESTED IN WEDDING DRESS.

Murder Charge Halts Young Mrs. Cress's Marriage.

Special to The New York Times.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., June 15.—Mrs. Myrtle Thompson Cress, the 18-year-old daughter of Augustus Thompson of Denver, was arrested last night at the home of her stepfather, B. D. Tyson, eight miles north of Colorado Springs. She was to have been married at noon to-day to Charles Stevenson of Denver. When she was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Bruno she was dressed in her wedding outfit. The charge against her is the murder at Woodland Park on Dec. 19 of Charles Phillips, a young man.

Phillips and a brother of the girl were examining a revolver, which the accused took and was showing to Phillips, when it was discharged, killing him instantly. She was acquitted by the Coroner's jury. District Attorney Fugerson and other Teller County officials have recently found alleged incriminating evidence. Mrs. Cress was married to George Cress at the age of 14 years. She was divorced from [illegible]

YERKES CASE ARGUMENT.

Mr. Cravath for the Receiver Characterizes the Widow as "Irresponsible."

James Russell Soley, counsel for Mrs. Charles T. Yerkes, and William B. Hornblower, who was also brought in on the widow's side of the Yerkes receivership fight in the Federal courts here, had it out with Paul D. Cravath as counsel for the petitioning creditor, the Underground Railways of London, before Judges Noyes, Coxe, and Hough in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday on the appeal of Mrs. Yerkes from the decision of the lower court appointing a receiver for the estate in this Federal jurisdiction. Decision was reserved.

Mr. Soley denounced the action of representatives of Receiver Harrington Putnam in forcing their way into the Yerkes residence and camping out there. He declared that the petitioning creditors were secured creditors in the first place and did not need to ask the protection of the courts through the appointment of a receiver. He backed this assertion by arguing that inasmuch as the claim of the London Underground is for a second assessment remaining unpaid on 38,000 shares of the company's stock, for which Charles T. Yerkes subscribed prior to his death, the company could not possibly lose anything, for if this assessment is not paid, Mr. Soley declared, the company can take back the stock itself and thus have its claim liquidated.

Mr. Soley objected also that Mrs. Yerkes was not notified when the receivership was sought and that the allegations in the bill were of the most vague and general character. He asserted that Mrs. Yerkes had done her best to conserve the estate, and in particular to protect the art gallery in the Fifth Avenue house. The house itself, he said, is fire-proof, and hence the valuables stored in it are in no danger.

In answer to Mr. Soley, Mr. Cravath declared that the London Underground was not a secured creditor, and that the railroad had no recourse but to ask for the appointment of a receiver. Mr. Cravath referred to Mrs. Yerkes as an irresponsible person, and urged that if the receivership should be lifted the estate would be wasted, to the great loss of all the creditors.

In reply Mr. Hornblower made an argument on the points of law involved, contending that the United States courts had no jurisdiction to administer the estate of a person deceased.

70-FOOT WALL FALLS AT FIRE.

Several Firemen Hit by Bricks and Workmen Jump to Safety.

Thrilling scenes marked the destruction by fire yesterday of a large five-story brick factory building at 29 and 31 Morrell Street, Williamsburg. More than 100 families were driven into the street from surrounding tenements, and while the firemen were fighting the blaze from in front the wall suddenly collapsed outward and the firemen had a narrow escape, some of the bricks striking their helmets.

The first floor and basement of the factory were occupied by Edward Kraushar as a candy manufacturer; Abe Cohen, a manufacturer of women's wrappers, had the second, and the third, fourth, and fifth floors were tenanted by Sol Edinger, Henry Klein, and Samuel Brechert, manufacturers of trousers. About 250 men and women worked in the building. At 6:15 o'clock a fire started in the front basement and spread so rapidly that the men who had already entered the building could not get out. They rushed to the front fire escapes, and as they were shouting for help smoke poured out from the front windows, and they began to slide down the fire escapes and dropped from the second floor to the sidewalk.

While the firemen were fighting the blaze from in front of the factory the front wall, about seventy feet high, suddenly gave way, falling outward and almost covering a dozen firemen of Hook and Ladder Company 58 and Engines 116 and 137 with the débris. Several of the firemen were injured by being struck by bricks. The loss was $75,000.

SETTLING UNION DISPUTES.

Federation of Labor Executives Meet Here.

The first day's session of the convention of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, called to settle trade disputes between unions, was opened yesterday forenoon by President Gompers at the Victoria Hotel.

Several disputes between warring unions were partially settled. In other cases a decision will be given later in the week. President Perham of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers attended the conference to speak on a plan to amalgamate the International Association of Car Workers and the Brotherhood of Car Men, and a tentative agreement was reached.

It was announced that because of the trip to Europe of President Gompers, who sails on Saturday, the International Trade Union Congress, which was to have been held in 1910, will be held in Paris this year in order that Mr. Gompers may attend it.

"I will be back here to attend the convention of the American Federation of Labor in Toronto on Nov. 8 unless I am sent to jail in the meantime," Mr. Gompers said. "The appeal in the contempt case comes up in October, but I have hopes that the higher court will decide that my colleagues and myself are not in contempt."

RAPID RISE IN SIX YEARS.

Supt. Dutton of the B. R. T. Resigns to Go Into Business.

After rising in six years from a humble position on one of the elevated lines of the system to one of the most important offices in the company, Arthur N. Dutton has resigned as Superintendent of Transportation of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to become the Vice President and General Manager of the Peerless Motor Car Company of New York.

Mr. Dutton had no street railway experience when he entered the employ of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company six years ago. He is a native of Milwaukee, and only 36 years old. General Manager John F. Calderwood yesterday issued a statement expressing regret at Mr. Dutton's resignation.

Troy Undertaker, Shot by a Robber, Dies Trying to Reach Telephone.

TROY, N. Y., June 15.—Thomas H. Nealon, an undertaker of this city, was shot and almost instantly killed in his office to-day by a robber. He died while trying to reach the telephone to summon aid. His assailant is not known, but is described as an Italian, about 35 years old. He made his escape after the shooting.

Mr. Nealon was understood to have a large sum of money on his person this morning, and the wallet containing it is missing.

POLICE CAPT. KUHNE MUST GO TO JAIL

Court of Appeals Holds That He Must Serve 30 Days and Pay $250 Fine.

HE'S GUILTY OF CONTEMPT

Case Grew Out of the Photographing of Frank Jenkins for the Rogues' Gallery.

Acting Captain Kuhne of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau must serve thirty days in the Raymond Street Jail and pay a fine of $250 for contempt of court, according to an opinion handed down yesterday by the Court of Appeals in Albany. The decision upholds the judgment of contempt in having held Frank Jenkins, an officer of the Jenkins Trust Company, which suspended in the panic of 1907, long enough to photograph and measure him for the Rogues' Gallery, in defiance of a writ of habeas corpus requiring that Jenkins should be brought before the Justice as soon as he was arrested.

Capt. Kuhne said last night that he was ready to be arrested as soon as the Sheriff served the order on him. "A great many persons are under the impression that this case against me grew out of the 'mugging' of Frank Jenkins for the Rogues' Gallery," said the Captain hotly. "They are under the wrong impression. The decision to-day was in connection with a civil case, and there is no photographing of prisoners in a civil case. My offense consisted simply in not obeying an order of the court in the way the court thought I should obey it. It is not a crime nor a misdemeanor."

Despite the Captain's assertion that his difficulties with the courts have grown out of a civil case, there has been an impression, based upon facts, that the head of the Detective Bureau in Brooklyn got into difficulties with the court solely because of the photographing of Jenkins.

Now that his conviction has been finally sustained beyond hope of reversal the question has arisen as to what the Police Department and Commissioner Bingham will do about it.

A question which has arisen is how the Acting Captain is going to spend thirty days in jail and still retain his official place. There is a rule in the Police Department which says that a man may not be absent from duty except on account of sickness for more than twenty days with pay. Kuhne isn't sick, but he has got to stay away from his office for thirty days.

The action against Kuhne grew out of the Jenkins case in this way: A bench warrant was issued for Jenkins after the suspension of the trust company in which he was an official, but before it could be executed his attorneys took him before County Judge Fawcett and he was released on bail. Then his counsel obtained the writ of habeas corpus from Justice Burr, and it was supposed that the banker had been saved from any possibility of being photographed and measured by the police.

As he was leaving County Judge Fawcett's court with his wife, however, he was taken into custody by two of Capt. Kuhne's detectives and, despite his protests, was taken to Brooklyn Headquarters, where he was photographed and measured.

Kuhne admitted that the writ had been served, but said he thought it was a forgery, as some changes had been made in it, and he could not be sure that the original court order was being served on him.

Capt. Kuhne hurried to Manhattan Headquarters when he learned of the decision of the Court of Appeals, presumably to see Commissioner Bingham. The Commissioner was not in his office, however, and the Captain had to leave without seeing him.

BOOK AGENT AT 98.

George C. Payne Voted for Andrew Jackson—Walks Eight Miles Daily.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., June 15.—The oldest book agent in the world was in Montclair to-day. He is George Clinton Payne, 98 years old. Mr. Payne has been a book agent for many years, and he says he will retire when he is 100. He is as lively as a man of 65, and walks on an average of eight miles each day. His eyesight is good, but he admits with regret that he has to give up reading at night. He can read all but the finest print without glasses.

Mr. Payne is a grandson of Col. Payne, who served with distinction in the Revolution. Mr. Payne cast his first vote for President for Andrew Jackson in 1828, and has voted for every Democratic candidate since. At present Mr. Payne is making his headquarters in Newark.

CITY A TRACTION PARTNER.

The Chicago Plan Put Forward by the Traction Reorganizers.

A rise in the traction stocks yesterday, particularly in Interborough-Metropolitan, was accompanied by talk of the policy likely to be pursued in the reorganization of the Metropolitan Street Railway properties. It was suggested that the reorganizers may undertake to put in effect a plan similar to that followed in Chicago, providing for a valuation of the property and a division of profits with the city.

A committee of the Chamber of Commerce some months ago lent its approval to the plan which had been worked out in Chicago, which establishes a valuation upon which the city may take the properties over if it sees fit, and meanwhile makes the city and traction companies partners in the net earnings of the companies.

Collector Loeb Learning the Ropes.

In pursuance of his policy to familiarize himself with the workings of the various branches of the Custom House of this city, Collector Loeb went down the bay yesterday afternoon on the revenue cutter to board the incoming liner Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. The Collector returned on the liner to her pier in Hoboken, and spent an hour there watching the Inspectors handling the baggage. There seemed to be a great deal of activity on the part of the Inspectors while the Collector was making his rounds.

Army Medal Thief Sent Up.

Barnett Klass of 3,766 Park Avenue, twice a deserter from the United States Army, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Malone, in General Sessions, to grand larceny in obtaining on a forged order a trunkful of army medals from Fort Schuyler, and was sentenced to serve not less than two years and four months nor more than five years, in Sing Sing.

New Fast Southern Railway Train.

The Southern Railway announces that it will put on new special trains between New York and Memphis, Tenn., and Memphis and New York, on next Sunday, June 20, which will shorten the present schedule between these cities by six hours. The new trains will give an additional express service between New York and Chattanooga and such other intermediate points of importance as Knoxville, Bristol, Lynchburg, Washington, Baltimore, and Philadelphia. The westbound train will leave here daily at 9:25 o'clock P. M., arriving at Memphis at 7:30 o'clock on the second morning after.

Bermuda Celery Confiscated.

Two unsuccessful attempts on the part of Collector Loeb to sell at public auction sixteen crates of unclaimed celery recently imported from Bermuda came to an abrupt end yesterday when employes of the Department of Health swooped down on the Seizure Room at the Appraisers' Stores and confiscated the goods on the ground that they were too badly decayed to be allowed to go into general consumption. Deputy Collector Storey, representing the Collector, was unable to get any bids for the celery when it was put up at auction on Monday.

COURT CALLS WITNESS A LIAR.

Drives Him Out of Court and Directs an Acquittal in Murder Case.

Suddenly set free while on trial for his life on a charge of murder in the first degree was the experience of Charles Wagner in the Flushing Supreme Court yesterday. Wagner was charged with shooting to death John Dolan in Mariondale Park, Maspeth, on the night of June 28 last year.

The trial began Monday with the examination of Miss Minnie Carroll, who was with Dolan when he was shot from behind, and Irving Wetzler, who testified to seeing a pistol in Wagner's hand following the shooting.

The prosecution had no further evidence to submit, and on motion of Lawyer Bennett the Justice directed a verdict of acquittal. After the formal verdict had been returned, the Justice asked the jurymen how they personally felt, and they replied, "Not guilty." Then Justice Aspinall summoned Irving Wetzler, the chief witness for the prosecution, before him.

"Wetzler," said the Justice, "I believe you are a monumental liar and a stool pigeon. Don't talk to me," as Wetzler essayed to speak, "or I will send you to jail in five seconds. Get out of here at once." Wetzler left immediately, and Wagner remained to shake hands with everybody in sight.

At the time of the shooting the charge was made against Wagner that he was jealous of young Dolan, who, it was alleged, had taken his sweetheart, and that while going out of the pavilion following a dance he stole up behind Dolan and shot him in the back.

PASSENGERS ON THE CECILIE.

E. C. Jones, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and Otto H. Kahn Among Them.

E. Clarence Jones, the banker, of 100 Broadway, was among the outgoing passengers on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie yesterday. He said his object was to inspect the various capitals of Europe, as a member of the American Embassy Association, to make inquiries as to the lodging of Ambassadors and see if it was possible for men of brains instead of wealth to represent their country abroad.

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., with her children, sailed on the same liner. Otto H. Kahn, the banker; the Swedish Minister, Herman de Lagercrantz, and Edwin Gould were also on board. A great throng gathered to see the liner sail.

POLICEMAN'S WITS ASTRAY.

Found Him Asleep on Fire Escape, Said He'd Hidden His Uniform.

Patrolman Edward C. Lawler, attached to the Prospect Park Police Station, was found asleep in a shabby suit of civilian's clothes on the fire escape on the second floor, rear, of the apartment house at 786 Washington Avenue, Brooklyn. The tenants notified the Grand Avenue Police Station.

When a policeman arrived Lawler told him that he had meant no harm. When asked where his police clothes were, he replied that his uniform, shield, and revolver were hid in a soap box in Eastern Parkway.

Police Surgeon Terry, who was called to examine Lawler, decided that he was suffering from acute mania, and had him sent to the Kings County Hospital.

At the Bedford Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association it was said that he was suffering from religious dementia. He is said to be a total abstainer and of quiet habits.

He was formerly a stenographer in the office of Inspector Hollahan, but suffered a nervous breakdown, and was sent to the Parkville Police Station in the hope of improving his condition.

Lawler is 34 years old, and has been on the police force seven years.

OPPOSE VAN NORDEN MERGER.

Minority Employ Counsel to Protect Their Stockholding Interests.

A committee consisting of John T. Terry, Arthur A. Fowler, and R. C. Wood has been formed by the minority stockholders of the Van Norden Trust Company to protect their interests in the event of a possible merger with the Carnegie Trust Company. The committee has chosen John C. Tomlinson as its counsel, and has asked the State Superintendent of Banks to give the committee a hearing before approving any plan which may be submitted to him for the proposed merger. The committee, it was made known, has also written to the Carnegie Trust Company asking for information regarding the purposes of the syndicate which recently took over 70 per cent. of the Van Norden Trust Company's stock.

Mr. Tomlinson pointed out that 70 per cent. of the Van Norden stock had been taken over at 325, presumably with the object of merging the institution with the Carnegie Trust Company. Since this transaction was carried through the stock of the Van Norden Trust Company, he said, had declined materially in price and the committee was formed, he said, to make certain that in any merger the minority stockholders got a fair price for their stock. He said the committee had no reason to suppose that the minority would not be fairly treated, but the committee was formed to make sure. The minority will be ready, he said, to take such steps as are provided by law in the event of the adoption of any plan which did not seem to the minority to be fair.

President Dickinson of the Carnegie Trust Company said that the formation of the minority committee spoke for itself, and he had no statement to make on the subject. In response to a question regarding plans for the merger of the two institutions, Mr. Dickinson said all he had to say was that a block of the company's stock formerly owned by certain gentlemen was now owned by certain other gentlemen, and that that was as far as the matter had got. The adjourned annual meeting of the Carnegie Trust Company stockholders was adjourned again yesterday for another week.

CORN PRODUCTS' NEW RIVALS.

Competition, Threatened from Several Points, Keeps Down Dividend Rate.

The Directors of the Corn Products Refining Company announced yesterday another quarterly dividend of 1 per cent., it being explained in a formal statement that the dividend was continued at this conservative rate as the Directors felt that it was best to do so in view of increased competition from manufacturers now in the business and because of the reports of proposed new competition.

Among the concerns reported to be about to offer new competition with the Corn Products Refining Company are the Royal Baking Powder Company, which is enlarging its facilities; the National Candy Company, and other concerns at Kansas City, Peoria, Ill., and at other points.

Metropolitan Steamship Reorganization

The plan of reorganization of the Metropolitan Steamship Company provides, it was reported from Boston yesterday, for the organization of a new company, which will authorize an issue of $3,000,000 bonds, $500,000 of which will be reserved to provide for so much of the floating debt as may be decided by court to have a lien ahead of the bonds. The other debts of the company will be settled by the issuance of new stock at par. George E. Shaw, Henry Hornblower, and John W. McKinnon are the reorganization managers.

To Dissolve a Furniture Company.

Application has been made to Justice Guy of the Supreme Court for the voluntary dissolution of the Zucchi Manufacturing Company, art furniture, 511 West Thirtieth Street, by Directors E. O. Zucchi, Frederick W. MacDonald, and Leander H. Crall, and the order to show cause was set down for Oct. 5. The liabilities are $7,892 and the assets $14,657, mainly in machinery, stock, and accounts.

Jubilee for Post Office Clerks.

The clerks of the New York Post Office will have a festival to-night at the Manhattan Casino Park, Eighth Avenue and 155th Street. In the unique invitations sent out, all in rhyme, every one of the clerks' friends has been urged to "forget for the time dull worry and work, enjoying yourself with the Post Office clerk." A feature of the festival will be the singing of the new National anthem, "My Own United States."

HEINZES INDICTED IN COPPER INQUIRY

Bills Returned Against Brothers F. A. and A. P. for the Loss of Copper Books.

ALL-SUMMER INQUIRY BEGUN

District Attorney Wise May Get No Vacation on Account of the Sugar Trust and Copper Prosecutions.

Indictments were returned yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury, which has been investigating the Heinze-Mercantile National Bank affair, against F. Augustus Heinze and Arthur P. Heinze, on charges of obstructing justice. A similar indictment was handed up to Judge Ray by the Grand Jury on Monday against Sanford Robinson, formerly a Director of the United Copper Company and one of Heinze's counsel from the time when the Montana Copper man came into the New York financial world.

The indictments of yesterday as well as the Robinson indictment were based upon the disappearance of fifteen volumes of the United Copper Company's books which United States District Attorney Wise was using, back in May, in his Grand Jury probe of the doings of F. A. Heinze in the Mercantile National Bank.

The two Heinzes are charged in yesterday's indictments with having made away with the books that Mr. Wise is anxious to get. Their indictments are believed to have been made possible by testimony which Tracy Buckingham, the former transfer agent of the United Copper Company, gave to the Grand Jury after he came back from Canada and announced that he was tired of being a "goat." Buckingham, according to reports that have been current in Wall Street, told a story that implicated both of the Heinzes as well as Robinson in the removal of the books in the offices of the United Copper Company on the afternoon of May 19.

Inasmuch as yesterday's indictments were simply reported to the court and the men named in them were not present, the text was not made public. To-day the two Heinzes will come before Judge Ray to plead and the text of the indictments will become known. F. A. Heinze now has three indictments against him. The first one, which was found sixteen months ago, charges that he allowed overcertification for the benefit of the firm of which his brother, Otto Heinze, was the head. The second indictment, found last month, charges the misapplication of the Mercantile Bank's funds, the making of false reports to the Controller, and the making of false entries in the books of the bank.

District Attorney Wise was in Washington yesterday conferring with the Attorney General on several of the important cases that are in the hands of the United States Attorney's office here. When he returns to-day he will take up the Heinze matter again with the June Grand Jury, which is just coming into its term. It will be a strenuous term for the June Grand Jurors, for their service extends, as demanded by the District Attorney, over to October, and this Summer, with the Heinze matter going on and the possibility of a Federal prosecution of the Sugar Trust on account of the Segal-Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company loan, it is hardly likely that either the Grand Jurors or Mr. Wise will get much Summer vacation.

POLICE SEEK ERNEST LANGE.

Relatives Think He Must Have Met with Foul Play.

A general alarm was sent out by the police yesterday for Ernest J. Lange of 57 West 111th Street, who has been in the picture-framing and gilding business at 78 West Fifty-fifth Street for the last twenty-five years. He mysteriously disappeared last Friday afternoon. Emil Villanyi, a lawyer at 40 Wall Street and brother-in-law of the missing man, told the police that he was last seen in front of 305 East Forty-third Street about 5 P. M. on June 11.

Mr. Lange is married, but has no children, and lives with his brother-in-law and sister at the 111th Street address. He left home on Friday morning and went to his place of business as usual. Late that afternoon he went to a wholesale picture-framing house at 305 to 309 East Forty-third Street, just off Second Avenue, and remained there about three-quarters of an hour while he delivered an order for some work. At that time he telephoned to his own business establishment and told them to keep open until he returned, which would be in about ten minutes. He has not been seen since he left the wholesale house.

His relatives think he must have met with foul play.

Tried to Blind Ferryboat Captain.

The Jersey City police are looking for a man who threw sal ammoniac and tobacco into the eyes of Capt. Edward McCarthy of the Brooklyn Annex ferryboat Dakota, Monday evening, at his home, 435 York Street. His eyesight is in peril.

WERE MUTE; CAN TALK NOW.

Remarkable Results of Instruction of Deaf and Dumb in Public School.

An exhibition of the class work in the first term of the first public school established by the Department of Education for teaching deaf and dumb children to talk took place yesterday afternoon in Public School 47, 225 East Twenty-third Street, before the parents of the children and many interested visitors.

This school was opened on Sept. 14 last, with Miss Margaret A. Regan, Principal, and twelve teachers, with forty-eight pupils, and the progress made has been remarkable. There are now 122 pupils, ranging from the primary classes to young men and women in advanced work.

Nearly all of the pupils were unable to articulate a syllable when they entered the school, but of the fifty pupils who appeared in the vocal exercises yesterday all made themselves perfectly understood in all parts of the big assembly hall. Many of them spoke with so slight an impediment in speech that it was scarcely noticeable.

The exercises consisted of wand drill, examples of the first year work, led by Miss Helen Reilly, the teacher, who explained that the early work consisted in lip development and in teaching the child to use its vocal cords properly; second year work, in which the older girls and boys gave a demonstration of reading and pronouncing words and sentences from charts, in which the children each held a hand mirror to aid in forming the lips, and third, advanced work by classes instructed by Miss Harriet Callahan and Miss H. C. McGrath.

Miss Regan said the methods of oral teaching to mutes had been kept too secret. There is no reason, she said, why any deaf child should not be taught to articulate, and later to talk.

Gustave Straubenmuller, Associate Superintendent of Schools, awarded two prizes to boys for the best exhibition of speech to Eugene Tierney and John Carter. The school has developed a class poet in Edward T. Kretschmer, 17 years old, who has written a poem entitled "Justice."

LOWER TAXICAB FARES.

40 Cents Initial Charge for Four-Seated Cars—30 Cents for Two.

The ordinance providing for the inspection of taximeters by the city and the regulation of taxicab fares, about which there has been so much squabbling in the last few weeks, was passed in its original form by the Aldermen yesterday.

The ordinance provides for an initial charge of 40 cents for four-seated machines and 30 cents for those accommodating two persons. The present charge by the majority of the taxicabs in the city is 50 cents for the first half mile.

It is believed that the Mayor will approve the ordinance. He is deeply interested in the matter, and recommended legislation along these lines in his last annual message.

NO CONTRABAND ON VESSELS.

The Nanticoke and the Dispatch Await Washington Action.

NORFOLK, Va., June 15.—The steamer Nanticoke and the tug Dispatch, the former detained at Franklin, Va., and the latter at Norfolk, for alleged violation of the neutrality laws in connection with a supposed contraband expedition to aid Venezuelan revolutionists, are bound for Maracaibo, Venezuela, according to their agents' admissions, but it is denied that the vessels have any connection with any filibustering project.

Ira M. Levy of New York, representing the New York firm of Kates & Co., exporters, has filed application with Collector of Customs Floyd Hughes at Norfolk for clearance papers for both the Nanticoke and Dispatch. The destination of each is given in these papers as Maracaibo, and Capt. James Tidmarsh, commanding the Nanticoke, says he expects to have his clearance papers so that he can sail to-morrow. Mr. Levy stated that Collector of Customs Hughes has forwarded to Washington a report that a careful investigation has failed to develop anything suspicious against either the Nanticoke or the Dispatch, and the local Customs officers have advised him that the way may be clear soon for the issuance of clearance papers for both boats.

HEAVY SUITS THREATEN CITY.

Catskill Water System Claims Involve Millions.

The Bureau of Claims of the Department of Finance has under consideration a proposal which may mean millions of dollars to the city for damages attendant upon the construction of the Catskill water system. Eleven claims from the employes of Zadoc B. Boice, who runs a sawmill at Ashokan, N. Y., have been filed with the bureau. They run from $229 to $306, and represent damages for the removal of the sawmill, which is in the aqueduct territory.

The matter was presented to the Department of Finance by Arthur A. Brown, a lawyer, of 293 Wall Street, Kingston. The law which authorized the construction of the water system allows consequential damages.
